The season lasted a month and during that time you might build a half dozen kites. It was a time that kept mothers busy picking up and kept small boys out of mischief. Ah, those good old days!

There are probably diseases which cause the human race much more suffering than the flu—but who could question a flu-victim's opinion he was the sickest person on earth when he had it?

The Florida promoters say, according to a recent Post article, they are about 30 years behind their counterparts in California in boosting that state. In short, the Floridans are now about where the Californians were in 1928. But, when the effects of this winter are through the Florida boosters will probably have to start all over again from scratch. That snow and cold weather must really have deflated some Florida Chamber of Commerce ego!

State to Share Drive to 'Slow Down & Live'

Minnesota's top safety officials attended the regional conference of state safety coordinators in Milwaukee early this week to discuss plans for this year's nationwide "Slow Down and Live" campaign.

Minnesota's delegation at the conference included state highway safety director Harry A. Sieben, Minnesota Highway patrol Chief Paul R. Martz, Alfred W. Luecke, executive secretary of the Minnesota Safety council, and Mark Markson of the safety division of the highway department. They said Minnesota officials will join the campaign and give it full support.

The "Slow Down and Live" safety program is designed to coordinate the efforts of all public officials and private organizations in a single campaign against a single traffic problem—speed. The safety coordinators selected this one problem because speed is the largest single factor contributing to accidents.

However, the campaign is not directed against speed alone, but is aimed at those faults of driver behavior which the coordinators call the "hurry up complex." This year the corrdinators will direct the major part of the enforcement and education efforts at the driver who is always in a hurry.

Sieben described this driver as one of the major causes of accidents. "He's the driver who wants to be first away from the traffic light", Sieben explained. "He is in such a big hurry that he will risk his life and the lives of others by passing other vehicles on hills and curves, dispute the right of way at intersections and violate the law to save a few seconds."

At the Milwaukee meeting, the state safety coordinators agreed to be especially hard on the "hurry up driver" during the period from Memorial day until Labor day, when traffic on our highways is comparatively heavy. During this period there will be an intesive public education campaign directed at informing drivers of the hazards of speed. This campaign will be backed by a strict uniform law enforcement program directed at slowing down the driver who is in too great a hurry, Sieben said.

Dates Announced for School Patrol Training Session

Dates for the twenty-first Legionville training camp for Minnesota school safety patrols were announced today. This year Legionville will be in operation for eight weeks.

The 1958 one-week sessions will begin June 8, and run for a period of six weeks for boys who are school safety patrol members. Girls who are patrol members will have two sessions of their own starting July 20.

Legionville, located near Brainerd, attracts increasing numbers of patrol members each year. In 1957, over 1,000 boys and girls attended the training sessions, designed to teach them the proper and safest ways of carrying out their jobs of protecting schoolmates during the school term.

Registration for Legionville, 1958, is being handled through the American Legion office, State Veterans Service building in St. Paul.

Interested sponsors are reminded that registration fees, $18.50 per camper, must be paid by May 1, to hold reservations. Increased interest each year has led the camp directors to schedule the eight weeks with a capacity of 135 campers each week.

State Jaycees Ask Stricter Traffic Law Enforcement

Resolution Adopted by Junior Chamber Board at Meeting in Moorhead

The executive committee of the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce is asking all state and local officials in Minnesota to step up traffic law enforcement activities.

The request came in the form of a resolution passed by the group at its recent state meeting in Moorhead. The resolution asked all local chapters of the Jaycees to endorse and encourage strick, uniform traffic law enforcement, because strict enforcement represents the only activity which will produce an immediate effect on Minnesota's mounting traffic toll, it said.

The Junior chamber's state safety director, Bernard Jost said, "Eventually we will see the results of education and engineering, but we can expect to see almost immediate results from increased enforcement."

The Jaycees' resolution pointed out that violations of the traffic laws contributed to a majority of all accidents and that cutting the number of violations through tough enforcement will reduce the number of accidents.

Lambs Need Good Start

The number of lambs you eventually get to market depends to a great extent on the care you give them at lambing time.

Here are some pointers to help save a higher percentage of the lamb crop.

Clean out the lambing pens and use a good disinfectant spray if possible, Anderson says. There are always many sources of infection that lambs need protection against.

Use heat lamps and have on hand a supply of common medicants often needed for lambing. Plan to treat the navel cord with iodine.

When the lambs are being born, don't attempt to help the ewe unless absolutely necessary. More important, make sure the newly born lamb starts breathing. Then put him in front of the ewe so that she will claim him and dry him off.

Next, check into the "milk supply." Make sure the lamb gets his first meal by a half an hour or so after being born. Many sheepmen say a lamb is "half-raised" if he is strong and nursing well.

If at all possible, see to it that lambs get ewe's colostrum shortly after birth. An orphan lamb may be put on a ewe that has lost her lamb or only has one. But where it's absolutely necessary to use cow's milk, remember that ewe's milk is much higher in fat than cow's milk, so don't add water. Use milk from a recently freshened cow if possible. Warm the milk if necessary but don't overheat it. Lambs will drink from 1-2 ounces every 2-3 hours for the first 3 or 4 days.

Lambs usually don't need any feed other than milk until they are 10-14 days old. Then give them a ration of ground or crushed oats, bran and oil meal. When the lambs are older, grinding is no longer necessary and you may add some corn to the ration. See that feed racks are clean and keep the grain fresh.

Anemia in Pigs

Injecting with an iron-dextran solution is the best way to cure iron-deficiency anemia in your baby pigs.

The treatment is also a very good way to prevent this anemia.

Iron-dextran material is available in most areas and comes in solution form. The dose is calculated so that each pig receives 100 milligrams, so it needs to be used according to directions. The treatment is not difficult to administer.

When used as a preventive treatment, it should be given to pigs when they are about 6-9 days old. The dosage, though, is the same for preventive treatment as it is for pigs that have anemia.

This treatment has given remarkable results when used on pigs suffering from iron deficiency. Some of the earliest research on this treatment in this country was conducted by the University's College of Veterinary Medicine.

Iron-dextran injections cured more than 90 percent of the pigs treated in the most recent tests. No other treatment so far has given such good results against anemia. Even pigs not completely cured showed a marked improvement after being treated. Also, there were no undesirable side effects from the treatment.

Iron-deficiency anemia, when it occurs, usually hits pigs between 10 and 30 days old. Symptoms are general unthriftiness and weakness. The condition may be either a direct or indirect cause of many deaths in pigs.

With the exception of a pair of Crookston Pirates vs. Roseau Cloverleafs games, which will be played during next week, the Northwest hockey league will conclude its 1957-58 schedule this week.

The league-leading Thief River Falls Thieves, who have clinched a tie for the league title, will have an opportunity to "nail down" the championship this weekend when they meet the Crookston Pirates in a home-and-home series. The Thieves play at Crookston on Saturday night, and the two clubs return to Thief River Falls on Sunday afternoon.

Probably the most important game on this week's slate is the tilt between the Grand Forks Jets and the Roseau Leafs at Grand Forks on Friday night. The Jets, scoring a 3 to 2 win over Thief River Falls on Tuesday night, moved ahead of the Leafs in the point standings. The schedule, though, favors Roseau for in addition to their game against Grand Forks, the Cloverleafs have a pair of games remaining against the Crookston Pirates.

Grand Forks Defeats Thieves Tuesday 3-2

A poorly cleared puck in the Thieves' zone late in the third period gave Grand Forks' Ron Geatz an opportunity to shove a score into the south goal and give the Jets a 3 to 2 win over the locals in a Northwest hockey league game played here on Tuesday night.

The Grand Forks win moved the Jets into second place in the league standings, and it prevented the Thieves from clinching the league title. The Thieves will meet the Crookston Pirates at Crookston on Saturday night, and the two teams, the Pirates and the Thieves, will conclude the league schedule by a return game here on the Arena ice on Sunday afternoon, with face-off time at 2:30 p.m. A win or a tie for the locals in this two-game series would give coach Paul Bedard's club the league title and a berth in the state senior amateur hockey tournament that will be played in Minneapolis on March 1st and 2nd.

In Tuesday night's well-played game, the Jets, on first period goals by Glen Wallor and Frenchy LaCrosse, took a 2 to 0 lead. Monty Markstrom, the Thieves' high-scoring and play-making center, took a pass from Fred Dablow to score at the 14:17 mark of the second period. And when Markstrom, on an assist from Cal Offerdahl, hit the mesh at 2:16 of the third period, the game was in a 2-all knot. Geatz, a strong-skating right-wing for the Jets, untied the knot at the 12:27 mark, giving Grand Forks a 3 to 2 win.

50 at Meeting of North Bowhunter League on Sunday

Phil Slama of Walhalla, N.D., Named President of Group at Legion Club

The annual meeting of the Northern Bowhunter League was held at the Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls Sunday afternoon. Bill Adams of Roseau presided, with 50 members present.

The following new officers were elected: President, Phil Slama, Walhalla, N. D.; vice president, Ernie Busse, Red Lake Falls; secretary-treasurer, Don Schultz, Crookston; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ed Grendahl, Grand Forks, N. D.; and publicity, Mrs. Kenneth Lind, Bemidji.

Two interesting bowhunting movies were shown. It was decided to invite the Mayville, North Dakota and International Falls clubs to join the League. It was also agreed that the shooters at Walhalla, N. D. and Plum Coolie, Canada, could join the league, but would not be obligated to put on a shoot.

It was voted to incorporate the league, and Ted Kusmak and Gunder Legvold were appointed to see to incorporation and accident insurance for the season. Remove Fishing Houses by Feb. 28

Ice fishing houses must be removed from the ice by February 28 and all debris disposed of or carried away, Francis Johnson, chief game warden, warned today. Tin cans, bottles, and garbage of any description must not be left on the ice by fishermen, Johnson emphasized.

If fishing houses are left on the ice they stand the chance of being burned down by wardens and the owner can be taken into court and fined for failure to comply with the law, Johnson said.

On Feb. 23, 1945, the American Flag was raised for the first time over the Japanese fortified island of Iwo Jima when members of the 28th Marines planted the Stars and Stripes on the highest point, Mt. Suribachi.

Action As Jets Defeat Thieves

Grand Forks Jets 'goalie, Bob Kennelly, comes out of the north cage in this third period action shot in the 'Thieves' vs. Grand Forks Northwest hockey league game played here Tuesday night. The Thieves' Al Steenerson fails to control the puck as he tries to get into position for an on-goal shot. The Jets surprised the Thieves by scoring a 3 to 2 win.

Behind the Glass

That must be rated as a successful bonspiel that the local curling club conducted at the Arena rink on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. It was the second annual States-Dominion bonspiel, and, while it entailed a great amount of work for the club officers and committee members, the event gives promise of continuing to grow and grow.

That the 'spiel holds an attraction for the Canadian rinks is indicated by the contingent of north-of-the-border curlers who participated. From the city of Winnipeg and its environs, nine rinks were in the competition. In addition, a rink from Portage la Prairie and one from Emerson were in the bonspiel. That's eleven rinks from Canada, and they were most welcome guests.

Two of these rinks were from Winnipeg's Granite Club. That's the curling club that produced this season's Manitoba curling champions, the youthful Terry Braunstein rink. And these Winnipeg curlers were rightly proud of the youngsters. The Braunstein rink—Terry, skip, brother Ron Braunstein, third, Ray Turnbull, second; and Jack Hallemund, lead—average out at seventeen years, by far the youngest rink to ever represent a province in the Canadian curling championships.

Incidentally, one of the members of the Bob Watson rink, Moose Turnbull, is the father of Ray Turnbull, Turnbull, as well as Al Derrett, who skipped, until he became lame-backed, the Easson Miller rink, will accompany the Braunstein rink to Victoria, B. C. for the McDonald Brier bonspiel, for the Canadian championship, starting March 3rd.

That this influx of export out-of-town curlers is having a beneficial effect on the local curling was evident by the performance of the local rinks. For instance, the Wally Tunberg reached the finals of the second event, losing on the last rock; the Ed DeLap rink won the third event prize; and the Lawrence Lubitz rink succeeded in upsetting the Jim Doyle rink in a first event draw.

We Hadn't Noticed

One of the Thieves' hockey players, and we aren't mentioning any names, sidled up to us the other day and asked, "Have you noticed that black-and-white vertically striped jersey that Dennis (Spanky) Sullivan wears when he is refereeing hockey games?" Yes, we have. This individual then added, "Have you noticed how these stripes are so much wider where the jersey is stretched over Spanky's abdomen?" Well, no, Jack, we hadn't noticed that, but we'll pay attention to this item the next time we see Spanky in action.

The Region's Best

The few local high school basketball fans who were in attendance at the gymnasium on Friday night, for the Fertile vs. Prowlers game, were given an opportunity to watch the region's finest all-round athlete, and perhaps the region's best basketball player. Referring, of course, to the Fertile Falcons' Arlo Brunsberg.

Pound for pound, and inch for inch, we doubt if there is a basketball player in the region that can compare with Brunsberg. He's the region's best. But while we maintain that Brunsberg is the region's best, we must admit that Bemidji's six-foot, six-inch Ray Cronk is the region's most valuable player. There is a distinction. Brunsberg can do everything. He's a driver, can score on a lay-up, can jump-shoot from the lane, and is adept in outside shooting; and in addition he's like a cat on offense, being particularly effective in harassing the play-maker on the opposing team. Several times, in that hectic first period on Friday night when he scored thirteen points, Brunsberg was successful in "stealing" the ball from the Prowlers.

In spite of Brunsberg's talents, we believe that Cronk, with his superior height and rebounding ability, is more valuable to the Bemidji Lumberjacks than Arlo's presence to the Fertile squad.

Oh yes, the "game of the year" is on tap for the Fosston gymnasium on Friday night, and we doubt of a seat will be available at tip-off time. The Fertile Falcons, undefeated in south sub-district play of district 30, will meet the Fosston Greyhounds, undefeated in north sub-district play of district 30. It's a natural.

Friday night's game could very well be a preview of the district 30 tournament finals.

97 Moose and 325 Deer Counted at Mud Lake

The annual inventory of big game animals was taken at the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge February 14th according to Herb Dill, refuge manager. Pilot Biologist Erv. Boeker and Asst. Refuge Supervisor Harvey Nelson did the counting from the air.

Ninety-seven moose and 325 deer were counted. This compares to 88 moose and 426 deer last year. Light snow cover and extensive patches of bare ground made it difficult to count the deer and many were missed for this reason. Moose are larger and nearly black in color so that they are more easily counted regardless of the amount of snow.

Moose continue their upward trend in population. In addition to those counted on and immediately adjacent to the refuge, there are numerous reports of moose from the vicinity of Wanaska, Gatzke, Middle River and Greenbush. Deer are also reported from many farm areas away from the refuge. The open winter accounts for the fact that many deer did not move into the refuge for winter food.

Dill states that no significant change has occurred in the deer population in the refuge area in the last year. This observation is based on the airplane count plus reports from local observers.

State Artists to Join in Centennial Competition in '58

$3,000 in Prizes Offered for Works to Be Judged at Minnesota State Fair

Minnesota artists can compete for $3,000 in cash prizes in a Centennial fine arts competition and exposition to be judged at the Minnesota state fair and centennial exposition, it was announced Wednesday.

Peter Lupori, head of College of St. Catherine art department in St. Paul and Centennial fine arts committee chairman, said notice of the competition has been sent to all members of art organizations in the state.

The exhibition will be held in the fairgrounds grandstand fine arts gallery. Winning entries will be chosen by a jury of three nationally recognized art critics. The three-member panel has not yet been named, Lupori said.

Competition is open in oil painting, lacquer, sculpture, watercolor, pastel, goache, casein, tempera, prints, drawings, ceramics, pottery, tiles, mosaic, textiles, jewelry, metalwork, photography and folk art.

"This competition and exposition is made possible through joint effort of the Minnesota state fair fine arts department and the Minnesota Statehood Centennial commission," Lupori noted.

'Mrs. Minnesota' Aspirants Sought

Winner to Be Entered in National Competition

A state-wide search for candidates for the title of Mrs. Minnesota is in progress during February.

Mrs. Minnesota of 1958 will be crowned at the 24th annual Northwest Builders Show in the Minneapolis auditorium Sunday, March 16. Show dates are March 15 through 23.

Married women, 21 years of age or older, are eligible to enter. Application blanks are available by mail from Mrs. Minnesota contest, Box 3155, Traffic Station, Minneapolis 3. They also are being distributed by stores which handle Wilson meat products.

The contest is being sponsored by the Minneapolis Gas company, the Builders Show, Minnesota Liquefied Petroleum Gas Association, and several manufacturers.

Each contestant must fill out an official questionnaire and attach a recent, full length snapshot of herself and a copy of her favorite recipe.

Several prizes will be awarded to Mrs. Minnesota, with the top prize an all expenses trip for the winner and her husband to the Mrs. America contest in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, in May.

Finalists are being selected in each of Minnesota's nine congressional districts. The 12 survivors of state-wide elimination contest and their husbands will gather for the first time Friday, March 14, at a banquet sponsored by the Hotel Radisson.

The reigning Mrs. Minnesota, Mrs. Don Hustad of Alexandria, will crown the winner following the March 16 afternoon stage show.

More than 5,000 homemakers entered the contest last year. The winner will be chosen on the basis of homemaking skills, personality, character, and good grooming. There is no age limit in the contest.

1 Million Dollars Given N. Dak. 'U' for New Library

Chester Fritz, international investment banker and University of North Dakota alumnus, has given the University a million dollars for a library building on the campus.

Construction of the building will get under way next year, with completion set for 1961, on a site between the present library building and the law building.

Dr. George W. Starcher, president of the University, in announcing the gift, said, "This is one of the greatest things that has happened to the University in its 75 year history."

The gift is the largest private contribution ever made to an institution of higher education in North Dakota, and it was made, Fritz said, "in appreciation of what my native state of North Dakota did in furnishing the foundations of my academic education."

Idleness is emptiness; the tree in which the sap is stagnant, remains fruitless.—Ballou.

University to Note 107th Year Next Week

The University of Minnesota will celebrate its 107th birthday next week (Feb. 23-March 1) with a special convocation, an honors luncheon, store window displays and a statewide speaking program. The week has been proclaimed University of Minnesota Week by Governor Orville L. Freeman.

Five sketches from the University's scrapbook will be unfolded in a dramatic presentation, directed by Roger D. Gross, University speech instructor. Scenes from 1863, the 1890's, World War I, the 1930's and the 1940's will be enacted by students and staff members in the 11:30 a.m. Charter Day convocation Feb. 27 in Northrop Memorial auditorium.

In observing its 107th year, the University also will wish the state of Minnesota a "Happy Centennial Birthday" with a birthday cake presented by Centennial Queen Diane Albers to Lieutenant Governor Karl Rolvaag. A campus queen will present the University's cake to Ray J. Quinlivan, St. Cloud, chairman of the board of regents.

Four University alumni will receive Outstanding Achievement Awards for distinguished service at an alumni honors luncheon in the rain ballroom of Coffman Memorial Union following the convocation. Quinlivan will present the awards to J. A. A. Burnquist, Minneapolis, former legislator, lieutenant governor, governor and state attorney general; Marchette G. Chute, New York City, author and poet; Albert H. Moseman, New York City, associate director of agriculture for the Rockefeller Foundation; and Glenn E. Seidel, Minneapolis, vice president in charge of engineering, Minneapolis Honeywell Regulator Co.

Honored guests at the luncheon will include former University regents, all Outstanding Achievement Award winners and alumni leaders throughout the state.

More than 50 faculty and staff members take University of Minnesota Week out in the state through talks before alumni clubs and civic and fraternal groups. These talks began late in January and are scheduled through March to accommodate meeting schedules.

University of Minnesota Week is sponsored annually by the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce and the University of Minnesota Alumni association.

Byrd to Retire

Senator Byrd of Virginia has announced that he will not seek reelection, and that is bad news for the country. Recognized as the watchdog of the treasury, it is fair to assume that he frequently was not on the popular side of the arguments during his quarter of a century of service, the spendingest period in the history of the nation.

It probably would not be well to have a legislative body composed entirely of members of the Senator Byrd type. The spenders are not always wrong and it is possible to have too much of even such good things as economy. But we don't have to worry about having too many Senator Byrds in our legislative bodies. In recent years they have been too greatly outnumbered and it appears that we now are on the verge of another great public spending spree. The good influence of Senator Byrd is much needed.

Another Little Drink

Agriculture, which has not shared with other segments of the economy in the prosperity of the post-war period, fortunately is not now sharing in the bad effects of the depression. If the decline in business activity continues long enough then it no doubt will be felt down on the farm too.

But there is an element of justice in this escape, even though it is only temporary. The farmers of our country did not bring this depression upon us. It came entirely as the result of the short-sighted leadership of big labor and big business. Round after round of wage and price increases finally priced workers and products out of the market.

There is little reason to hope we have learned the lesson that this little recession should have taught us. It appears that our promising politicians are going to give us more big doses out of the same bottle that brought on our present sickness. In order to relieve the pain of our hangover we are going to get another treatment of the stimulants that have kept us drunk.

The sobering up process will probably be postponed again. We will borrow and spend and keep on borrowing and spending until a complete washout can no longer be averted.

We have not yet learned that the only way to eliminate the depressions is to level off the peaks. We will soon be off on another peak building spree.

More Soil Bankers

There is some consolation in knowing that our corner of the state is not the only part of the country that is farming the soil bank way. Last year participation nationally fell far short of the objectives and the program was generally considered to be a failure. But in spite of the acres taken out of cultivation, production increased.

This year participation is so much greater that it has become necessary to curtail the program for lack of funds. Bills are now pending in Congress making additional funds available.

In the meantime we do not seem to be making any real progress in finding a more satisfactory solution for our problem of overproduction.

Elsewhere in this column is a reprint of an interesting analysis of the stalemate by Alfred Stedman, farm editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press. We tried shortening it but decided it is worth reading in its entirety. We think it presents fairly the shortcomings of the advocates on both sides of the farm problem argument.

Javits Versus Lincoln

Hennepin County Republicans sent to New York for a speaker for their Lincoln Day dinner last week. Republican senator Jacob K. Javits accepted the assignment, and he travelled a long distance to tell Minneapolis Republicans about what they would have been told if they had invited our own Senator Hubert Humphrey to do the honors. Democrat Humphrey probably would have been a little more conservative in his ideas about how the billions should be tossed around.

The more we see of partisan politics the more convinced we become that party names are now meaningless and that a realignment of parties is essential to good government. The names Republican and Democratic no longer have meaning except as they distinguish between the ins and the outs. It would be far better if we divided as conservatives and progressives, both good words, and appealed for support on well defined issues.

Getting back to Javits, he agrees with the Cowles publications and Senator Humphrey that the North should "press forward on civil rights legislation" and force the South to put an end to racial discrimination without any "cooling off" period.

Let's have another civil war.

Dead Heat Again

(Alfred Stedman, St. Paul Pioneer Press)

Away once more dash those lusty rivals of the Washington track, mouths foaming, bits in teeth, manes flying, tails streaming out behind. One is the Ezra Benson horse. The other is the farm bloc entry. They run neck and neck.

Yet their race is a bit like the monkey chasing the weasel around the stump. Pop goes the weasel. But it's a dead heat. Why is that true?

The entrants wear blinders. Each can see his own course ahead, but not much to the right or left.

The Benson horse's gaze is glued to four farm freedoms. More freedom to plant, more freedom to market, more freedom to compete, more freedom from government regimentation are its goal.

The farm bloc horse can't see those freedoms. Its eyes are fixed on more controls of farming and farm prices. So the two prancers go down the track, each blinded to what concerns the other and neither showing signs of shaking off the blinders.

One critter sees the world one way. The other sees it a different way. The farm bloc horse sees it as a world of big outfits fixing their own charges: big business fixing prices; big labor fixing wages; one controlling the supply by shutdowns and the other by closed shops and strikes. It sees these privately administered prices and wages as farm costs that are continually being pushed up. So it sees the farm problem mostly in terms of prices. It says the answer is government pegging of farm prices, backed up by farm production control.

But the Benson horse seems not to see those things that loom so large to the farm bloc. The Benson entry sees instead a revolution going on in farming methods. It sees the farmer producing two or three times as much as he used to produce. It sees price relationships continually being changed this way. It sees some crops pricing themselves out of their markets to competing products by fixed prices. It sees production controls being nullified by better ways of farming. It sees surpluses piling up and hitting growers of price-pegged products. It sees farm prices doing much better for meat animals without price supports than corn, wheat and dairy products with such supports.

So waltzing down their separate lanes the two racers go. Each is cheered by its separate grandstand rooting section. Which horse wins? It's a dead heat.

Why? Each side is set up to hobble the other. Ezra has back of him Ike's power of veto. This can kill any farm bloc bills proposing to overturn the price support cuts, like those pending for dairy products and wheat, that Ezra now has authority to make within the law as it stands. On its side, the farm bloc can kill with adverse votes Ezra's requests for new farm laws to increase farmers' freedoms from regulated prices. So neither wins.

But Uncle Sam seems to get a kick out of watching the race. At least, it is run over again each year. Maybe something may happen sometime. Maybe one horse will stumble or be thrown. Maybe the other will win.

For instance a fifth freedom, that farmers set great store by, keeps bobbing up as a stake in the race. This is the freedom to pour fertilizers on the land and to pour feeds and skills into growing more crops and livestock and poultry. This means freedom to produce bigger yields per acre, more milk per cow, more eggs per hen, more meat per pound of feed, more of everything per hour of farm work.

Keeping this freedom, farmers have been able to knock into a cocked hat all government schemes of production control. They have earned half a billion bucks of soil bank money for not raising crops and kept on growing surpluses too. It hints some kind of an upset may be lurking ahead.

Anyway, blinders are going out of style. Nowadays, the best horses are too smart to shy and dodge from common things. So these two prancers might throw their blinders on the scrap heap. They might even (incredible thought!) cancel their race and try pulling together as a team.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"A quarter's not supposed to be as good as a dollar, but it goes to church more often." —Quin Ryan.

The mayor of a Southwestern city was finishing a long and flowery address of welcome to the state conference of the D.A.R.

Arne Olaf Folden—Obituary

Arne Olaf Folden was born at Newfolden, Minn. on January 10, 1904 to Arnold and Sine Folden. He spent his youth and early manhood at Newfolden where he received his education and worked on the farm.

After his conversion and surrender of his life to Christ he felt the call to Christian service. He attended Trinity in Minneapolis, at that time the Bible Institute and Academy, from which he was graduated in 1938. He was ordained to the ministry on August 30, 1942 at the Evangelical Free Church of Newfolden, Minnesota.

On December 7, 1948 he was united in marriage to Muriel Schoenwether of Hancock, Minnesota. To this union were born three children: Kathleen, Dianne and David. The last being twins.

His first commitment was a term of service in Canada under the Saskatchewan Missionary Association. His several pastorates include: Foaston, Sask.; Paynesville, Minn.; Foster City, Mich.; Plum City, Wis.; and Polk Nebr. where he was serving at the time of his death.

His service on the district level while holding the pastorate at Polk, Nebr. was that of Camp Grounds manager until his illness prevented the fulfilling of such duties. He also served as chairman of the local ministerial fellowship.

For the last nine months of his life he served under the awareness of inevitable death unless God were pleased to see him healed of his fatal illness. The grace of God enabled him to serve with indomitable courage through the last Sunday of his life. After preaching at both services on Sunday, February 2, he went to Immanuel Hospital for treatment on Monday, Feb. 3, where he remained until his homegoing on Saturday morning, Feb. 8. At the time of his death he was 54 years and 29 days old.

State Bar Tells Who Must File Tax Return

(This is the second in a series of articles on Income Tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association, public relations committee.)

All individuals having over $600 in gross income must file a federal income tax return, except that an individual who has reached the age of 65 prior to the end of 1957 need not file a return unless he has made over $1,200 in gross income. By gross income is meant your income before any deduction or exemptions are taken. If you are single you need not file a Minnesota income tax return unless your gross income exceeds $1,000, and if your are married no return must be filed unless the gross income of you and your spouse exceeds $2,000. However, if during the year you become or ceased to be a resident of Minnesota you may have to file returns even though your gross income did not exceed the above amounts. See Example No. 1 of the Minnesota instructions, page 1.

You must file your federal and Minnesota returns on or before Aprill 15, 1958. If your federal income tax is less than your prior payments of 1957 taxes, the balance must be paid at that time. However, only ½ of your Minnesota income tax is due with the return, the second ½ being due on or before six months after you file your return.

A short simple form, Form 1040A, may be used by some taxpayers instead of the more complicated Form 1040. You may use RForm 1040A only if your gross income does not exceed $5,000 and consists solely of wages, interest and dividends, and if your income from the latter two sources is not in excess of $100.

If you use Form 1040A you need not even compute the amount of your tax. In many instances, however, a taxpayer will find it advantageous to use the more complicated Form 1040 instead of the simple Form 1040A even though the latter form is available. For instance the use of Form 1040 will result in a lesser tax if the taxpayer receives exempt sick pay or dividends for which he is allowed a credit, has incurred deductible travel or transportation expenses, or has other deductible expenses in excess of 10% of his adjusted gross income.

If your are married you have an option to file joint or separate returns, and except in rare situations, it will be to your advantage to file a joint return with your spouse in preparing your federal income tax return. But in preparing your Minnesota income tax returns if you and your spouse each received taxable incomes in 1957 separate returns should almost always be filed.

Set Conservation Caravan Schedule

Essay Contest Winners to Be Awarded Free Trips

Definite dates have been selected for the 15th annual conservation caravan to Itasca state park and the caravan leaders are busy planning a program for the ten boy and ten girl high school students who will make the trip.

Map Indicating Public Hunting Grounds Is Ready

Minnesota game officials announced today that a new map showing the location of state-owned wildlife management areas and public hunting grounds is available for distribution.

The multi-colored map was originally scheduled for distribution last October, but so rapid has been the acquisition of wildlife lands that the printing was purposely postponed.

The reverse side of the 24" x 19" map gives a brief account of The Save Minnesota's Wetlands program. In addition, information on the size of each unit, its distance and direction from the nearest town and the name and adress of the local game warden is given.

These maps have been highly popular with sportsmen who report carrying them in their cars during the hunting season.

Interested parties may secure copies of the map from the Bureau of Game, Division of Game and Fish, State Office Building, St. Paul 1, Minnesota.

ANIMALS HAVE WINTER FUN, TOO

Red Wing bore sub-zero weather with greater cheer in sharing it with a hardy and happy robin busily about his chores. . . King Cho-Cho, Siamese feline royalty, had an unusual birthday cake at his Robbinsdale home—fine big tender juicy steak with two birthday candles mounted therein, which gave him only momentary pause as he took command of the situation. . . A young pheasant near Cleveland had dined mighty well before he was dined upon: Dozen or so berries from black nightshade, countless seeds from yellow and green foxtail weeks, and 58 grasshoppers an inch or more in length—some still crawling around. . . Woodpeckers and beavers are not the only hazards

He prayeth best who lovest best all things, both great and small.—Coleridge.

'Save Your Vision' Week Set Mar. 2-8

Jaycees to Cooperate with State Optometrists

A Minnesota centennial event with a look toward the future will be staged during the week of March 2-8 when State Jaycees and optometrists join hands in the celebration of Save Your Vision Week. Appropriately enough the theme of the week this year is "Enjoy Youthful Vision," according to an announcement by Lloyd McPherson, Richfield, state president of the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce. Expected to join with the vision specialists in staging the week are public utilities, lighting companies and illuminating engineers of Minnesota.

McPherson said again this year the Jaycees will award a trophy to that local Junior Chamber chapter that does the outstanding job during Save Your Vision Week. The trophy, which was won by the Mangato chapter last year, will be awarded at the Jaycee Convention in Albert Lea in May, he said.

Tieing-in with the theme of the week, Dr. Arthur Tillisch, Sr., Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota Optometric Ass'n, said that "with proper care one can see as well at sixthy as at sixteen. There is no other aspect of aging that can be met so adequately by modern science."

Institute Set for Chiefs of State's Rural Hospitals

Administrators of small town and rural hospitals will compare notes at an institute for rural hospitals next Monday through Friday at University of Minnesota center for continuation study.

Around 130 administrators are expected. The conference is sponsored by the university in co-operation with the Minnesota Hospital association and the American College of Hospital Administrators of Chicago.

James A. Hamilton, director of hospital administration at the university, will be in charge.

Milford Hansons of Goodridge Get Observer Awards

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Hanson and their son Donald of Goodridge, were presented awards recently in appreciation for their efforts in the Ground Observer Corps.

They each received the 250-hour bar and the meritorious service award plus the merit badge from S/Sgt. Palmer Johnson, mobile training sergeant for this area.

The Hansons are now on a "ready reserve" status for the Ground Observer Corps, meaning they do not call in routine aircraft flash calls, but are ready to be called on when needed. They still provide a vital link in the air defense system of the country.

Sgt. Johnson said, "The Hansons are a fine example of the many citizens in this area who are doing their part in keeping our country strong."

PLANTS AND PEOPLE LAST LONG IN MINNESOTA

Forty years haven't dulled the blooms on the L. M. Hammerstrom Christmas cactus at North Branch. . . Oswald Botz was signally honored for 40 faithful years in the mechanical department of the Melrose, Beacon, where he started setting type by hand in a shop now completely mechanized. . . Conrad Petersens retires after carrying rural mail out of Fort Ripley for 42 years. . . C. D. "Cy" Noonan is six years Mr. Petersens' senior as he retires in Swift county after 48 years on rural mail routes. . . Almost 1,000 pedestrians were injured during the first six months of 1957 in Minnesota, adding weight to the thought that pedestrians are leaving it up to the drivers to do the job of watching out. Safety is every one's job. Make it yours too, when you walk!

WOULD A FENCE HELP ?

If we could build a fence around the world, what would it mean?

Would we live happily with one another? Would we respect our limitations and still feel free within our confines? Would we stop wars, and know eternal peace?

Probably not. Because, while you can fence in physical objects, the minds, the hearts, and the souls of men cannot be harnessed. Nor could we be forced to live in peace! Blessed peace can come only to us through practicing the love, the faith, the tolerance and the understanding that God, through His Church on earth, tries again and again to teach us.

With that in mind, remember World Day of Prayer this year. Determine not to build a fence around yourself, or around anyone else—but to pledge, instead, to enlarge your horizons and the horizons of the entire world through the common voice of prayer.

And what better place in which to make such a pledge than the Church itself?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

C. C. Members Are Given Tips on Bad Checks

Fred Nelson, State Crime Bureau Man, Speaks Thursday

Fred H. Nelson, in charge of the bad check division of the state crime bureau in St. Paul, offered local businessmen some practical suggestions on how to curb the activities of passers of worthless checks in a talk given Thursday evening at the February meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Elks club rooms.

Morris Howick, vice president, presided over the meeting in the absence of President [illegible] Kelly, who had been called away from the city.

Nelson stated that merchants can avoid being defrauded if they take necessary precautions and insist that all strangers properly identify themselves.

He pointed out that social security cards, drivers' licenses and auto registration cards are not infallible means of identification, since they have been known to be stolen or altered.

When printed company check blanks are stolen, said Nelson, they create a big problem, since they are so readily cashed. He added that bad checks passed by any one offender tend to follow a definite pattern.

Wm. Foster, chairman of the C. of C. membership drive now in progress, announced that the committee is meeting with a good response, in spite of the fact that the annual dues have been increased to cover the cost of nine promotional events to be held in 1958, which formerly had been solicited for separately.

Bob Bredeson, Legion post commander, invited chamber members to join Saturday morning, February 22, in a cavalcade to Winnipeg to take part in a bonspiel. He stated that more than 50 Manitoba curlers had taken part in a recent bonspiel in this city.

His work includes employment with the U. S. soil conservation service and U. S. forest service as a soil technician, and with the U. S. bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife as a refuge manager.

His refuge experience includes work at national wildlife refuges at Seney, Michigan; Slade, North Dakota and Rice Lake, Minnesota. He was recently promoted to the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge, Mayville, Wisconsin.

Miss Thora Skomedal, English teacher in Lincoln high school, introduced four winners in the recent Jaycee Voice of Democracy contest, each of whom read his speech and was presented with a cash award. Speakers included Janet Torgerson, David Rasmussen, Frank Conklin and John Butlans.

Dr. Joseph Norquist reported that "Religion in American Life" week will be observed here during the coming month, and that appropriate posters would be distributed by the Jaycees to business places and public offices in advance of the event.

N. H. Kortuem, chapter president, announced that some faithful worker among the membership will be presented with the "Sparkplug" award at the next meeting Thursday, March 6. At that time new members of the group will receive thier indoctrination.

Bookmobile to Visit Marshall Co. Towns Today to Wednesday

Marshall County residents will have an opportunity to view the inside and the workings of a bookmobile unit this week when Miss Emily L. Mayne, Supervisor of Extension for the Minnesota Library Service makes scheduled stops in various county towns. The bookmobile will be parked in a convenient location in each town and everyone is urged to visit the unit.

Supt. David M. Brown of Goodridge was recently elected president of the Northwestern Minnesota Committee for a proposed multi-county library to function through bookmobiles, which would make regular stops in towns not now having local library service. The visit of the field worker this week is to acquaint the county with the library services that could be available.

The following schedule has been arranged by Mrs. Raymond Tunheim, Marshall county chairman:

Monday, February 24: Oslo 9 a.m. to 10 a.m.; Alvarado, 11 a.m. to 12 noon; Argyle, 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.; Warren, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Tuesday, February 25: Stephen, 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.; Strandquist, 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.; Newfolden, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Wednesday, February 26: Grygla, 10 a.m. to 12 noon; Gatzke, 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.; Middle River, 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

On Thursday, February 27, the bookmobile will be at the Crookston Winter Shows and will be open all day to the interested public.

An evening meeting for the general public is scheduled for Tuesday February 25 at 8 p.m. in the Newfolden school cafeteria. The Newfolden Study Club is sponsoring the meeting at which Miss Mayne will discuss rural library service and what it can offer. Anyone interested is invited to meet over a cup of coffee and become better acquainted with this plan for a "library on wheels".

Co. Agent Reports on New Simplified Dairy Record Plan

Cost Is Negligible, But Supplies Dairyman with Valuable Information

A new and simpler type of dairy record has been devised for dairy farmers. This record can be kept on any farm, its simple and the cost is twenty-five cents for the record book. Yet it supplies much information.

How much are Bess, Rose, and the other cows in your herd producing?

What kind of wages are you getting for taking care of them?

These and other questions can be answered by a new milk record and culling guide recently developed by extension dairymen at the University of Minnesota, according to County Agent Paul Steimaschuk.

Here's what it involves:

You simply weigh the milk one day each month. A chart shows you, based on these weights, what each cow is paying you in wages. Forms for this system are available from the county agent's office.

This is the simplest of all record systems and, of course, doesn't supply the complete information that you would get from standard DHIA testing. But as Steimaschuk points out, less than one per cent of the cows in Pennington county are being tested through the DHIA program. Therefore, there is a real need for the other 99 percent to get some information on production of individual cows to find out which ones need to be culled out.

The new record plan can give the dairyman a start in finding which cows are just boarders, and which are paying their keep.

Heart Solicitors Visit Local Homes

Newcomers' Club Members Canvass City on Sunday

Approximately 150 women affiliated with the local Newcomers club took part Sunday afternoon in the Heart Fund canvass of the Thief River Falls residential districts. Wm. Watzke, city chairman of the drive, stated today.

He added that the solicitors were turning in their collections this morning at a rapid rate, but that total receipts would not be tabulated in time for a report in this issue of the Times.

Watzke said that due to the pleasant weather Sunday many residents were found to be away from home. At these homes, he said, envelopes were left for mailing a contribution, and he asked that this be done as quickly as possible.

Editors Honor 2 on Warren Paper

State Assn. Names Oliver Mattson Vice President

Oliver and Edgar Mattson, co-publishers of the Warren Sheaf, were both honored last weekend at the 92d annual convention of the Minnesota Editorial association in Minneapolis.

Oliver Mattson was elected first vice president of the group, putting him in line for the presidency in 1959, while his brother Edgar was one of 11 Minnesota newspapermen who have been in the journalism profession for 50 years and who were inducted into the association's Half-Century club.

Wes Meyer, editor of the Detroit Lakes Tribune, was named president of the editorial group for 1958, succeeding Edward J. Morrison, publisher of the Tribune and Sun at Morris.

W. E. Dahlquist of the Times, past president of the association and chairman of its statehood centennial committee, prepared a report for submission at Saturday morning's concluding session.

4 Grains May Share in ASC Re-seal Plan

Loans Extended for Another Year on Farm-stored Grain

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a reseal program to permit keeping 1957 crop corn, barley, oats, and wheat in farm storage under reseal loans for another year and extending loans for another year on farm stored 1956-crop wheat and 1956 and 1955-crop corn now under reseal.

The reseal program which is similar to those in past years is being made available for each of the above grains. The state agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee has determined that the program should apply in this state.

Under the program, farmers will be able to extend their farm-storage loans on these grains or to convert their purchase agreements on the 1957 crops to loans for another year. Storage payments will be earned by farmers for the period of reseal or intended reseal. By holding these grains on farms for another year instead of delivering them to the Commodity Credit Corporation at maturity, the amount of storage space needed by CCC at takeover time for 1957 crops should be reduced.

Eligibility requirements for grains under the reseal program will be the same for quality and storage as under the original loan. Farmers who desire to participate should make appli-

Times Today Resumes Building Feature Page

The Times is again this year running a Building Feature Page in its Monday editions for those who plan to build, remodel or redecorate their homes or outbuildings in the Thief River Falls trade area this summer.

In 1958 the feature is being inaugurated earlier than in past years, the first building feature page appearing in today's edition.

While weather considerations will probably prevent a start of building until later months, it is hoped that these handy Times features will help area residents in planning their building programs for the summer.

Earlier features will emphasize redecorating and remodeling, offering helpful hints to save time, work and money for the homeowner, as well as showing families how to have the most attractive homes in which to live for the least cost.

The farmer will also get his share of attention in the new feature series. Articles on new outbuilding design, along with buildings which have built-in labor and time saving features are planned for future editions in the series.

There will also be articles on landscaping, gardening, etc., for the home gardeners so numerous in our area. Use and care of garden and lawn tools will be featured in some articles.

The spotlight will also be thrown on new developments in the building field. Modern research has uncovered a host of new materials and methods designed to make life more comfortable for the American homeowner and his family.

These and many more timely articles will be found on your 'Times' building feature page each Monday. Read it—you'll find many helpful suggestions to help you in every edition.

200 People at Guard 'Muster Day' Sunday at T. R. Falls Armory

Considerable interest in Muster Day ceremonies held at the national guard armory by Co. F 136th Inf. Regiment, was shown by the large crowd which attended the affair Sunday afternoon. First Lt. Joe Forberg, Co. F Commander, was in charge of the ceremonies.

The local guardsmen were helped by balmy, spring-like weather which brought out approximately 200 local residents to view the weapons and equipment displays and see Mayor O. D. Belch review the troops.

The program is a traditional affair, held the nearest Sunday to Washington's birthday each year. The program got under way at 2 p. m. with the weapons and equipment displays being explained to those in attendance by members of Co. F.

An explanation of the military organization of Co. F, from 3 to 3:15 preceded the muster and reaffirmation of oath which ended about 3:30.

Highlight of the program was the snappy procedure followed by the troops as they were inspected by Mayor Belch. The guardsmen acted with snap and precision throughout the afternoon's program and those at the program seemed quite impressed by the ceremony.

At the end of the program those attending were served a lunch cooked on Co. F. equipment by company personnel.

With the Royal Alexandra Hotel as headquarters, the visitors attended a fellowship luncheon Saturday noon and a banquet in the evening, which attracted nearly 1,000 Rotarians and their ladies.

The other local group of 20 sponsored by the Legion post under the direction of Commander Bob Bredeson, went to Winnipeg Saturday morning on the invitation of Canadian Legionnaires.

Mud Lake Not to Be Drained Official Says

Minneapolis Paper Quotes Regional Wildlife Director

Mud Lake, the 60,000 acre federal refuge in northwestern Minnesota, will not be drained and the wetlands program in that area will continue despite mass meetings and protests by farmers.

Bob Burwell, regional director for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife service, said flatly that his office has "no plans to drain it," in a report in the Minneapolis Tribune.

Dr. George Selke, state conservation commissioner, was quoted as saying the state's program for buying wetlands and wildlife areas "will continue."

However, Selke said the state "will do everything possible to work out an acceptable program with the farmers" who have been hard-hit by heavy rain and flooded fields.

Selke said that a program of beaver removal may have to be started in that area because these animals have "erupted" in numbers, causing further flooding by their dams.

In any case, an anti-wetlands organization was formed at a recent meeting at Gatzke, and the group adopted three resolutions:

1—Retain the bounty system on predators in the state.

2—Require that the state cease purchasing and acquiring additional wetlands and wildlife refuge.

Selke commented that "these are the very same people who, in the spring of 1955 when I became commissioner, wanted to increase the level of Thief lake, (state refuge) just to the north. It was a very dry spring that year."

He added that the farmers had three very wet summers following that dry spring, resulting in the serious economic situation. "I don't think the acquisition of wetlands created their problem. It was the heavy rains coupled with the flatness of the land. Beaver contributed to the problem by damming up some of the drainage ditches. With the price of pelts way down, trappers aren't as interested in beaver."

Burwell pointed out that the Mud Lake refuge is one of the most important waterfowl refuges in the system set up under treaties with Canada and Mexico.

It was purchased from the state in the middle 30s for $308,000 and $224,0000 was spent on dikes, buildings, etc. In the last four years $31,000 per year has been spent on improvements, plus $25,000 per years on salaries and maintenance.

Burwell also said that the refuge had a peak population on one day last year of 53,000 ducks, 2,000 geese, 13,000 coots and 300 swans. Some 18,000 ducks were raised there last spring along with 90 Canada geese.

Name 5 Directors at Annual Meeting of TRF Jobs Inc.

Four members of the board of directors of Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated were reelected at the postponed annual meeting last Thursday evening in the Elks club rooms. Wallace Tunberg was named the fifth member, succeeding Robert J. Lund, who withdrew his name in favor of Tunberg after being renominated.

Reelected were E. O. Peterson, Bill LaFave, Dr. O. D. Belch and L. A. Ihle. President LaFave conducted the short session, and called on Peterson for the treasurer's report and on Stanton R. Dahlen, chairman of the trustees' committee in charge of the bond sale fund.

Dahlen stated that last year's drive to sell $15,000 bonds for a development fund had been oversubscribed by 50 per cent, part of the money having been used in connection with the moving to Thief River Falls of the Dow Key company plant, now in successful operation here.

Mercury Mounts to 50 Above Sunday for New High Mark

An all-time February high temperature was probably set here Sunday when the mercury climbed to 50 degrees above zero, which is quite a switch from the weather of less than two weeks ago when the mercury plunged as low as -28.

No official records are available here to determine whether a record actually was set but the 50-year record of 45 above on Feb. 22 tumbled over in Grand Forks when the temperature there Saturday soared to the mid-fifties, officially. So, it would be a safe bet to say a record was set here over the week-end, despite the absence of official weather data to prove it.

In addition to the warm temperatures the area received rain showers late Sunday and early Monday morning, also quite unusual for February. The period since Thursday was the first in about a month when the mercury didn't go well below zero. The high was 50 Sunday and the low was 12 Thursday and Saturday. The Saturday high was 42.

More cheering news came from the KTRF weatherman, who said in his forecast that our mild weather will last through Tuesday, at least. Considerable cloudiness was forecast through this morning, becoming partly cloudy this afternoon and clearing tonight. It will be slightly cooler today with winds northwesterly, 20-30 m.p.h., diminishing tonight.

Plans Are Geared To Better Living for All Members of the Family

Home improvement — the very words convey a warm feeling of greater comfort, more convenience, better living conditions for the entire family. Home improvement, like the home, itself, is a family proposition, so deeply rewarding to all concerned.

Whether you're undertaking your repair-remodel project to save money by correcting faults before they become real problems, to make present quarters less crowded or to enhance the general appearance of your property, you'll complete it with a feeling of pride . . . a feeling of accomplishment.

The first tool which should come into use in any remodeling project is the pencil. Careful planning with pencil and paper avoids costly mistakes and time-consuming delays. Start with a family conference, and ask yourselves three questions! What's wrong with the place? What will it take to make it right? What are the most important projects?

Few families know, without some concentrated thought, exactly what the inadequacies of their homes are. Let each member think it over, then list the areas in which the home fails to meet his needs or wants. Then, consider each problem and list its possible solutions.

It's entirely possible that solving a big problem will at the same time open the way to clearing up others. Finishing the basement as recreation or all-purpose space, for instance, may take enough strain off first floor facilities that the kitchen can be enlarged without building on a room. Or, building enough attic storage units will perhaps make the bedroom closets big enough after all.

Priority Ratings

With each member of the family voicing his opinions, give your projects priority ratings — starting with the one that brings the greatest benefits in increased comfort and efficiency to the family. Once you have decided which is the most important project and, consequently, the one to be carried out first, follow the planning through to the finish with this step-by-step procedure.

1. Talk your proposals over with your local repair-remodel-replace businessmen. Any of these professionals, if your project involves his specialty, is likely to save you more than he charges by helping you avoid errors and making sure you use the proper, most up-to-date materials.

2. Find out how local building codes and zoning regulations affect your plans. If you use a contractor or architect, he'll find out if he doesn't already know. If you're doing the job yourself, be sure to get a building permit if one is required.

3. Pick the materials and equipment that will best serve your needs. This will involve "shopping around" — through newspapers, magazines, manufacturers' literature and at retail stores if you're not relying on experts. And if you are doing the work yourself, make sure it is possible for an amateur to install or apply the things you buy.

Estimate of Cost

4. Get cost estimates and check into financing possibilities — the two-fold step that will finally determine just how far you can go at the present time.

5. Apportion the jobs and schedule the workmen. Your architect or contractor, if you have one, will take care of this step. If not, it will be up to you to schedule the types of workmen needed in addition to the work you plan to do yourself.

6. Schedule the materials. Make sure your purchases arrive before the workmen who are to use them. Otherwise, you will find yourself paying for time wasted.

7. Arrange to be on hand yourself whenever your labor or supervision is required.

With all of these steps behind you, you can be assured that you have planned wisely and thoroughly, that the remodeling project can be carried out with a minimum of delay, disruption and expense—and that you will be getting exactly what you want . . . a more livable, efficient and up-to-date home.

LADDER TIP

A simple way to prevent tools and hardware from rolling off the top platforms of household stepladders is to convert the platforms into handy tool trays by nailing strips of quarter round molding around the top edges.

DON'T SHAKE IT

Take care never to shake or stir clear glossy varnish. Agitation only whips small air bubbles into the varnish. These are extremely difficult to brush out and will prevent a truly smooth finish.

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning—Lowell.

About that boulder in your eye

"Got something in my eye," the customer said. "Feels like a boulder. How about taking it out?" He was hurting and wanted help then and there. The pharmacist remembered hearing about another man whose "something" turned out to be a steel splinter embedded in his eyeball. He advised him to see his physician. Prompt surgery saved his sight. So, we're careful. And if we seem overly cautious sometimes, remember—we're pharmacists, not physicians. We work with doctors, dispensing the drugs and medications they prescribe. But we don't practice medicine.

Finishing Basement or Attic Can create New Living Space

Finishing a basement or attic is one of the easiest and most economical ways to add useful space to the home. It can provide a family room that is becoming so popular these days, a game room, a children's playroom, a den, or even an extra bedroom for a family member or for use as a guest room. Indeed, sometimes a converted basement or attic fills more than one of these needs.

Often the home owner, if reasonably handy with tools, can do much of the work himself, thus reducing the over-all cost of the project considerably.

There are four main kinds of wood paneling from which the home-owner may choose the one most suitable to his purpose and pocketbook: softwood boards, hardwood boards, hardwood plywood and softwood plywood.

One of the most popular materials for doing the job is knotty western pine panelling. The warmth and natural beauty of this paneling, its wide availability, and the range of effects it makes possible, make it ideal for the project. It can add a luxurious look to a room that will serve as a center for adult entertaining or a bedroom. At the same time, it will stand abuse as an active playroom for adults or children.

Knotty pine is easily worked with hand or power tools and readily accepts any kind of finish. It is suitable for use by either the professional craftsman or the do-it-yourself homeowner.

With proper waterproofing and with the use of dehumidifying equipment, if necessary, moisture in the basement need be no problem. The wood itself should be treated with modern commercial sealers.

PAINT STRAINER

Straining a can of old lumpy paint can be a snap. Cut a circle of screen wire that just fits inside the can. Drop the circular piece of mesh into the can and as it sinks slowly it will carry all the lumps to the bottom.

NON-STICKING LIDS

Prevent screw top lids from sticking on jars of glue or shellac this easy way. After the lid is removed for the first time, coat the inside of the threads with a little petroleum jelly.

Asks Permission to Serve Cities North of Border

North Central Airlines has filed applications with the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington for approximately 825 route miles connecting three major United States cities with points in three Canadian provinces.

Hall N. Carr, airline president, said these new applications, filed Feb. 19, when added to those already on file, would make a total of 1,290 route miles between the United States and Canadian cities sought by North Central.

The airline is asking approval of nonstop routes between Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., and Winnipeg, Manitoba; Detroit, Mich., and Toronto, Ontario; and Minot, N. D., and Regina, Saskatchewan.

Already on file are applications to link International Falls, Minn., with Winnipeg; Duluth-Superior with Port Arthur-Fort William, Ontario; and Houghton-Hancock, Mich., with Port Arthur-Fort William.

North Central now operates 3,471 route miles, serving 53 cities in nine states.

Middle River Girl Wins Marshall Co. Spelling Contest

Julie Halme, eighth grade pupil from Middle River, became the fourth of four "J's" to successively capture the Marshall county spelling contest crown while pupils at the Middle River school. Julie won the contest held February 15 at the Marshall County courthouse in Warren. Second place honors were awarded to Rita Strong, sixth grade student at Alvarado.

Julie succeeded Juneve Anderson, Jonelle Hogan and Judith Cwikla who has previously won the title respectively in 1955, 1956 and 1957. Mrs. Lillian Knutson, instructor for all four winners, has been at the school for four years.

Miss Halme will now compete in the midwest contest in Minneapolis on April 12 while Miss Strong will be the county's representative in the Red River Valley Winter Shows contest at Crookston, February 26.

Lincoln School Science Club Tours Hospital

Ten of the senior high members of the Lincoln high school Science club and advisor Lawrence Brown toured the Northwestern Hospital laboratory Saturday, February 15. James Larson, head of the laboratory, conducted the tour and explained the use of the equipment.

The members were shown how blood is tested for sugar content in the spectrophotometer, were shown bacteria cultures, viewed specimens of blood under a microscope, and were shown many other interesting laboratory procedures.

Seven of the junior high members and advisors, Howard Nelson and Edwin Broughton were shown Joppru's meat market. They were shown the preparations rooms, coolers, smoking pits, and they saw a half a beef cut up in ten minutes.

The Science club was formed last month for the purpose of providing something of common interest to all members and to encourage individual study of the phase of science in which they are particularly interested.

Standard Oil Cuts Gas Price in Area

Standard Oil Company today, February 24, made cuts in its prices to most service station dealers and all tankwagon consumers on motor gasolines. The reduction in most areas was three-tenths cent (.3c) a gallon, and up to seven-tenths cent (.7c) a gallon in southwestern Minnesota. The reductions are effective throughout Minnesota except to service station dealers in the Twin Cities, where reduced prices have been in effect.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

I wonder if all this talk about a recession is caused by real concern on the part of the politicans or is it because 1958 is election year?

If you'll recollect, 1950 was a similar year. There was plenty of unemployment until the Korean outbreak. That, of course, saved some political bacon but caused a lot of wear and tear on several of our servicemen.

There's a lot of truth in the saying that if you tell a person he looks unwell often enough he actually will get sick. That's what home responsible people fear about the national economy —if enough politicans tell us we're having rough times some impressionable folks will start believing it.

Of course it isn't hard to convince a man who's out of work that we're in a depression, even if he's the only unemployed person for miles around.

To cheer ourselves up we might remember that even at the height of the depression of the Thirties there were far more people gainfully employed than were unemployed!

You can tell spring is on the way. Boats, motors and fishing tackle are now the topic of conversation all over town. The boat show at the auditorium the past week-end aroused a lot of interest and a lot of people saw what's new in some boating lines.

Can you remember the days when a 10 h. p. outboard motor was considered a monster—and a mighty noisy, unwieldy monster at that? Now 35 h.p. is considered commonplace and 50 to 60 h. p. outboard motors are gaining in popularity.

Less than a decade ago a water skier was considered a daring person and was seldom seen except at water carnivals, etc. Nowadays, with the new equipment built to accomodate skiers, one sees as many if not more outfits sold for this purpose than for fishing.

The most popular boat and motor combination is one that serves utilitarian purposes. It can be used for fishing mornings and evenings and during the heat of the day will provide fun for the skiing fraternity.

There's been a big change in boats, too. The 14-footer is now considered fairly small and most people prefer a beamy 16-footer. Boating is a family affair with mamma and the kids along more often than not, which makes a larger boat desirable.

There's only one dark cloud on the boating horizon. In practically every state capitol the boys who levy taxes and make regulations are greedily eyeing the large number of boats on our inland waters so we needn't be surprised to see licenses become mandatory one of these fine days.

Lovely week-end wasn't it? Of course we'd be rather foolish to think spring has sprung but I'm sure local residents will take all this balmy weather we can get at this time of year. Unless I'm mistaken a February temperature record was set either Saturday or Sunday.

The boys of Thief River Falls' Co. F, 136th Inf. regiment, put on a swell Muster Day show at the armory Sunday. Was there taking fotos that afternoon and must say I enjoyed their demonstrations immensely, and found 1st Lt. Joe Forberg, the company CO most cooperative in helping me line up the pix.

One of Co. F's claims to fame involves the Swanson brothers. There are five of 'em in the outfit and Chester is the company first sergeant — and from where I stood it appeared Chester is a sergeant's sergeant.

The other four brothers are M/Sgt. Lenord, SFC's Donald and Oliver, and Sgt. Clifford Swanson. They're all sons of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Swanson of rt. 5, Thief River Falls.

Among them they have accumulated about 33 years of service with Chester high man. Eventually there will be six of them in Co. F, as they have a kid brother who'll be joining one of these days.

That's what you call carrying on in true Viking tradition. So long!

Painting Hints from Paint Headquarters

What You Should Know About Color

by Bud Kelly

Funny thing about colors: a lot of amateur painters think there's something mysterious about the proper color selection. Actually, you can't go wrong if you remember these simple rules about the "personality" of the various colors:

GRAY tends to pull some of the punch from stronger colors used with it. For example, a gray ceiling in the kitchen will tone down bright red cupboards, yellow curtains or gay appliances and utensils.

RED always creates excitement.

ORANGE is also exciting, but warmer and more usable on a large scale than red. Orange and brown hues make a beautiful living room combination.

YELLOW is sunny and cheerful — the most "affectionate" of colors.

We can give you a tremendous range of colors to choose from. For example, SUPERMIX Alkyd Flat Wall Paint comes in 12 shades and white. Come in and let us show you.

GREEN is nature's own soothing color and is the No. 1 interior decorating color today. It always produces a restful effect.

BLUE is the most versatile of the "cool" colors. Use it only in well-lighted rooms.

We've learned a lot about color — and have all kinds of information about correct color schemes and color combinations. All yours for the asking. So drop in for a chat before you start painting.

Thieves Win Two; Clinch Loop Title

The senior hockey Thieves nailed down the Northwest hockey league championship by sweeping their two-game home-and-home series with the Crookston Pirates during the weekend. In a game played at Crookston on Saturday night, the Thieves, with three-goal clusters in the second and third periods, defeated the Pirates, 6 to 2. That win clinched the league title for the locals.

On Sunday afternoon, in a game played in fifty degrees above zero weather, and with an inch-deep flood of water on the ice sheet, the Thieves "swamped" the Pirates, 11 to 1, at the Arena. A feature of Sunday afternoon's tilt, in addition to the seven goals and nine assists credited to the Monty Markstrom-Daryl Durgin-Glenn Carlson line, was the play at forward of Morris (the Mouse) Effeland. Effeland, a grizzled veteran of local hockey play, was making his final bow as an active player, and Mouse came up with a goal and a pair of assists.

An added fillip to Sunday's game was the fact that Jack McGill was in the coaching box "belling the lines". Jack shuffled the lineups, putting defensemen in the forward positions, and shifting forwards to blue-line posts.

The Thieves, as representatives of the Northwest hockey league, will enter the Minnesota senior hockey tournament (amateur) which will be held in the Minneapolis Arena on March 1st and 2nd. According to the present schedule, four teams will compete for the senior title, and these games will be played on Sunday. The semi-finals will be played on Sunday afternoon, and the championship finals on Sunday night.

To bulwark the local squad in their bid for the state title and a berth in the national tournament, which will be held at Rochester on March 14th and 15th, the Thieves are expected to "draft" Dickie Johnson, Bob Harris, and Duane Olson from the Roseau Cloverleafs.

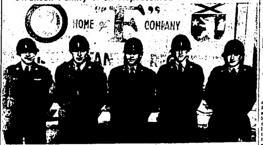
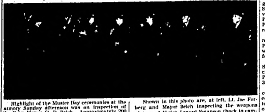
Swanson Family Well Represented in Guard Unit



Anyone belonging to Co. F., 136th Infantry regiment, in Thief River Falls is almost sure to have a sergeant named Swanson because these five Swansons hold various positions from squad leader to top-kick in the unit. It is considered most unusual to have so many members of one family in a unit as small as an infantry company.

Shown left to right here are First Sergeant Chester, M/Sgt. Lenord, SFC's Donald and Oliver, and Sgt. Clifford Swanson, all sons of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Swanson of rt. 5, Thief River Falls. Among them they have accumulated over 33 years service. A younger brother is expected to join the unit later to swell the ranks of Co. F with Swansons.

Mayor Beich Inspects Local Guard Company



Highlight of the Muster Day ceremonies at the armory Sunday afternoon was an inspection of Co. F by Mayor O. D. Beich. Approximately 200 persons were on hand at the armory to see the weapons and equipment displays, reaffirmation of oath, firing demonstrations and inspection, and enjoyed a lunch cooked by Co. F. personnel on the unit's kitchen equipment.

Quite a Record

When the Roseau Rams, on Saturday night, scored that 1 to 0 win over St. Paul Harding to win the state high school hockey championship, it marked the fourth time in the fourteen-year old history of state high school hockey that an eighth regional team has won the title. That's a record to which northwest hockey fans can point with pride. Roseau won the title in 1946, while Thief River Falls gained top honors in 1954 and 1956.

But what is more remarkable, and worthy of note by the Twin City papers, is that in eleven of the fourteen years of the state tournament, a team from the eighth region has reached the championship finals. That's a record that reflects credit on the brand of high school hockey up here.

Here's a recital of the finals games since 1945, with the results of the games: 1945—Eveleth, 1, Thief River Falls, 0; 1946—Roseau, 6, Rochester, 0; 1947—St. Paul Johnson, 2, Roseau, 1; 1948—Eveleth, 8, Warroad, 2; 1949—Eveleth, 4, Williams, 1; 1950—Eveleth, 4, Williams, 3; 1951—Eveleth, 3, St. Paul Johnson, 1; 1952—Hibbing, 4, Eveleth, 3; 1953—St. Paul Johnson, 4, Warroad, 1; 1954—Thief River Falls, 4; Eveleth, 1; 1955—St. Paul Johnson, 3, Mpls. Southwest, 1; 1956—Thief River Falls, 3, International Falls, 1; 1957—International Falls, 3, Roseau, 2; 1958—Roseau, 1, St. Paul Harding, 0.

Only in three years, 1951, 52 and 53, did this region miss the finals. The seventh region, long a state high school hockey powerhouse, has missed the tournament finals five times. And this year, believe it or not, with two teams competing in the tournament, the seventh region didn't win a game, losing four.

No Accident

That was a typical Oscar Almquist coached and tournament-primed hockey team that the Roseau Rams sent down to the state high school hockey tournament as the eighth region's champion and representative.

And it was a typical Roseau victory in that first-round game against the defending champion International Falls Bronco, which the Rams won by a 4 to 0 score. That game was listed as an upset and a surprise by the Twin City writers, but that was not so for the Rams are a solid club with fine skating, all round scoring balance, and excellent condition. If it had not been for the sparkling play of all-state goalie Jim Wherely, the Broncos would perhaps have suffered a humiliating defeat.

It was not an accident, either, that Roseau scored three of their four goals in the third and final period. That was a typical Roseau performance, too, for the Rams this season have been able to control the play with considerable ease in the third period.

Fact is, the manner in which this Roseau club has played hockey this season is remindful of a Canadian professional team. No outstanding stars, no prima donnas, no unconditioned athletes, just a band of boys anxious to play hockey.

There probably is an object lesson in Roseau's continuing hockey success.

A Short Season

Spring this year came early, and was of short duration. That is Frank (Tooty) Gunderman's spring training is any criterion. You will recall that we mentioned that Frank, the Thieves' rotund, or should we say, portly, second baseman, had begun spring training. He was limiting himself to heavy on the lettuce and light on the ham sandwiches.

That was a couple of weeks ago. This past week we have noticed Frank on numerous occasions, and he has always been in a favorable position at a lunch counter. But his diet! It has been featuring cream sauces and suet gravies. As we said, spring came early and left early.

A Note

We received a note from Dick Bjorkman asking whether or not we had slipped a memory cog last week when, in commenting on Dale Wennberg's inclusion with the Prowler all time center ice players, we omitted the name of Jack Erickson.

We certainly didn't, and haven't forgotten big Jack Erickson. But Jack, who was an all-state tournament selection in 1951 and 1952, was primarily a right wing, and it was as a right winger that he gained most of his fame. While Jack did do a turn or two at center during his high school career, it was usually Al Steenerson who centered the Prowlers "punch" line.

Jack piled up a lot of scoring records during the five years he was on the Prowler hockey squad (Jack joined the squad as an eighth grader). During his varsity career, Jack scored a total of 111 goals. And Jack shares the single game scoring records, six goals, with Steenerson. In 1951, in a game played here against Grand Forks Central, Steenerson scored six goals as the Prowler defeated the Redskins, 12 to 5. And the same year, in a game against the Hibbing Bluejackets on the Arena ice, Jack scored six goals as the locals won, 8 to 5; and in 1952, playing at Grand Forks, Erickson scored six goals against the Redskins as the Prowlers defeated Grand Forks, 7 to 3.

But as we said, Jack was a wingman, and a great one.

Roseau Rams Six Wins State Title Saturday Evening

Defeats St. Paul Harding 1 to 0 in Championship Contest in St. Paul

The powerful and well-balanced Roseau high school hockey team won the state high school hockey championship on Saturday night when, with Larry Anderson scoring the game's lone goal at the 4:31 mark of the first period, they defeated the surprising St. Paul Harding sextet, 1 to 0, on the St. Paul Auditorium ice sheet.

Coach Oscar Almquist's Roseau Rams, the champions of the eighth region, opened their state tournament competition by sidelining the defending champion International Falls Broncos in a first round game on Thursday afternoon, the Rams winning by a 4 to 0 score. Other first round games on Thursday were, South St. Paul, 3, Minneapolis Roosevelt, 2, in overtime; St. Louis Park, 4, Duluth East, 1; and St. Paul Harding, 3, St. Paul Murray, 2, in overtime.

In semi-finals play on Friday night, the Rams defeated the Packer of South St. Paul, 6 to 3; while St. Paul Harding was defeating St. Louis Park, 3 to 1.

In a preliminary game on Saturday night, preceding the championship game, South St. Paul Defeated St. Louis Park, 3 to 2, to win third place.

In the consolidation bracket competition, Mpls. Roosevelt edged out International Falls, 2 to 1, and St. Paul Murray shut out Duluth East, 3 to 0, in games played on Friday afternoon. In the consolation finals, Mpls. Roosevelt, in a two-overtime game, defeated St. Paul Murray, 3 to 2.

E.G.F. Quint Trims Prowlers 53-44

The Prowlers, after sprinting away to a 14 to 4 lead midway in the first period, and a 17 to 12 advantage at the end of the first quarter, were limited to a field goal and three free throws in the second period and a pair of field goals and two free throws in the third period, and those two "cold" periods cost the Prowlers the game as they dropped a 53 to 44 decision to East Grand Forks in a district conference cage tilt played at East Grand Forks on Friday night.

The Prowlers will conclude their 1957-58 schedule on Friday night when they entertain the highly-rated Moorhead Spuds on the local court.

Except for the first period, when the Prowlers were setting up their plays crisply, sweeping the rebounds off the boards, and shooting with accuracy, the blue-and-gold cagers weren't very impressive as they were beaten by the Green Wave. In this first period, Dave Rasmussen, with five field goals and a pair of free throws, and Mickey Hanson, with a pair of outside shots, sparked the Prowler attack.

The Prowlers, in spite of low-scoring second period, held a 22 to 19 lead at the half-time intermission.

Opening the second half, Dick Stallmo scored for East Side when he broke up a Prowler play and dribbled in for lay-up; Dick Raymond, receiving the ball off a Prowler player's finger-tips, flipped in two points; and Paul Havig dumped in a rebound, giving the East Siders a 25 to 22 lead. Free throws by Lynn Nicholson and Phil Hanson, and Jim Bennes' jump shot regained the lead for the Prowlers, 26 to 25. But that lead was short-lived as a Green Wave spurt, on four field goals and a pair of free throws, shoved coach Sullivan's club into a commanding 35 to 26 lead. East Grand Forks held a 39 to 28 margin starting the final period.

The Prowlers in the final period, in an effort to gain possession of the ball, committed numerous fouls, and the East Siders, although scoring but two field goals in the fourth quarter, picked up ten points from the gift shot line. The locals were able to pare the Green Wave lead to three points, 45 to 42, with two minutes of play remaining, but Dick Raymond's two free throws "insured" the game for East Side.

In the fourth period, the Prowlers were handicapped considerably by the loss, via the personal foul route, of Rasmussen and Bennes.

Paul Havig, East Grand Forks' bespectacled center, led the game scoring with 20 points. Rasmussen, with 18 points, and Phil Hanson, with 12 points, were the only Prowler to reach "double figures" in the scoring column.

There are relatively few personal decisions a man can make that command the unanimous approval of his friends and acquaintances.

And among these is his choice of a Cadillac car.

For the things that inspire a man to Cadillac are simply too numerous to be overlooked.

Considered from a standpoint of its beauty—or its Fleetwood luxury—or its performance—or its craftsmanship—or its soundness of investment—Cadillac occupies a position entirely its own.

At the heart of this great goodness is, of course, Cadillac's experience in the creation of quality cars.

For more than half a century, Cadillac's sole concern in the manufacture of its products has been to make them as fine as automotive science would permit.

It is out of this unique constancy of purpose that has come Cadillac's international recognition as the Standard of the World.

We invite you to see, both in the showroom and on the highway, how brilliantly this latest Cadillac exemplifies all of these great traditions.

Whether you might choose the Sixty-Two Coupe or the Eldorado Brougham—you will find your decision beyond the realm of argument.

State Bar Reports on Income Exemptions in Filing Tax Return

(This is the third in a series of articles on Income Tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

Local internal revenue service officials state that one of the most common causes of overpayment is the failure of taxpayers to claim deductions for all their allowable $600 exemptions. Every taxpayer is entitled to at least one such exemption, that for himself. But there may be additional exemptions to which he is entitled.

While it is clear from the face of your federal return that additional exemptions are allowed for old age and blindness, these additional exemptions are often carelessly not claimed. They are allowable if either you or your spouse reached the age of 65 before or was blind at the close of the year. Such exemptions are not available in respect of persons for whom dependency exemptions may be claimed on your return.

A dependency exemption of $600 is generally allowable in respect of a relative with less than $600 in gross income over ½ of whose support was furnished by you. However, the $600 gross income limitation does not apply if the relative is your own child and either did not reach the age of 19 during 1957 or was a full-time student.

A non-relative may also qualify as your dependent (see page 5 of the federal instructions) but only if he lived in your home during the entire year. If you were one of several persons who together contributed more than ½ the support of a dependent, though no one of you alone contribute over ½ you may claim the dependency exemptions if the other members of the group will agree not to do so by signing Form 2120, multiple support declaration, obtainable from your local revenue service office.

In computing your state income tax you will be allowed credits against your tax rather than deductions from your income. In general, the state credits are allowed on the same basis as the federal exemptions. One significant difference is that the state credit is more often affected by a change in status during the year than is the federal exemption. For instance, if you had a child born on July 1, 1957, your credit for that child would be only half the customary $10. You should examine carefully the Minnesota instructions if your marital status changed during the year, if you become a resident during the year, or if you are claiming a credit for a dependent who died during the year.

Vision Week to Be Observed Mar. 2-8

State Jaycees Taking Part in Observance

Vision care has become a big important activity in this country, as the observance of Save Your Vision Week (March 2-8 this year) is intended to remind us, said Lloyd McPherson, Richfield, state president of the Minnesota Junior Chamber of Commerce. State Jaycees and the Minnesota Optometric Association join hands in the celebration of Save Your Vision Week each year.

While the population has increased 30 percent in the last 20 years, persons over 65 have more than doubled. One out of four Americans needs bifocals or trifocals today, and he will need them for more years than previous generations did.

Jobs are more exacting, and now two out of three employees in business and industry require vision care to help keep them efficient and safe at work. When we woke up to the fact that Johnny couldn't read, we found that there was more than a 50 per cent chance that poor vision was a cause.

McPherson emphasized that again this year the Jaycees will award a trophy to that local Minnesota Junior Chamber chapter that does the outstanding job during Save Your Vision week. The trophy will be awarded at the Jaycee Convention in Albert Lea in May, he said.

Federal Land Bank Reduces Interest

St. Paul Bank Announces ½ of 1 Pct. Reduction

M. D. Avery, president of The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, announced today that the interest rate charged by the land bank on new loans will be cut ½ of 1 percent, effective immediately.

Mr. Avery stated, "This action is in line with a long-time policy of the land bank to provide farm mortgage credit to farm owners at the lowest possible cost consistent with sound operations.

"In addition to lowering interest rates on new loans to 5 percent, the board of directors has taken action, virtually unprecedented outside the land bank system, to temporarily reduce the interest charges to land bank borrowers whose loans carry an interest rate in excess of 5 percent. Such reduction may continue indefinitely."

The Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, which makes loans through national farm loan associations, has approximately one-fourth of a billion dollars in loans to farmers in Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, and North Dakota. This reduction in interest rate will result in substantial savings each year to thousands of farm owners in the four states.

COYA'S Capital CHAT

CONGRESSWOMAN

This time of the year, we all begin to think about income taxes. The Treasury Department has prepared a very good tax guide for farmers—about the nicest thing the Internal Revenue Service does for us! The "Farmers' Tax Guide, Publication No. 225, and "Additional Instructions for Schedule F, Form 1040" are available in any quantity we need. Write me if you want a copy of each of these, and it will be sent right out to you.

The Cashman girls of Fergus Falls are still in Washington. Ann did wonderfully well for our 9th District as candidate for Cherry Blossom Princess. She was as pretty "as a princess" but will have to be crowned by her father this year. The spin of the wheel pointed out Nancy Humphrey who becomes this year's Minnesota Princess. Guess who crowned her? Papa Humphrey, our good Senator. Joan, Minnesota's Princess last year, has received her third promotion—to floor manager in one of Washington's outstanding department stores. She's the only woman floor manager in the entire store.

Back in August, 1957, in a Floor speech, I called the price of eggs an "economic indicator"—and said that it showed the country was headed for hard times. "The unjustly-treated farm woman is going to save money wherever she can. . . She is going to do without a number of items which the grocer sells. . . . If enough farm women follow these tactics, the grocer will have to close his doors. If enough grocers close their doors, wholesales houses, bakeries, food processing plants and others, would have to do likewise. Here you have the germ of a real depression. . ." Now, six months later, growing unemployment throughout the nation, proves that the price of eggs is a good economic indicator. Such prophesy is not pleasant!

Some help for the farmers and farm communities suffering from flood and storm disaster is on the way. One of two bills to allow greater credit loans to suffering excessive rainfall disaster passed the House last week. The bill permits Small Business Administration to make emergency loans in disaster areas where farmer-suppliers have been caught with unpaid balances on supplies and services on which credit had been given during the past disaster yrs. The President has until the 25th to sign the bill into law. The remaining bill to supplement FHA credit authorization, provides for a $200 million fund for direct disaster relief through Production Credit Associations for past crop failures resulting from excessive rainfall. Hearings have been held on this bill and other hearings must be held because of an adverse report just received from Farm Credit in the Department of Agriculture.

Centennial Seal Aids Road Safety

A Minnesota Centennial Seal, designed to protect motorists as well as promote the Centennial, was unveiled in St. Paul this week by Centennial Queen, Diane Albers of Northfield. Minnesota truck operators are joining in the Centennial by using 1½-foot diameter Centennial emblems on their trucks. The maroon and gold emblems are reflectorized and are visible to approaching motorists for ¼ mile.

Let the Buyer Decide

Washington bureaucrats are wasting their time and taxpayers' dollars arguing about pay-television. The Federal Communications Commission has been given licensing authority as a means of maintaining reasonable controls over radio and television operations in the public interest. Now the Commission is giving serious consideration to a question as to whether a television service to paid subscribers would in itself be contrary to public interest.

For the regulators to decree that television broadcasters should not be permitted to charge listeners for their programs would be just as contrary to our conceptions of liberty as it would be to order that newspapers could not limit their circulation to paid subscribers. This is a question that should not be decided by a government agency. In free America, clearly it is a matter each citizen should be permitted to decide for himself.

On any question involving proposals for further extensions of control by government agencies we will be opposed until there is overwhelming proof that we are in need of more regulation.

Up And Around We Go

A discouraging report out of Washington indicates that Congress is going to increase the national debt limit by another five billion dollars. So we fall back again from our front-line positions and acknowledge another defeat for good management of our national affairs.

A report from the New York front is still more discouraging. Under pressure from the enemy it is stated that the government is now withdrawing more gold from Fort Knox to be used as a base for another issue of printing-press currency.

The borrow-and-spend boys are back in the driver's seat and smart operators now will get set for another round of inflation. There even is talk about tax reduction. Hang on to your hats.

Respect For Education

Cabinet officer Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, took out after the American public in an address delivered before the American Association of School Administrators in St. Louis last week. He charged us with the lack of respect for education, among other shortcomings, and we are sure the school men to whom he addressed his remarks approved thoroughly the things he said and cheered him lustily.

In behalf of the public, however, we will not admit a general lack of respect for education. That there is an increasing lack of respect for certain groups of educators and the phylosophy of education which they represent is undoubtedly true. We think it is important that the distinction be noted.

Parents, personally, and taxpayers generally, have made and are making great sacrifices to provide better educational opportunities for our young people. It has not been popular to question any proposal for increased public expenditures for education. The present lack of respect for education that Mr. Folsom refers to is due to a growing awareness that we are not getting a fair return for the dollars we have been investing in education.

The fact that we are not getting a fair return probably is because we have taken too much for granted. Education has been hitched to the dollar sign. We have paid the dollars, taking for granted that with the dollars the educators would provide the promised results. The present increasing lack of respect for our public schools is based on specific charges of deterioration made by eminent and responsible educators.

In our efforts to improve education too much emphasis has been placed on the dollar sign. Over-emphasis of the importance of the dollar in any field of activity often reduces a normally good service to the status of a racket.

Schools and Delinquents

New York city schools have experienced a wave of student lawlessness that has attracted nation-wide attention. The New York City Board of Education has been criticised for authorizing the suspension of pupils charged with breaking laws involving violence or with insubordination in the schools.

Critics have pointed out that the law requires school attendance. To deny school attendance to these youngsters would be to put them "out on the streets" where they would be subject to even less restraint, so they say.

To which argument the Wall Street Journal makes the following sensible observation:

> "Why, one may ask, should the public school systems be used as a place to keep juvenile delinquents a certain number of hours five days a week just to keep them off the streets? Why, one may ask, does the law say that teachers should spend their time on a disruptive youth, who ought to be in a reform school, simply because he is not yet seventeen? Why, indeed, does the law demand that youngsters attend school though they either will not or can not learn?
> "We are frequently told that all the school problems that concern delinquency are blamable on about one percent of the school population. Then, it strikes us, there should be far more concern for the welfare of the 99 percent of pupils who behave themselves and go to school to learn.
> "Admittedly, juvenile delinquency is a responsibility of our society. Different sections of the country will have different solutions. But no place, obviously, is the problem of juvenile delinquency properly the responsibility of the school systems. Their role is to pass on some knowledge to the normal, average boy and girl and, as any teacher will tell you, that in itself is quite a responsibility.
> "And that responsibility certainly can not be met properly when teachers are also made to become responsible from nine to three for all the lawless under seventeen."

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"A speaker should remember that the mind can absorb only what the seat can endure."—Irene Reuter.

At the side of the road a woman looked helplessly at a flat tire. A passerby stopped to aid her. After the tire was changed the woman said, "Let the jack down easy. My husband is sleeping in the back seat."

Census Taker: "Do you live within your income?"

Householder: "Certainly not. I have all I can do to live within my credit."

Julie Halme Wins Marshall County Spelling Contest

Julie Halme, daughter of Mrs. Frank Halme, was the winner of the Marshall county spelling contest held at the Warren court house on Saturday, Feb. 15th. The contest covered many different phases of spelling, a dictation exercise was first given followed by a fifty-five written word test of difficult words. There was also a miscellaneous written exercise, which consisted of plurals, possessive, contractions, antonyms, homonyms, synonyms, and abbreviations. This was followed by an individual oral test. The last part of the contest was a spell down of ten rounds of words. The total score rounds of words. The total score determined the winner. Julie was accompanied to Warren by her mother, Lois Wagner, Diane Gerrish, Susan Schenkey, Judy Cwikla and her teacher, Mrs. Lillian Knutson and Robert Prickett.

This is the fourth consecutive year that Middle River has had a winner. Other winners were Janeve Andersen 1955, Jonelle Hogan 1956, Judith Cwikla 1957 and Julie Halme 1958. The winner of the County contest and her teacher will receive an expense paid trip to Minneapolis April 12th, where Julie will compete in the Minneapolis Tribune Spelling Bee and attend an elaborate banquet and entertainment program in the ball room of the Radisson Hotel.

Fourteen contestants participated in this event with Alvarado second, Strandquist third and Newfolden fourth.

Vernon Stardig and Edgar Olson attended the district meeting of Group Health Mutual Ins. which was held last Thursday at Thief River Falls.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

One of the oldest methods used to raise money to pay for services provided by government is the levying of a tax on property. In early years, real property was the best available tangible evidence of the taxpayer's ability to pay, and it was therefore regarded as the most equitable basis on which to determine his fair share of the tax burden. This is not the case today, but the tax is still with us.

Sharing the Property Tax

Property taxes still constitute the source of most of the revenue used by local governmental units. In Minnesota the state received less than 5 percent of the total property taxes levied in 1956 and paid in 1957. The rest went, in varying amounts, to school districts, to counties, to cities and villages, to townships, and to other special district taxing units. Out of each dollar paid in property taxes in 1957 the state received $1.67. School districts received $37.49; townships, $3.81; cities and villages, $27.70; and counties $29.33. These are average figures, and the amounts and proportions vary considerably throughout the state.

Services Provided

I am sure that nearly every taxpayer who receives his property tax statement looks at it with some idea that it is pretty high. Perhaps most of them think it is too high. But few could evaluate it in terms of what it pays for. It would be an excellent lesson in government if each taxpayer could know exactly how many of his tax dollars go to pay for each of the services he receives from local governmental units.

The State's Share

The state's very small share of the property tax dollar goes primarily for two things. One is the state building program—to help to pay for state hospital buildings, for buildings at the University and our state colleges, and many others. The other is to strengthen the state teachers' retirement fund, which needed this contribution in order that it could be placed on a sound basis.

Cities and Counties

The share that goes to cities and villages provides for fire and police protection, streets and lights, parks and playgrounds, city hospitals, and many other local government services. The share that goes to counties provides for general county government. Some of it goes to roads and their maintenance. Some of it finances law enforcement activities such as those of the sheriff and county attorney. Much of it goes for welfare—to pay the county contribution to old age assistance and for medical care of recipients, for aid to dependent children, and many other welfare purposes. Some goes for public health activities.

A Typical Taxpayer

—Let's take, for example, the tax on a modest home in one of our towns,—a tax that totals $170.70. In paying this particular tax the home owner contributes $4.96 to the state. About $32.30 goes to pay for his share of the county expense, and $37.20 to his village government. The biggest single amount is the $73.90 that goes to the school district.

Value Received?

Does he get full value for this amount? Let's assume he has two children attending school. The average maintenance cost for Minnesota schools (this includes teachers' salaries but does not include construction of buildings) amounting to $331.00 per pupil per year. He is obviously getting pretty good value for his education tax dollar.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

Washington is able to see just a hint of a break this week in the farm legislation deadlock that has blocked nearly all action by Congress for more than three years.

We find encouragement for general farm legislation this year in our talks recently with high USDA officials, congressmen and farm organization leaders. They all agree on one thing: something MUST be done soon.

Farm income took another drop last year, down from $12.1 billion in 1956 to $11.9 billion in 1957. More than 300,000 farmers, faced with rising costs and dwindling income, sold out and moved to cities last year.

"We cannot afford to stand idly by and permit the decline in our agricultural resources and the impoverishment of 20 million citizens who depend upon farming for a living," Rep. Harold Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, told us.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is equally emphatic that new farm legislation is urgently needed to "correct a situation that certainly is not improving." He is pressing Congress to make changes this year.

President Eisenhower has been promised that his 15-point revision of present farm laws will be given careful consideration by Congress. Most of it will be adopted, although key points have aroused adamant opposition.

The glimmer of light in predictions of a dark future for farm legislation is agreement by both the House and Senate agriculture committees to hold extensive hearings in hopes of developing an omnibus farm bill in time for action at this session of Congress.

Hopes for a major revision in price support and production control legislation rest on the still remote possibility that a compromise between conflict in Capitol Hill and USDA views can be reached. Neither side has offered to compromise, but both tell us they are prepared to make concessions.

Here, as Congress swings into the third month of farm debate, is how we size up the probable outcome on farm legislation at this session:

The billion and a half dollar export subsidy-sales (P. L. 480) program requested by President Eisenhower will be extended for another year.

The seven hundred and fifty million dollar a year soil bank acreage reserve program will be discontinued after this year.

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act will be extended for five years, and the wool payment act for four years.

Congress will approve the request for funds to begin research on industrial uses for surplus farm products, and will continue the school lunch program.

There is a 50-50 chance Congress will agree to abandonment of corn acreage allotments, although it failed to act on a similar request last year.

Odds are strongly against any of the three key points in the Presidents farm message: Lower minimum price supports for milk, wheat, cotton, tobacco, peanuts, rice and corn to 60% of parity; authority to increase acreage allotments by 50%, and repeal of the law which forces higher supports when surpluses decrease.

CONCENTRATE

Because our supplies of high-grade direct shipping ores are running out, over half the iron ore shipped from Minnesota this year will be produced by concentrating low grade ores. It takes years to develop new concentrating methods... millions of dollars to build the plants. Minnesota needs the business "climate" to attract investments for many more concentrating plants if we are to remain a major iron ore producer.

Only research and investment can keep Minnesota's iron ore future bright!

THE MINNESOTA STORY

Prepared by the Minnesota Historical Society

LEGAL DIFFICULTIES

The whole thing started in June, 1851, when some soldiers from Fort Snelling went to Henry Lambert, judge of the probate court of Ramsey county, and complained that they were being forced to farm on the military reservation. They said that they had enlisted to be soldiers, not farmers.

Lambert decided that such work might be a violation of the soldiers' enlistment contracts, so he sent a writ of habeas corpus to Colonel Francis Lee, commandant at Fort Snelling, asking him to bring the soldiers into court for a hearing.

The colonel, on a lawyer's advice, ignored the writ, but a few days later, when he was in St. Paul on business, the judge had him arrested and placed in the custody of the territorial marshal.

Highly enraged, the colonel applied to the chief justice of the territorial supreme court, Aaron Goodrich, for another writ of habeas corpus to test Lambert's right to detain him. Goodrich decided that the territorial court did not have jurisdiction over the military reservation, which was federal property, so he ordered the marshal to release the colonel.

But when Lambert heard that Goodrich was letting the colonel go, he sent for the discontented soldiers and, under an authority known only to himself, discharged them from the army. Their freedom was however, short lived.

As soon as the colonel got back to his post, he dispatched a squad of soldiers to St. Paul to arrest the dischargees as deserters! By this time the whole town was watching the affair with high glee and wondering at the many and marvelous uses of writs of habeas corpus.

The question of court jurisdiction was taken immediately to the Minnesota Supreme Court. The colonel asked a "writ of prohibition" restraining Judge Lambert from bothering him further. The colonel's lawyer argued before the court that Judge Lambert had been out of order from the beginning because probate judges could not issue writs of habeas corpus and even if they could, their authority did not extend to military matters.

Lafayette Emmett, Judge Lambert's counsel, offered an ingenious counter-argument, but the colonel won the case.

MINNESOTA FICTION: SNELLING

The first work of fiction with a Minnesota setting appeared surprisingly early, before the area was really settled. It is William Joseph Snelling's "Tales of the Northwest, or, Sketches of Indian Life and Character by a Resident Beyond the Frontier", published in 1830.

Snelling, son of Colonel Josiah Snelling, commandant at Fort Snelling from 1820 to 1827, was born in 1804 and educated in the East. After two years at West Point military academy, young Snelling left school and joined his father at the fort in 1821.

William's extraordinary skill in learning Indian languages and his talents as a scout served him well in the wilderness which then surrounded the fort. He remained in Minnesota until 1827 when he went to Boston and became a journalist. He died in 1848.

Though many of the "Tales" are rather crude in plot or execution, they portray the Indians realistically. In a short introduction to the book, Snelling expresses his distaste for the exaggeratedly heroic or blood-thirsty Indian figures created by popular writers of the day. "The heart of a man beats neither slower nor faster under a blanket than under a coat and waistcoat," he observed wisely. On the whole, he said, "there are wise and good men among Indians, but they are few and far apart; as in civilized nations, and about in the same proportion to their numbers."

Snelling believed that "No man can learn much of the character of the aborigines of North American unless by personal observation. The Indians tales, novels, etc. which teem from the press and circulating libraries are proof of the assertion."

CHARTER MEMBERS

The Minnesota Historical Society, which was founded in 1849, is now the oldest institution in the state. Its present membership totals nearly three thousand, but it began with only 133 charter members. Among them were such officials as Governor Alexander Ramsey, who served as the society's first president; Charles K. Smith, first secretary of the Minnesota territory and of the society as well; Aaron Goodrich, chief justice of the territorial supreme court; and Lorenzo A. Babcock, attorney general of the territory.

Military men, stationed at Fort Snelling, were also on the society's rolls: Colonel Gustavus Loomis, the commandant; Major Samuel Woods, who led an exploring expedition across western Minnesota in the summer of 1849; Captains J. Monro, R. W. Kirham, and George W. Lay; and the Reverend E. G. Gear, chaplain at the fort.

Other clergymen on the list were the Reverend William T. Boutwell, a Congregational missionary to the Chippewa; Father Augustin Ravoux, Catholic administrator of Minnesota; and the Reverend Edward D. Neill, a Presbyterian minister who later became president of Macalester College.

A number of prominent businessmen also showed their interest in the young historical society by becoming members. They included Henry H. Sibley and Henry M. Rice, leaders in the fur trade and in politics; Henry Jackson and Louis Robert, early St. Paul storekeepers; Charles W. W. Borup and Charles H. Oakes, pioneer St. Paul bankers; and James M. Goodhue, founder and editor of the territory's first newspaper.

MINNESOTA CENTENNIAL STORY

CHAPTER NINE

The Garden Spot Opened

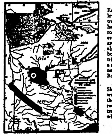
★ When Joseph Nicollet described the land around the upper Mississippi, he referred to it as the "garden spot" of the entire valley. A later writer described the area of southern Minnesota as the "choicest land on the globe". And in the north were the great iron ranges, the towering pine forests and the fertile Red river valley. In some 65 years of continual negotiations with the Indians, beginning in 1805, the U. S. government obtained the very most of all these lands and opened them for white settlement.

The First Purchases

When Zebulon Pike made his trip up the Mississippi in 1805 he purchased from the Sioux the first land the U.S. government was to own in what is now Minnesota. He purchased two pieces, one "nine miles square at the mouth of the river St. Croix", and the other extending nine miles on either side of the Mississippi from below the mouth of the Minnesota to above St. Anthony Falls. The latter became the Ft. Snelling reservation. Both were for military purposes and were not open to settlement.

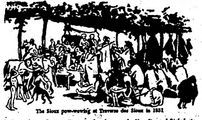
The first land available to settlers was the delta between the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers extending north to the present boundaries of Crow Wing, Aitkin and Pine counties. This was obtained by a treaty negotiated with Sioux and Chippewa in 1837.

Numerous attempts at further negotiations were made in the forties. But when Congress established Minnesota territory in 1849 the St. Croix delta and the Ft. Snelling reservation were the only lands owned by the federal government.



Sioux Negotiations

The most famous of all Indian treaties was that of Traverse des Sioux in 1851. During the week of pow-wowing at Traverse des Sioux, the upper Sioux danced, played games, ate heartily, drank heavily, and made many long speeches. Champagne was included in the lavish refreshments served by traders and officials. The big chiefs, Little Crow, Red Iron, Sleepy Eye, Running Walker and many others, were on hand in their finest feathers and paint. Governor Ramsey and Luke Lea, Commissioner of Indian Affairs from Washington, negotiated the treaty for the U. S. government.



The Sioux pow-wowing at Traverse des Sioux in 1851

Two weeks after this treaty was signed Ramsey and Lea signed a second with the lower Sioux at Mendota. By these two treaties the Sioux signed away land they had fought and died for, lands they had roamed for several hundred years. An estimated 35 million acres, including areas in Iowa and Dakota, were sold for about ten cents an acre. Below the boundary line set between the two great tribes in 1825, the Sioux were left with a strip ten miles on either side of the Minnesota river from Lake Traverse to Little Rock river.

Much of the cash immediately due the Sioux after the signing of the treaties was paid to traders for claims against the Indians. Most of the remainder the redmen turned over within a few days to traders and merchants in St. Paul for whiskey and horses.

Chippewa Cessions

The Chippewa still owned all the land north of the 1825 boundary. In 1854 at La Pointe, Wisconsin, they ceded to the U.S. the area west and north of Lake Superior which has become the world's greatest iron mining region.

On Washington's birthday in 1855 the Chippewa ceded the pinelands around the headwaters of the Mississippi. Certain areas around Mille Lacs, Leech, Cass, Sandy, Winnibigoshish and Pokegama lakes were made reservations for the Indians.

Included in the treaties were provisions for the erection of blacksmith shops and saw mills and for the clearing and cultivation of land. However, the Chippewa never showed too much enthusiasm for any of these things, least of all for the grubhoe.

The Last Transactions

In 1858, when Minnesota became a state, the Chippewa still owned the northwest corner of the state and a large area between the Vermilion and Bigfork rivers. In addition, they had their reservations. They numbered about 6000.

The Sioux, in all about 6500, were along the Minnesota river. The Menominee and the Winnebago had an area to the southwest of the mouth of the Crow Wing river. The Winnebago also had another section south of Mankato.

In 1863 the Sioux and Winnebago were driven out of the state, and the Chippewa ceded half of the northwest corner, the fertile Red river valley. A year later the Chippewa gave up all their north central section. By 1867 the Indians owned no lands in the southern half of the state.

Subsequent negotiations and laws further limited Indian lands. Many individual Indians were allowed to sell separately owned allotments. By 1889 the only land owned by the Indians anywhere south of Duluth was around the southwest corner of Mille Lacs.

Today the Minnesota Indians own less than 900,000 acres of land. A little over 150 years ago they owned all of the state's 54 million acres.

THE J. C. PENNEY COMPANY

As one of the nation's great merchandising organizations the J. C. Penney Company is comparatively young. It was in April of 1902 that J. C. Penney opened his first store, named and founded on the basis of the Golden Rule, in Kemmerer, Wyoming. At that time he had ideas about a multiple store operation. He had visions of some day having as many as fifty stores banded together in one big merchandising organization.

How close he came to achieving his ambition is indicated by the fact that there now are 1,700 stores in the organization which he started 56 years ago in a small Wyoming town. Mr. Penney is still living and still is active in a supervisory capacity, serving as chairman of the board of directors. Few men have such a record of achievement to their credit during their life span.

The Thief River Falls store is 38 years old, having opened for business in the Dobner-Meehan Block on Main at Second on Sept. 4, 1920. The local store is No. 306 in the Penney organization, which means that in 18 years Mr. Penney had exceeded the fifty mark that he had dreamed about by more than six times.

And a record of 38 years of service in our young community is a long time, giving the Penney store the right to boast that it is one of the oldest businesses in Thief River Falls today.

The local store soon required larger quarters and in 1922 it moved to its present location. Since then there have been several rearrangements to provide more adequately for the expanding volume of business, the last of these being a major remodelling job in 1955 when an additional 2,000 sq. feet of floor space was secured by a basment development. The entire store was given a face lifting at that time, with a new front and all new lighting and fixtures.

During its 38 years of operation the Thief River Falls store has had only three managers, the first being C. Heinrichs who was transferred here from Crookston. He was succeeded in 1922 by H. E. Nelson. The present manager, Elmer Benson, took over in August of 1938, and that's almost 20 years ago, which means that the Bensons are now long-time residents of the community too.

Mr. Benson is a product of southwestern Minnesota, with a Minnehaha County, South Dakota, farm background. He joined the Penney Company in 1927 and was manager of the Glendive, Montana, store before coming to Thief River Falls. He is now approaching the age of compulsory retirement and looks forward to having more time for his favorite avocations, golf, hunting and fishing. Mr. and Mrs. Benson say "they like it here" and expect to continue to make Thief River Falls their home. "Red" says he hopes to find ways of being useful even in retirement.

The J. C. Penney Company, is one of the great retail merchandising organizations of the country. Its 1,700 units now include stores serving large metropolitan areas, but large or small, the Penney stores still operate pretty much on the pattern of that original venture in Wyoming. They are family stores, suppliers of ordinary family needs,—dry goods, clothing, ready-to-wear and shoes. The organization is now tops in the nation in the volume of business in some of these lines.

The organization has expanded and has become one of the greatest of the nation's retail organizations. But the Golden Rule policy upon which it was founded is still the rule and guide.

And the J. C. Penney Company is not a one-man organization. Each manager, and many employees share in the ownership. It is an organization of thousands of partners.

Council Okay's Pay Schedule for This Year

Increases Average about 5.5 Percent; Total over $17,000

At a lengthy postponed February session Tuesday evening, the city council adopted a resolution establishing salaries for city employees, the action having followed several study sessions and conferences with union representatives.

The pay increases, estimated to total more than $17,000 for the current year, average out at about five and one-half per cent, and range up to $25 per month in the case of department heads, who will now receive $410 a month. The schedule also provides for automatic raises over periods ranging from 18 months to four years.

The new schedule will be published in the official council proceedings in an early issue of the Times.

Following consideration of seven bids on street lighting poles, the council awarded the contract to Thompson & Stoles of Grand Forks on its bid of $2,253, lowest of the offers that met the specifications.

Also accepted was the bid of the Times for official city newspaper. Opening of bids for city depositories was deferred.

The council approved transfer of the Mint Cafe 3.2 beer on-sale license from G. A. Frahm to Melvin Tigdem, recently of Roston.

Several requests from the park board were submitted by Lawrence Bjorkman, secretary. He renewed the board's appeal for funds to build rest room facilities to serve Riverside park, and also told of the need for more picnic tables in both Riverside and Tindolph parks. Action on the requests was deferred.

A communication was read from Mrs. Marshall Kays, chairman of the Woman's club civic improvement committee, recommending the installation of more attractive trash receptacles at strategic spots in the downtown district. They can be bought in quantity for about $35 each, the letter stated. The proposal was referred to the street committee for study.

Granted was the request of Northwestern Hospital that No parking signs be installed in front of the institution to facilitate loading and unloading of cars.

A petition for installation of sewer and water mains was presented by a group of property owners in Bratrud's second re-addition, recently incorporated addition, recently incorporated into the city. The petition was supported by a group of members of the Mission Covenant church, which plans to erect a new edifice in the area. Engineer Douglas Stewart was instructed to make a preliminary report on the matter.

Following a discussion with Alvin Jablinske, street commissioner, of the poor condition of some of the street equipment, the council took under advisement a proposal that bids be called for on two new two-ton trucks.

The council authorized execution of a lease with North Central Airlines, covering the office and lobby maintained in the airport building. The lease, at the rate of $2 per square foot per year, covers an enlarged area of 170 square feet, compared to the former 126.

Bookmobile to Be Shown March 7th at St. Hilaire PTA

The St. Hilaire PTA will have its March meeting Friday, March 7, and a bookmobile will be parked outside the school that night. All questions concerning this type of library service will be answered. Increased education through books, magazines, films and phonograph records of all types for children and adults would be part of the community thru the proposed plan. In addition to the bookmobile feature, a special surprise has been planned for March 7, which had been previously announced for the April meeting.

Record Crowd of 600 at Knox PTA Variety Show Monday Night

An estimated 600 persons, one of the largest audiences ever to attend an affair of its kind in this city, packed into the Knox school gym Monday night to see the "Nox Noxelties of 1958", a combined variety and spring style show staged by the Knox PTA.

President Les Ihle spoke briefly to open the show and Dr. Joseph L. "Steve Allen" Norquist was master of ceremonies. Introductory music was by the Lincoln high school concert band, under the direction of John Moum.

Following a comedy skit by Dr. Norquist, the style show was narrated by Sharon Hendrickson, with background music provided by the high school orchestra, directed by James Bolsten.

Several ladies and children modeled spring fashions from local retail concerns during the show.

Other entertainment was provided by the Lions club quartet and the high school string quartet, while Jack Boyer, Elmer Sandberg and Jack Edmiston were the principals in "Men On The Street."

The "Nifty Nine of '59, Minus Two," was one of the big hits of the show. The hilarious chorus line was "manned" by "Janie" Larson, "Georgette" Mackenroth, "Edwina" Broughton, "Harriet" Ellefson, "Jacqueline" Edmiston, "Earlean" Anderson, and "Elmira" Sandberg, accompanied by Carol Ewing, a sure-enough girl, at the piano.

The entire company participated in the finale.

Mild Weather Puts Load Restrictions into Effect Here

Sections of Highways 1 and 89 Already Are Put under Load Limits

Unseasonably warm weather which softened area roads has resulted in load restrictions being posted on some state highways in the Pennington-Marshall county areas, the highway patrol announced today.

Highway 1 from Thief River Falls to Northome is under 5 ton per single axle weight restriction and a 4-ton limit has been placed on No. 89 from Grygla to Wilton. More restrictions are being received daily, according to the patrol, and roads are being posted accordingly.

Joseph Seidel, Pennington county engineer said this morning that some roads in the eastern part of the county have been posted with 4-ton load limits. Mainly these are roads which have been used as detours as the result of weight restrictions being placed on state roads, Seidel stated.

Weight restrictions ordinarily go on March 20 at the earliest. However, state action in placing the restrictions on some area roads made it necessary to post the limits on county roads. A hard freeze could possibly result in removal of restrictions until March 20, depending on whether state weight restrictions were removed also, Seidel said.

He emphasized that farmers in the area should complete any heavy hauling they may have prior to March 20 since restrictions legally can be placed on county roads at that date.

Deadline for Conservation Reserve Apr 15

Program Earned $276,000 for County Farmers Last Year

Farmers in Pennington County have only until April 15 to sign up for this year's conservation reserve program. According to O. J. Houske, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, farmers of the county earned $276,978 in 1957 through the conservation reserve. For the state as a whole, a total of 7,842 farmers earned $7,639,583 as they put 552,011 acres into the program.

Farmers have increased opportunity to use the conservation reserve effectively and profitably in 1958 with changes that have been made. According to Don Lawrence of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Pennington County, there are two main objectives in the conservation reserve. They are:

1. To withdraw cropland from production and thus reduce surpluses.

2. To build soil water, forestry and wildlife resources for the future by establishing and maintaining sound conservation practices on this land.

In general, all farm land used for cultivated crops or tame hay is eligible. Rental payments up to $13.00 an acre can be earned, depending on relative productivity, land values, and other factors—plus a payment for establishing needed supporting practices.

Some of the approved practices are as follows:

A-2—Establishing a protective cover of grasses and legumes on the land. As in most of the other practices, farmers may receive up to 80 percent of the average cost of establishment. In Pennington County, 16,432 acres were established under this practice in 1957. Grasses and legumes, incidentally, can provide valuable nesting cover for wildlife if handled properly.

A-4—Providing liming materials when needed for establishment of legumes. This practice is applicable only to farm land being established under A-2.

A-7 and A-8—The establishment of a stand of trees and shrubs. In 1957, 183 Minnesota farmers planted 2,298 acres. Farmers interested in planting trees for woodlots, erosion control or wildlife, on land placed in the conservation reserve, can receive payment for both trees and rental.

B-7 — Constructing pits or ponds as a means of protecting vegetative cover. Wet areas of this type are occasionally used by waterfowl during the migration and mating period in the spring.

Local People Asked to Decide on Continuing Concert Association

In an effort to ascertain whether Thief River Falls residents wish to have the Northwest Concert association arrange another series of programs for the coming year, Curtiss T. Harris, president, announced this week that letters had been mailed Tuesday to local members to explain the situation confronting the association.

For the past four years, Harris stated, the concert group has operated with a deficit each year, and he added that the time has come when it is necessary to decide whether the association is to continue or not.

Says the letter! "Each year for the past four years we have had a house to house canvass for memberships and frankly it is not right that this should be necessary for an organization of this type. If we are to continue operating it is going to be necessary for us to have an organization of sufficient size to make it possible to operate on a sound financial basis. It is also going to be necessary that we obtain new board members to replace those now on the board of directors who have served for many years.

"If you wish to see this membership organization continued, therefore, we ask that you complete the reservation form for next year and return it to us with your check for next years series. In addition we ask that you bring one new member into the organization who is not now a member and send us his or her reservation form together with their check for next years series. We also ask that you indicate on the form if you will be willing to serve on the board of directors.

"We request that you do this within the next few days so that we may tabulate the results in time to make an announcement at our final concert this year."

Season admission tickets for the series of concerts are offered at $6 for adults; $2 for high school students; and $1.25 for grade pupils. Orders may be mailed to N. W. Concert Assn., P. O. Box 348, Thief River Falls. All checks will be returned if the response is such that no series can be arranged.

Unit Advises Use of State Aid Fund on 4th st. Paving

C. W. Rodekuhr, secretary of the mayor's street advisory committee, which has been assigned the task of laying out a suggested program of street improvements, presented a report from the group, completed with the aid of City Engineer Douglas Stewart, at a meeting of the city council Tuesday evening.

The committee recommended that the entire allotment of state aid street funds due from the state this year, $35,000, be applied on the cost of paving Fourth st. from Main to Atlantic av. This would leave an estimated balance of $36,500 to be assessed against benefited property.

It was proposed that Fourth st. be surfaced with eight-inch concrete paving 60 feet wide, including nine-foot walks on both sides of Fourth st. from Main to Horace av.

The committee also proposed bituminous surfacing, and curb and gutter where needed, on LaBree and Horace avs. from Fourth to Eleventh sts., and on Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth and Tenth sts. from Main to Atlantic av. However, it was pointed out, before this work is undertaken, the storm sewer work in District II should first be completed at an estimated cost of $48,000.

The committee urged that hearings on the projects be arranged for as early as possible so that a start on the work can be made this year. The council deferred action to an adjourned session.

Curriculum of High School Is Topic Monday

Lincoln School PTA Group Also to Hear Talk by J. Sutisna

The curriculum of the local high school will receive a hearing at the Lay-Faculty discussion meeting on Monday evening, March 3, at 8 o'clock. This will be the second in a series of such discussion meetings sponsored by the Lincoln PTA. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium.

Paul E. Anderson, high school director, will present some proposed curriculum revisions which are designed to improve the program of subject offerings. The discussion groups will be asked to pass upon the merits of such proposals as: a foreign language offering in the 7th and 8th grades; an algebra course offered to 8th graders of high achievement, a restudy of the junior high school science courses.

At the initial lay-faculty discussion meeting, six discussion groups were organized. Mr. Anderson stated that the number would be reduced to three groups and that group assignments would be made Monday evening. Each of the three groups will be assigned specific topics or areas of discussion rather than have all groups discuss the same topics. Recommendations will be presented to all groups at an assembly following the group discussions.

Mrs. Robert Bredeson, president of the Lincoln P.T.A., announced that John Sutisna, foreign exchange student from Indonesia, will also address the group on the life and education of the people in his native country. Mrs. Bredeson also urges a large attendance at the meeting, for through the discussions of the groups the school program and policies can be formulated.

Farmers to Save Money Thru Cut in Land Bank Rates

Association at Warren Announces Reduction of ½ Pct. in Interest Rate

Farmers will save thousands of dollars each year as a result of a drop in interest rates by The Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, according to Ed. G. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Northwest National Farm Loan association at Warren.

Johnson stated that a cut of one-half of one percent in interest rate on Land bank loans made after February 23rd will be welcomed by a large number of farmers in the five county area of Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Pennington and Red Lake which are served by the Northwest National Farm Loan association office. These farmers have been borrowing from the Land bank at the rate of about $430,000 per year and are currently using $2,500,000. of Land bank loans.

In addition to a one-half of one percent cut in rate on new loans, the land bank is reducing the rate, until further notice, to all present borrowers whose loans call for interest rates in excess of five percent. This reduction may continue indefinitely.

Johnson stated that farm owners can file applications at contact offices in Hallock, Roseau, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls as well as the headquarters office at Warren.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

In last week's Times I read where several Minnesota towns were planning to find a way to lower taxes. I wonder if it wouldn't be easier to keep taxes in line in the first place. Over the past few years we have added such services as the soil conservation service, the home agent, and now we propose the multi-county library. It is such a painless way for the federal government to share expenses. This way we are not conscious of the "out-of-the-pocket" cost of each item, so one can hear the ayes for about every thing that comes along.

Now consider this multi-county library, this would have been a valuable service at the turn of the century, but it has been obsolete for at least the last twenty years. Today with the good roads and high-powered automobiles, I doubt if one could find a dozen book-reading-families in this county where some member of the family does not drive within one block of a public library at least once every two weeks. In addition to this we are now living in an era of growing centralization. From the "Ole Swimmin Hole", to our schools and churches, centralized is the word.

But already from the halls of the Goodridge PTA one can hear the ayes for the decentralization of our public libraries. According to the Primer For Library Development Planners, this library service is supposed to be made available "at many places close to where people live." This certainly looks like a step in reverse. Apart from the doubtful value of this service, what problems would be created by these community libraries who might set up shop in some unused school house, woodshed or wide place in the road. Who is going to police all these places or do we kid ourselves into believing that everything would be law and order. I say let some other communities try this scheme. If it is so desirable, it will find county-wide acclaim from its merits. So why not let's sit this one out.

Trinity Fathers and Sons Banquet Hears Talk by Dick Borstad

Well over 200 fathers and sons attended the annual Father-Son banquet held in the Trinity Lutheran church Monday, and heard Dick Borstad, University of Minnesota football star tell how Christian living has helped him through his career.

Dr. A. E. Jacobson was toastmaster at the banquet and Morris Owen, president of the Trinity Men's Brotherhood, gave the welcome. Following the meal a clarinet quartet composed of Darby Nelson, Don Wennberg, Larry Krohn and James Terrian played selections.

In his toast to the sons, Paul Anderson told them to be better men than their fathers in order to make a better world—and in order to do so they must dare to be Christians. Anderson's son, Dale, gave the response to the toast.

Preceding Borstad's address, popular vocal selections were rendered by a quartet from Lincoln high school, composed of Lloyd Dyrud, Frank Conklin, Ronald Moe and Wes Christianson.

In his speech, Borstad told of the Christian Athletes association and named several of the nation's outstanding athletes, such as Bob Feller, former Cleveland Indian pitching star, Biggy Munn, Michigan State athletic director and Robin Roberts, star Philadelphia pitcher, who belong to the association.

The association is composed of Christian high school, college and professional athletes and is non-denominational, Borstad said. Among the many members are the Oklahoma football team, there being a large membership in the association chapter at Oklahoma University.

Borstad cited the importance of close father-son relations and praised such events as the annual father-son banquet. Even though his mother did a very capable job of bringing up her family after the death of Mr. Borstad, the UM star said "he sorely missed having a father with whom he could share his sorrows and his joys.

In listing the attributes necessary in becoming a good athlete Borstad said athletics showed him his own need for God, and that good religious training in the home had helped him very much throughout his life.

The young Detroit Lakes senior at 'U' plans to go into the ministry and will enter a theological seminary after his graduation this year.

Rev. Otto Dale, Trinity pastor, gave the invocation and the benediction.

A sure cure for insomnia

You've heard the joke, "The best cure for insomnia is a good night's sleep." Not funny to someone suffering "white nights," but true, nonetheless. Too-frequent use of sleeping pills can be bad. Even if they do not cause true addiction they may have a strong psychological effect. Users sometimes come to depend on them. So sleeping pills—any kind—should be taken only when a physician prescribes, and only in the amount directed.

46,554 Youngsters in State 4-H Clubs

81 Per Cent of Total Are Living on Farms

Minnesota 4-H clubs draw most of their members from farm homes.

At present nearly 30 percent of Minnesota farm boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 21 are members of 4-H clubs.

According to Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota, 46,554 boys and girls were enrolled in 2,029 clubs in the state in 1957. Since 1912 about half a million rural young people have participated as members of 4-H clubs-organized groups of young people who engage in community, farming and homemaking activities under the guidance of cooperative extension workers and local volunteer leaders.

Of the total membership, 81 percent live on farms, as compared with a nation average of 66 percent. Slightly more than 5,100—or 11 percent—live in small towns and about 3,500 come from urban areas.

Though many states have shown an increase in urban club work in recent years 4-H membership in Minnesota has always come largely from farm homes, Harkness says. Only two states, Iowa and South Dakota, have a 4-H enrollment more predominantly rural farm than Minnesota.

Air Force Raises Its Requirements for Enlistments

Beginning March 1st, the U. S. Air Force will institute even higher standards for enlistment of former servicemen than has been the case since its recruiting service was organized in July, 1951. The increasing complexity of missiles and jet age aircraft has resulted in more of a demand for young men with high technical aptitude, according to Sgt. Pat Williams, Air Force recruiter at Grand Forks, N. Dak.

A limit on the number of veterans who can be enlisted each month will be established beginning in March. In order to weld a more compact, efficient combat force, the Air Force recruiting service is putting more stress on quality than on quantity.

Specifically, there will be a limitation on the number of servicemen from other branches who will be allowed to enlist, regardless of length of separation from active duty. There will also be a ceiling on the number of former airmen who may enlist if they have been discharged more than 90 days.

"In addition, the Air Force will require higher scores on its written mental qualification tests beginning in March," Sgt. Williams stated.

DDD ADS UP TO MORE CONVERSATION

Among the newest combination of significant initials is DDD, which means that half a million Minnesota telephone users can now reach some 9,000,000 telephones in our state and elsewhere by "direct distance dialing". To extend this network and add to the dial exchanges in the state, Northwestern Bell Telephone expects to spend in 1958 somewhere between [illegible] million and $40 million. Adding more than 45,000 telephones last year brought the state's total to 937,000 and by the end of 1958 the number is likely to be nubbing a million pretty close; 91% of these are currently dial and this proportion will grow. The astonishing number of 112,000 long distance calls each business day of 1957 is expected to climb to 125,000 in 1958, for a total of nearly 35,000,000 distance calls this year.

Rites Friday for O. Kipp of State Highway Dept.

Funeral services were conducted, Feb. 21 in St. Paul for O. L. Kipp, who, because of his long, close identification with the Minnesota trunk highway system, was known as "Mr. Highways."

Kipp, former assistant commissioner and chief engineer of the Minnesota highway department, died Feb. 17 in Midway Hospital, St. Paul, after an illness of several weeks. He would have been 73 years old the day following his death.

Since his retirement in August, 1955, as assistant commissioner and chief engineer, Kipp had continued in the state highway department as a consultant on the planning of the Twin Cities links of the new interstate highway network.

A graduate of Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Iowa, and a graduate at Iowa State college, Ames, Kipp was county engineer of Redwood county in Minnesota for two years before joining the Minnesota Highway department in 1916.

He served as the department's construction engineer from 1921 to 1939, was given the additional post of assistant chief engineer in 1939 and was made chief engineer and assistant commissioner in 1943.

In his more recent consulting capacity on the interstate routes, Kipp has carried forward the very responsible task of working with governmental and civic agencies in determining the most feasible locations and suitable facilities for the giant freeways which will carry the interstate routes into and around Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Large Crowds Attend Valley Winter Shows

James Muzzy Wins Best Dairy Herd Award Fourth Time

The Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston this week attracted a large attendance the first four days, being favored with ideal weather, in marked contrast to the blizzards that usually greet the event. The shows will close Friday.

Livestock judges Wednesday picked champion and reserve champion animals from a long entry list and the stage was set for sales ring activity today and Friday.

In the dairy division, James R. Muzzy of Thief River Falls won the best herd award for the fourth year in a row with his Holstein entries. Clifford Nelson of Parkers Prairie was named reserve champion on the showing of a Brown Swiss herd.

In the beef cattle, James W. McGregor of Ada was named champion with his entry of an Angus herd. Reserve Championship went to D. R. Schermerhorn of Mahnomen, who entered a Hereford herd.

Edgar and Arlen Olson of Fosston won the sheep championship award and Robert Gee of Moorhead was named reserve champion.

The Ward Bros. of St. Vincent made off with the swine championship for the fourth consecutive year with Gaylan Larson of Halstad taking the reserve championship.

The Red River Valley Livestock association voted Monday to deed the Winter show buildings to the Winter show board of managers. The vote was 33 to 8.

B. E. Youngquist, show president, called the action an important step toward planning of a new Winter show building, since an open lot is provided for construction space.

Jerry VaVol, 16, Fosston, won first place in the radio speaking contest sponsored by the University of Minnesota extension service and the Minnesota Jewish council. Second place went to Marie Johnson, 15, Roseau.

The Polk county team won first place in 4-H general livestock competition. Pennington county was second and Clearwater third. Fourteen teams competed.

In 4-H dairy competition, Wilkin county won over 17 competing teams. Winton Fuglie coached the team.

Clarinet Quartet to Compete in Music Contest

John Moum, high school band director, gives some special assistance to Janice Anderson, bass clarinetist with the Lincoln high school concert band as other members of the clarinet quartet look on. The quartet is one of several ensembles from Lincoln which will compete in the music contest to be held April 25 at Crookston. Other members of the quartet, beginning second from left, are Shirley LaPorte, first clarinet; Jim Terrian, second clarinet; and Darby Nelson, third.

String Quartet Specializes in Chamber Music

Junior High Band Members Have Phrasing Session

Lincoln H. S. Girls Sextet Makes Happy Music

Music Role in School Curriculum Explained

"Music hath charms to soothe the average breast," is probably the most true statement that has ever been made concerning one of the nobler arts of mankind, John Moum, Lincoln High School band director stated.

Many high-sounding phrases are used to describe music, Moum said, but all speak of the relaxing effect of music.

In addition to being relaxing, music is also one of the best known methods of teaching oneself discipline and coordination. While playing an instrument, solo or in accompaniment, one must be completely dominated by the thought and wishes of the composer of the particular selection being played, else mediocrity is the result.

This effort called for in playing an instrument stands pilots of the U.S. air force in good stead since this skill is recognized as a gauge of a person's ability to learn to do things smoothly and efficiently with mind and hand, Moum said.

Music is taught in the Thief River Falls system from grade school on. Four instructors handle the teaching chores.

Mrs. Robert Jacobson teaches grade school music and directs the various grade school choirs.

James Solston is the concert orchestra director and also teaches string and wind instrument students in the grades, as well as one high school general music class.

Bryant Ulseth is concert choir director, glee club director and is general music instructor in seventh and eighth grades.

Moum directs the concert band, junior high band and instructs students from the seventh grade up.

Any student who desires to learn music may do so in the local schools, Moum said. Lessons are free and all students are encouraged to take advantage of the opportunity. Music provides work and recreation 11 months of the year as the choir, orchestra and bands rehearse every month except August, which is a rest month for instrumentalists.

As preparation for the future, Moum said, music is highly important, even though the music student may never play professionally. Music fits into many fields, helping people relax and teaching them to concentrate and discipline themselves, abilities which are highly important in a world of scientific endeavor.

Moum cited the many famous personages who use music as their method of rest and relaxation—Einstein, for instance, was an instrumentalist. Many other famous scientists, educators, etc. are musicians as well.

Music as a livlihood is good but the professional musician must be prepared for criticism; people are quite critical of any performer, whether in music, art or dramatics, and only after adequate preparation can one expect to earn a livlihood from these fields.

But, for fun, worthwhile effort and self-discipline it's hard to beat music as an aid in accomplishing whatever goals one has set for himself in life. It is on this basis that music justifies itself in these days of concentration on the study of science in the Space Age, Moum stated.

National 4-H Club Week

March 1 to March 8 is National 4-H Club Week. This year the week is dedicated to honoring 4-H club parents who devote time and energy to make 4-H successful, state County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk. 400 Pennington 4-H'ers will be commemorating the Nation 4-H club week. More than 2,200,000 4-H Club members in America will be observing National 4-H Club Week from March 1 to 8. These young people, between 10 and 21 years old, belong to about 90,450 local clubs throughout the country. Uniting Head, Heart, Hands, and Health, they work for better homes, schools, churches, and communities wherever they live.

4-H Parents

Particular emphasis this year will be placed upon salutes to parents—4-H and other parents everywhere—for their contribution in guiding and influencing youth.

A Report to the Nation

Six outstanding 4-H Club members will spend part of National 4-H Club Week in Washington, D. C., giving "A Report to the Nation." They will go to the White House, call on members of Congress, government officials, and other national leaders; and appear on radio and television programs to tell about 4-H accomplishments in the past year and about plans for the year ahead.

What 4-H Members Do

Through their club programs, 4-H'ers learn: A sense of home and community responsibility. Habits and attitudes of good citizenship. Skills for useful, productive work. Application of science to everyday farming and homemaking. The business side of efficient farming. Sources of reliable information about their problems. Practice of good health principles. Art of getting along with people. Happy home living and congenial family relations.

Who Conducts 4-H Club Work

About 275,800 adults serve the country's 4-H clubs as volunteer leaders—attending club meetings, visiting 4-H'ers to see how their projects are advancing, and offering suggestions where needed. In addition, 95,320 older club boys and girls assist as junior leaders.

"IFYE" Has 10th Birthday

One way people in other lands become acquainted with the 4-H program is through the International Farm Youth Exchange, now 10 years old. Last year about 300 young men and women took part in the program of family, farm, and community activities in other countries. Included were 125 outbound United States delegates representing 37 States and Territories, and 176 inbound exchanges representing 44 countries. The 4-H Club idea has spread around the world, the plan having been adapted to suit varying needs and conditions in some 50 different countries.

3,028 Duck Hunters at Thief Lake Last Fall

Information from the waterfowl bag check made at the [illegible] and public hunting grounds last fall has been analyzed. The check was designed to get the total hunting pressure and total kill on the area for the first time. In addition, the average daily bag, species composition, and residence of hunters using the area were determined, says Robert [illegible]rmes, game biologist.

During the approximately 25 days of hunting ducks on the area there were 1,121 cars present representing 3,028 hunters and they hunted 13,000 hours and bagged 6,045 ducks, 14 geese and 76 coots. This is an average of two ducks per hunter per hunting effort. The average hunter spent 4.4 hours in the field per hunting day. Of the 404 hunting parties checked, 25 per cent had a daily limit of birds. Hunting success was best the third week of the season.

Mallards were the most abundant bird in the bag making up [illegible] per cent of the kill. Redheads were second, comprising 28 per cent followed by lesser scaup (bluebills), ringnecks and canvasbacks.

There are three main regions where hunters come from to hunt Thief Lake: Pennington-Marshall and adjacent counties accounted for 37 per cent of the hunters, Hennepin and Ramsey Counties 31 per cent and St. Louis county 10 per cent. The remaining 22 per cent came from 30 other counties and three other states. Hunters from a total of 38 counties, representing all but the southwestern one-quarter of the state, hunted Thief Lake.

There were fewer hunters on the area opening weekend than in the past several years.

Mud Lake Refuge Topic March 4 of Sportsmen's Club

Both Sides of Argument to Be Represented at Meeting Tuesday Night

The Mud Lake wildlife refuge will be among the topics of discussion Tuesday evening, March 4 when the Pennington County Sportsmans club holds its regular monthly meeting in the basement assembly room of the city auditorium.

Bob Dill, manager of the Mud Lake refuge will be present at the meeting to answer questions pertaining to the refuge, although he will not make a formal address to the club, president Robert Larson announced this week.

Also on the program as a speaker is Delmar Hagen, Gatzke, who is a member of the recently-organized anti-wetlands group.

Larson said the Pennington sportsmans organization probably will not become involved in the anti-wetlands question in any way. The club, he stated, always strives to maintain the best farmer-sportsmen relations and that it will keep to the role of interested spectator in the matter.

A motion picture will be shown to open the meeting, and a lunch will be served by Ole Ness to members and guests.

The meeting is open to the general public and everyone interested in hearing about the Mud Lake refuge and the anti-wetlands question is invited to attend the meeting.

The championship finals will be played at 7:00 p.m. on Sunday night.

The Minneapolis Bungalows, a member of the fast Central league, are defending state and national amateur hockey champions, and, with a veteran lineup, they are favorites to win the weekend's state tourney.

The Red Lake Falls Eagles, with a mark of eight wins and two losses, gained runner-up honors; while the Fisher Flyers, with a mark of seven victories and three losses, finished in third place. Other conference members are Plummer, Alvarado and Oslo. [illegible]ches of the Polar conference membership held a meeting at Goodridge last week for the purpose of electing officers and formulating plans for the 1958-59 season. John (Rusty) Miller of Red Lake Falls was named president; George Kalliokoski of Alvarado chosen vice president; and Julian (Curly) Gasperlin of Goodridge, secretary-treasurer.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Prowler Cage Finale

The hard-luck Prowlers of 1957-58 (and don't say that a squad that lost such players as Dave Hanson and Keith Johnson hasn't had hard luck) will conclude their 1957-58 schedule on Friday night when they meet the Moorhead Spuds on the local court.

In meeting the Spuds, the Prowlers will be going up against a club, the only team in fact, that defeated the Bemidji Lumberjacks this season. Coach Hartvick (Shocky) Strand, the Spud coach, has a powerhouse down there, and Moorhead will be one of the favorites for district 23 honors, and perhaps the region six title.

While Moorhead has a stand out club this season, the plans are that this is the "rebounding" year, and that net season will find the Spuds making their bid for the state championship. That's what the Prowlers thought last season.

Oh yes, there will be an interesting and entertaining preliminary game on Friday night. Coach Julian (Curly) Gasperlin will bring his Goodridge Husky reserves into town for a game against coach Joe Mrkonich's Prowler 'B' team. Tip off time for the preliminary tilt will be at 6:45 p.m.

Some Changes

It appears that the state high school hockey tournament committee, that is the committee on the nominations for the all-tournament squad, is interested in winning friends, influencing people, and making most everyone happy. That's indicated by the fact that fifteen players were named to this season's all-tournament squad.

We can recall back in 1945, the year of the first hockey tournament, when the all-tournament squad consisted of nine players. Remember this lineup: Pat Finnegan, Eveleth, center; Neil Celley, Eveleth, wing; Wes Hovie, T.R. Falls, wing; Wally Grant, Eveleth, wing; Bob Baker, T.R. Falls, defense; Jim Doyle, T.R. Falls, defense; Clem Cossalter, Eveleth, defense; and Jack Okenoski, St. Paul Washington, goalie.

Do you realize that of that nine-man squad in 1945, eight of those players came from the seventh and eighth regions? And that these eight players were all "ice" men, that is, they were skaters; and that the lone Twin City player honored was the goalie.

There certainly have been changes in the high school hockey picture since those days, for of the fifteen players named on Saturday night, nine were from the Twin City area, while six (five of whom were from Roseau) were from out-state.

While we realize that the nameing of an all-tournament squad adds considerable color to hockey tournament, and it creates discussion and publicity value, there are times when it generates ill-will and injustices. For instance, this year we think that an unwarranted slap was handed to the capable Jim Wherely, goalie of the defending state champion International Falls Broncos. Wherely was named to the all-tournament team last season and this year, his senior year, he was dropped. He is still the same player, and from all reports, he is as strong a goalie as he was last season.

We have been somewhat lukewarm about the all-tournament selections ever since the 1954 tourney, when the committee omitted Lyle Guttu from the squad.

A Common Error

Several years ago, when Joey and Jackie Poole were high scorers on the Prowler varsity hockey squad, we, on numerous occasions would err in crediting goals, giving Joey a goal that was scored by Jackie, and vice versa. We are entering another era of such confusion for last week, in a midget game, we credited Larry Poole with a goal that was scored by a younger brother Tony.

The United States Schedule

The U. S. hockey team, coached by Cal Marvin, and with a number of northern Minnesota hockey players in its lineup, will open play in the world hockey tournament at Oslo on Friday afternoon, Feb. 28th, meeting Poland in a first round tilt.

The schedule for the U. S. sextet is as follows, with the time stated being Central Standard: Friday, Feb. 28th, 2:00 p.m., Poland; Monday, March 3rd, 2:00 p.m., Norway; Tuesday, March 4th, 10:30 a.m., Sweden; Thursday, March 6th, 2:00 p.m., Czechoslovakia; Friday, March 7th, 3:00 p.m., Russia; Saturday, March 8th, 7:00 a.m., Canada; and Sunday, March 9th, 2:00 a.m., Finland.

Bar Cites Sickness Pay as Tax Deduction

(This is the fifth in a series of articles on income tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association, public relations committee.)

In both your federal and Minnesota returns you may exclude from gross income any "sick pay" you received from your employer during 1957. This exclusion is often overlooked because its meaning is not widely understood. If you continued to receive your wages during a period in which you were absent from your job because of illness or injury, you may be entitled to a "sick pay" exclusion. If the wages you received during your absence have been included in your gross wages as shown in your Form W-2 statement, your exclusion will take the form of a deduction in line 6(b).

The exclusion is limited in several respects. First, a maximum of $100 a week is excludable. Second, if your absence is due to sickness, the exclusion does not apply to any payments you received for the first seven calendar days of your illness, unless you were hospitalized for at least one day during your absence.

The payments are excludable only if they are paid pursuant to a "Wage continuation plan." Your employer should be able to inform you whether he operates under such a plan. It is not necessary that there be a written agreement or resolution to this effect; the fact that wages are customarily continued in favor of sick and injured employees should be sufficient.

You are required to attach a statement in support of your exclusion showing your computation, and indicating the period or periods of absence, notice of sickness or injury, and whether hospitalized. The Internal Revenue Service has recently prepared Form 2440 for optional use in making the required statement.

The Minnesota legislature in 1957 amended the Minnesota statutes to conform Minnesota law to federal law. Formerly, the sick pay excusion from gross income allowed by Minnesota was more liberal that that allowed on your federal return, but now there is virtually no difference in the law. However, you may find your exclusion questioned by the Minnesota Department of Taxation unless a written copy of the plan is filed by pour employer with the Department. The Internal Revenue Service presently does not follow such a practice.

State People Get $46 Million Life Insurance Money

Amount of Death Benefits Paid in 1957 $10,000,000 over Total Previous Year

Minnesota families received $46,232,000 during 1957 in death benefits from their life insurance companies, the Institute of Life Insurance reports. These payments were made under 21,837 policies.

The 1957 death payments compare with $36,272,000 the year before, under 19,766 policies.

"The death benefits paid in this state last year were 95 percent more than ten years ago," the Institute commented. "In 1947, they amounted to $23,666,000 under 13,650 policies. The increase has been primarily a reflection of the greater amount of life insurance owned and not a rise in death rates, which declined nationally in these years. Ownership of life insurance in this state increased 120 percent between the start of 1947 and the start of 1957."

Of the 1957 death claim payments in the state, $30,582,000 was under 10,218 ordinary life insurance policies; $13,749,000 was under 5,449 group life insurance certificates; and $1,901,000 was under 6,170 industrial life insurance policies.

For the nation as a whole, the 1957 aggregate of death claim payments was $2,710,688,000 under 1,863,906 policies, compared with $2,418,092,000 under 1,739,108 policies the year before and $1,342,417,000 under 1,271,429 policies in 1947.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota
DIRECTOR OF GAME & FISH

Just as we have learned since childhood to hate the big bad wolf and to despise Reynard, the sly fox; so we were taught to love and admire Paddy the beaver. This jolly, rotund, chisel-toothed engineer has been the hero in countless stories. He is credited with building pools in streams, where Tommy Trout may swim, and Bambi can drink. He helps Smokey the Bear put out forest fires by providing a water supply, and he engineers homesites for his forest friends the duck, the muskrat, and the mink. It is also true that the valuable beaver pelt was one of the greatest of Minnesota's resources in the early days, providing needed income for pioneer, trapper and homesteader.

There was much wailing in Minnesota when poaching, and an illegal fur trade, all but extirpated the beaver from our state. This was followed by great elation when strict law enforcement and a transplanting program brought the beaver back.

But now, alas, Paddy, the Beaver has worn out his welcome in many circles. The long fur of his pelt is no longer fashionable, and new synthetic furs are lighter and cheaper. The beaver pelt worth $40 to $60 a few years ago now sells for $5 to $10.

Paddy still enjoyed a good reputation in his community as long as he confined his engineering to building limpid pools in [illegible] U. (Minnesota Beaver's Union) decided that these "upstarts", who call themselves civil and hydraulic engineers, were doing things all wrong—and the beaver set out to put things aright. They are now busily plugging culverts, damming road ditches, diverting drainage ditches, and generally flooding farms and forests. The situation has become so explosive that the following prescription could lead to an improvement on the hydrogen bomb.

Go to northwestern Minnesota and gather together a farmer, forester, county commissioner, highway maintenance man, timber grower, and game warden. Toss in one beaver and run! We could name the resulting satellite "Beavernick", and when he drops out of orbit I hope he lands in Russia.

Actually, the beaver problem is no joke at all because they are doing damage throughout much of the State. Neither is there an easy solution to the problem. Under the inflexible law we can have only a 15 day beaver trapping season; each trapper is allowed only 10 beaver a year; and he is required to have a seal costing one dollar fastened to each pelt by a game warden.

These now unnecessary restrictions, plus low pelt values, do not encourage trapping.

Wardens and game managers are constantly working on beaver complaints, and even the trout specialists say that Paddy is overworking his "limpid pool" scheme. With several pools per mile of stream, trees which shade the stream are cut down, the water gets too warm for trout, [illegible] of dynamite blowing out beaver dams last year, and everyone is discouraged except Paddy.

The beaver is an important animal in Minnesota. He builds waterfowl and furbearer habitat, befriends in many instances the trout fisherman, and has great aesthetic value for both the resident and the tourist—but Paddy is such an "eager beaver."

Better Be Factual

A depression-conscious friend of ours wept bitterly through the coffee-break one day last week because the newspapers were giving so much space to depressing news. It was his opinion that conditions would be better if the news stories were more cheerful.

We did not argue the point with him, but the things he said did raise a lot of old questions about the function of newspapers and their responsibility to readers. We did not argue with him mainly because while he was sobbing we were thinking of various times when we had been criticized for being factual.

There was the cold winter that Jack Frost must have camped close to town. Thief River Falls was being mentioned regularly as the coldest spot in the nation. One delegation of business boosters informed us that such publicity would do the community no good and that they frowned on our casual treatment of the matter.

Several of the usual epidemics of children's diseases have brought serious appeals for hush-hush reporting. News of an epidemic would drive trade away. We must minimize the facts.

Our city has had its waves of youth delinquency, as have all small towns and large cities. It has been pointed out to us frequently that publicity about such things might be unduly disturbing to the community and give us a bad reputation thruout the state.

With a little effort we could recall more times when good people were of the opinion that factual reporting would not be in the best interests of the community. Based on a few years of experience with these problems we are satisfied that the best newspaper policy in dealing with, shall we say, embarrassing problems, is to be entirely truthful. We are satisfied that is both the best policy for a newspaper and in the best interests of the community it serves.

And we think that what is good news policy in the home community is also good policy in dealing with national and international problems. There are times when it would be easier and more pleasant to color the facts but for the long pull the safest course to follow is to reveal the bad news with the good.

Take Half A Loaf

Alfred Stedman, farm editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, finds the self-help bill introduced by Senator Humphrey, and others, for the dairy industry, has serious shortcomings in terms of the needs of Lake States dairymen. He points out that it does not specifically give our producers access to the highly protected markets of the East.

Mr. Stedman is a capable reporter and well informed in the field of marketing about which he writes. We do not share his concern however, about the shortcomings of the proposed plan as provided for in the present bill. It is a compromise measure. The organizations and individuals sponsoring it admit imperfections. Their hope is that it will be a worthwhile first step toward an improved marketing operation controlled by the industry itself.

Some of the barriers that have been set up to restrain the importation of milk into protected areas are not easily rationalized with our conceptions of a free exchange of goods and services. High sanitary and quality requirements are understandable, providing they are not discriminatory. But there is no proper place in the American system for regulations that establish unreasonable restraints to trade. To this general principle we will all subscribe in theory.

But in drafting legislation that will be acceptable to the many conflicting interests of the dairy industry we are dealing with facts as well as with theories, and we know from experience in bargaining that those who may lose a present advantage by going along with a change are not going to be enthusiastic for reform, even though the change is right and proper.

We therefore suggest that it might prove to be wise to settle for a half a loaf at this time. Important thing now, as we see it, is that the various segments of the industry recognize each other and their common interests in a really serious problem. At best, we are not going to find a perfect solution for our industry problem, with its many conflicting interests, in one session.

Many Common Interests

Many years ago the government saw fit to regulate the operation of the railroads. There no doubt was good cause for such action at that time. The railroads were a transportation monopoly. There had been many abuses of power.

Now railroad management and organized railroad labor are making a joint appeal for a relaxation of the controls that were necessary for the welfare of the country many years ago. The request is reasonable and the need for an easing of the restraints is urgent.

The railroads no longer are a transportation monopoly. As a matter of fact they now are fighting a losing battle with other forms of transportation. Trucks, buses, barges, pipelines and airplanes have cut in heavily on revenues as competitors in transportation service.

Besides being strictly regulated, and often unable to adopt reasonable measures to meet competition, too often the railroads must compete with transportation agencies that enjoy the advantages of public assistance in various forms. In some instances there are direct subsidies. Highway and waterways are maintained and improved at public expense.

In considering this overall transportation problem we must recognize the fact that our railroads are basic in our transportation system. Not in the foreseeable future will trucks and buses and barges and planes be able to replace the service now performed by the railroads. The cost of maintaining most of our present vast network of railroads must therefore be accepted as an inescapable first cost to our economy.

Trucks and buses and barges and planes and pipelines are all here to stay. There is a place for all of them, and each should be given a fair opportunity to prove its worth. But the railroads should also be given a fair chance to compete with these other services. Competition should be encouraged. By competitive procedures these services will gradually be limited to the field for which they are best suited, and they will supplement each other in the public interest.

Many of the railroads now are in serious financial difficulties. Not all of these difficulties can be attributed to government controls. Much of the problem is due to operating conditions that can be improved only by the joint effort of management and labor.

Management and labor will always have conflicting interest but they also will have important interests in common. It is encouraging to know that they now are working together in seeking a solution for one of the many difficulties in which they have a common interest.

Sen. Humphrey's Newsletter

Consumer's Stake

If as much space were given in the city press and national periodicals about how American farmers are protecting consumers as is devoted to attacks on supposed subsidies to farmers, there would be far less misunderstanding about the need for a strong agriculture. If farm commodity prices had gone up at the same rate as other cost-of-living items since the Korean War, food and clothing would now be about 15% higher. Food and clothing during the 1951-57 period would have cost consumers many billions more than they actually paid. For consumers and taxpayers—other than farmers—this has been a fabulous bargain.

City Folks Benefit

Farmers, in effect, have been, and still are, subsidizing consumers of America. They are taking the losses, so consumers can have a bargain. Food absorbs a smaller proportion of the consumer's spendable dollar than anywhere else in the world. Eight minutes of labor will buy a quart of milk. In France it requires sixteen minutes, and in Russia forthy-two minutes. In view of these facts, it appears rather ungrateful for city residents and consumers to object to [illegible] economic justice for the producers making such food bargains possible—and rather unwise, in their own interest, for them to oppose policies encouraging abundance that assure reasonable prices. What consumers don't seem to realize is that if agricultural supply was in complete balance with demand, and the normal "supply and demand" price relationship so many city people advocate was in effect, prices to consumers would be at least a third higher—according to testimony of Department of Agriculture officials. The real issue involved in the farm policy dispute is whether we turn to policies of deliberately encouraged scarcity to force prices up, or whether we rely on income protection devices for the producer in order to assure abundance at reasonable prices to the consumer, in the public's interest.

Need The Facts

Of course, it isn't the consumers who are to blame for so much misunderstanding. They are not getting the real story. Probably most food consumers are not greatly interested in farm troubles, but the vast majority of them are fair-minded individuals when they know the facts. What they have been getting are half-truths and distortions. Here are some of the facts:

*Prices received by farmers have gone down 20% since 1951.

*Farmers' operating costs have gone up 15% since 1951.

*Weekly factory wage rates have gone up 23% since 1951—and income from interest rates has gone up 61% and dividends from industry have gone up 37%.

*Per capita farm income is about half the urban rate—even with reasonable allowances for farm produced and consumed items to make figures really meaningful. And this is in spite of the far heavier investment required in farming than in the average urban resident's means of making a livelihood.

from the UNITED STATES SENATE

Senator Edward J. Thye today presented a resolution to the United States Senate advancing plans to place a statue of Minnesota's Maria L. Sanford in Statuary Hall of the U. S. Capitol.

Minnesota is entitled to be represented by two statues in the famed Statuary Hall. At present, the State's first position is occupied by the statue of Henry Mower Rice, early Minnesota Senator who was mainly responsible for the enabling act which made Minnesota a State.

The Thye Resolution would authorize the Minnesota Statehood Centennial Commission to place the statue of Maria L. Sanford in the rotunda of the Capitol and to hold dedication ceremonies there on November 12. Dr. J. L. Morrill, President of the University of Minnesota, is scheduled to make the dedicatory address.

The statue would be accepted, in the words of the resolution, "in the name of the United States, (and that) thanks of the Congress be tendered said State for the contribution of one of its most eminent citizens, illustrious for her leadership in education." Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) joined in presenting the resolution.

Senator Thye called the selection of Maria Sanford, "most fitting, and especially appropriate in the year of Minnesota's Centennial. Both Maria Sanford and Henry Mower Rice were pioneers in the real sense of the word. Senator Rice brought Minnesota to Statehood, while Maria Sanford brought a sense of urgency to early Minnesota education. She was one of the moving spirits in the early years of the University of Minnesota—a woman, who at eighty-odd years, never really retired from teaching and leading by her example. She was, truly, Minnesota's apostle of culture and patriotism—one of the best-loved women in Minnesota history."

4,000 Volunteers Aid in Firearms Program

Lee Kuluvar, firearms safety training coordinator took time out of a busy day to slute the state's nearly 4,000 volunteers who are giving so generously of their time and effort training Minnesota youths in the safe handling of firearms.

During the year and one half the program has been in effect the entire operation has been carried on by volunteer workers, Kuluvar said. These volunteer instructors have contributed 100,000 hours instructing 40,000 students who thus far have received more than 400,000 hours of training and fired over 750,000 rounds of ammunition during their training without a major mishap.

If these instructors had been paid for their time the cost would have been prohibitive. "It's hats off," Kuluvar said, "to the volunteers of each community who are making the gun safety program possible."

The entire program, thanks to the volunteer instructors, is operating at a mimum cost to the taxpayer and gives a tremendous promise for the future of the sport of hunting and shooting.

In addition to safe gun handling practices, attitudes and philosophy of firearms use, sportsman - landowner relationships, conservation practices, game laws and courtesy are taught in order to develop a safe hunter for the future, Kuluvar explained.

"With the increased participation in hunting and shooting, positive action was necessary to continue the sport on a high plane. The program is needed the sportsman's answer to many of the current problems that will multiply in the future," Kuluver said.

He also pointed out that this is the time of the year when training is in high gear and that now is the time for youths to join classes and qualify for a license next fall. This is also the time of the year that presents a danger time in the use of firearms. The first nice springlike day to come means the stored firearm will be dusted off for a little "plinking". This is a wonderful form of recreation this time of year but it is the parents responsibility to see that the "plinking" is done in a safe and sane manner.

Kuluvar reminded parents that the law requires youngsters to be supervised while handling a firearm, by parent or guardian until they are 14 (if they have earned their firearms safety certificate) and until they are 16 if they haven't.

Authorities from 'U' M. Extension Division and NDAC Scheduled Speakers

The latest information on all phases of the production, handling, and transportation of potatoes will be discussed at a "Potato Growers Day" set for Grand Forks, Friday, March 7, at the New Armory, according to Lyle W. Currie, executive secretary of the Red River Valley Potato Growers association.

The program is planned to give potato growers of the Red River Valley the latest available information on scab and scurf, new varieties, soil compaction, hollow heart, disease and insect controls, storage, transportation, fertility practices, harvesters, etc.

Research and extension personnel who will attend and take part in the programs are: University of Minnesota: Leon Snyder, Allan Peterson, Florian Lauer, Robert Nylund, Carl O. Eide, O. C. Turnquist, George Blake, and A. C. Caldwell; from the North Dakota Agricultural College: E. P. Lana, E. B. Norum, Robert Johansen, H. W. Herbison, and Nick Sandar; and from the Potato Research Center: Richard Claycomb, A. H. Glaves, George French, Herb Findlen, John Bansen and Leonard Pawski.

The program will feature many short concise reports on the various subjects. All added feature will be the opportunity for conferences with the various speakers on individual problems. Conference rooms will be provided so that the research personnel may be consulted at any time during the day.

Today all potato areas and growers are faced with producing for a highly competitive market with more and more emphasis on a quality product that meets the continued demands of the consumer. The program is designed to give the growers of the Valley the latest information available which may help in the production and storage of a crop that will result in the highest quality of acceptable potatoes.

The "Potato Day Program" is sponsored by the Red River Valley Potato Growers association.

SOURCES OF TAX REVENUE

In 1945 Minnesota general property taxes accounted for 43.7% of governmental income at all levels; in '54, the last year analyzed, this ratio had dropped to 39.8. In the latter year the share of the State and of "other agencies" was up a little, while municipalities, school districts and counties derived relatively less revenue from property taxes than in '45—although in every instance the total during ten years more than doubled. Largest single souce of state revenue is the income tax, 22.4%; followed by gas, 14.3%; motor vehicle 9.7%; iron ore royalty and occupation taxes 6% (a relative drop from an earlier high of 10.8%); gross earnings taxes, next in line, are also down a bit, relatively, followed by alcholic beverages, general property, cigarette, and "all other" taxes.

Additional remodeling was carried out in the front part of the store, from where this picture was taken looking toward the rear.

N.W. Bell Phone Co. Reports for 1957

Company Spent $86,000,000 on Construction in Year

Continued growth in telephone service, higher operating and construction costs and a drop in level of earnings were revealed in the annual report of Northwestern Bell Telephone company released today by President A. F. Jacobson.

The company spent $90 million on telephone construction in 1957. According to the report this building program, largest in Northwestern Bell's history, was required to meet service growth, make plant replacements and put to use some of the service improvements being made available by telephone research.

Investment in plant required to provide the company's services went up $66 million during the year to reach a total of $658 million at year's end. Earnings on average plant investment for the year were at the rate of 4.84 per cent—down from 5.12 per cent for 1956.

Taxes were a big factor in 1957 telephone operation including federal excise and state income taxes collected from customers by the company. The average total tax per telephone was $29.00 for the year, the report said. The federal excise tax of 10 per cent on telephone service amounted to an average of $9.74 annually for every telephone.

According to the report, the rate of Northwestern Bell's earnings is running about a third lower than the average rate of earnings of 57 other large companies operating in the five-state region.

Northwestern Bell serves a population of nearly five million people through 655 exchanges in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota. A growth of 95,000 telephones last year brought to 2,125,000 the total number of phones served by Northwestern Bell. Both local and long distance calls increased substantially compared with 1956.

State GOP Vote for Endorsement

Action Taken Saturday at State Convention

Minnesota Republican party convention delegates Saturday changed their state consitution to permit pre-primary endorsement of statewide candidates who receive 40 per cent of a convention vote as state, district or county levels.

The convention also hurried through a commendation of Sen. Edward J. Thye after its resolutions committee had decided against taking up the controversial subject of Agriculture Secretary Benson.

Up to now, the GOP constitution has permitted the blessing of candidates before primary elections, but only by a majority vote. The provision has seldom been employed in recent years because many Republicans have looked upon it as carrying a taint of "bossism."

Reduction of the vote required for pre-primary endorsement to 40 per cent—reasoned a committee headed by John Mooty, Edina—eliminated that element, because it would permit a convention to certify two "good" prospects to the voters if it wished.

State 4-H Leader Praises Parents for Cooperation

Leonard Harkness Says Parents Play Vital Role in Developing Program

Parents of 4-H club members in Pennington county deserve special recognition for the vital part they have played in contributing time, effort and resources in supporting a youth program of learning by doing, says Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota.

National 4-H Week, March 1-8 is an appropriate time to salute parents of their important contribution to the success of the 4-H program, he declares. Many of these parents are volunteering their services as adult leaders of their local clubs, giving in time alone what amounts to a total of 16 days a year or more to their club activities. Besides spending time in training for their work, the volunteer leaders help members plan their programs, attend regular club meetings, visit homes of members to assist with demonstrations and accompany members to club events outside the community.

Scores of parents who are not local leaders also play a vital role in the success of the 4-H program through the encouragement and advice they give to their sons and daughters. The most successful 4-H members, County Agent Paul Steimaschuk points out, have the interest and the support of their parents.

A special word of praise, too, during National 4-H Week, could go to many local business people—many of them also 4-H parents—who give invaluable financial support to 4-H work and many of its activities, County Agent Paul Steimaschuk says.

Northern States Power Tax Bill Is over $37 Million

Northern States Power Company, which pays the second highest property tax in the state of Minnesota, paid Pennington county $992 in taxes this year.

"Slightly more than 25 cents out of every dollar paid to NSP goes toward taxes," said C. B. Ayars, manager of NSP's Grand Forks division.

Northern States Power Company's total tax payment this year will amount to nearly $37,200,000. This is an increase of 6.5 per cent over taxes paid last year.

Not My will ...but Thine!

Christianity does not offer escape from duty.

If it did, most of us would never find a seat in Church. The lazy and indifferent would be standing in line hours before we arrived.

Christianity does offer strength of purpose—the spiritual energy that transforms duty into achievement!

God's purpose and the courage to fulfill it—these the Church reveals and imparts.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .

Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should [illegible] For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Bookmobile On Display In County March 5 and 7

A bookmobile bearing a typical collection of books will be exhibited in Pennington county Wednesday and Friday, March 5 and 7, by Miss Emily Mayne of the library extension division of the state department of education.

The bookmobile would be a feature of the multi-county library system being sought for Pennington and other counties in this section of the state as a means of bringing library service to outlying areas. Supt. David M. Brown of Goodridge heads the organization which is seeking to interest the various county boards in the proposal.

Miss Mayne gave an explanatory talk Sunday over Station KTRF, and additional information can be obtained from her during the visits of the bookmobile, Brown stated.

On Wednesday morning the bookmobile will visit four rural schools two miles south of Highlanding, 1½ miles east, four south and four east, starting at 10 o'clock, while from 1:30 p.m. thru the evening it will be stationed at Goodridge, according to C. E. Appleman, county chairman of the campaign.

The bookmobile will be on display in front of the Falls Theatre in Thief River Falls on Friday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. It will be stationed in St. Hilaire Friday morning at 9 a.m., and again that evening starting at 7:30 in connection with a meeting of the St. Hilaire PTA unit.

Joan Olson and James Battleson Wed February 15

Miss Joan Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arne Olson of Oklee and James Battleson, son of Mr. E. O. Battleson of this city, were united in marriage Saturday evening, February 15 at the Zion Lutheran church. Rev. Walter Pedersen performed the double ring ceremony before an altar graced with baskets of roses, carnations and ferns.

Mrs. Reuben Lockrem presided at the organ for the traditional nuptial music and also accompanied Mrs. Walter Pedersen who sang "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple knelt at the altar.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was attired in a floor length gown of nylon net and lace over taffeta featuring a scoop neckline with tiny buttons extending down the back and long sleeves which came to a point over the wrists. Her fingertip veil of illusion net was held in place by a crown of crystal beads and her jewelry consisted of a single strand pearl necklace and earrings, a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. The tradition of "something old, new, borrowed, and blue" was also carried out.

Mrs. Milton Battleson, sister-in-law of the groom, was the matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of aqua and carried a shower bouquet of white and pink carnations. Her pearl necklace and earring set was a gift from the bride.

Attending the groom as best man was Milton Battleson of this city, brother of the groom. Serving as ushers were Dick Battleson of Minneapolis, brother of the groom, and Ben Olson of Oklee, uncle of the bride. The men in the bridal party wore dark business suits with white carnations boutonnieres.

Mrs. Olson, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue suit with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of white and red roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlors. The bridal table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake which was baked by Mrs. Olaf Olson. Mrs. Olson cut and served the cake while Mrs. Ben Olson poured.

For going away Mrs. Battleson chose a brown suit with matching accessories.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Battleson, Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. C. Engel of Minneapolis.

Centering around the campaign theme, "Find the Strength for your life—Worship together This Week", Dr. Norquist said the Jaycees feel that "when a family attends worship together, they are in a real sense safeguarding their future happiness; for the family that walks side by side on God's day, walks side by side every day along a path that will stand as the foundation for the whole of life."

Dr. Norquist added "Religion in American Life" program will be reported in hundreds of communities across the nation throughout the year.

Families Spend Smaller Income Percentage on Drugs in Recent Years

Do you know that the average family is now spending a smaller percentage of their income for drugs than was necessary in past years? Despite the fact that some individual prescriptions containing the new antibiotics, etc. cost more, they actually help you to save money.

[illegible] may surprise you. The American people now have a [illegible] llon dollars annually, of which they spend the following:

11.9 billion dollars on Recreation
8.8 billion dollars on Alcoholic Beverages
5.3 billion dollars on Tobacco
2.8 billion dollars on Physicians' Care
2.6 billion dollars on Hospital Care
AND
1.6 billion dollars on Drugs

There are good reasons why the costs of medical care are proportionately so low. We now have specific drugs that can be more often depended upon to accomplish a definite result. They not only save more lives, but help you to get well so much more quickly that your physician makes fewer calls and you spend less time in bed.

MODERN PRESCRIPTIONS save more lives and cost less per illness than ever before.

Beaver Pelts Taken on Mud Lake Refuge Last Year

Left to right, John Isaacson and Oscar Johnson, Middle River with Minnesota state Game Warden Carl Sundstrom display 11 beaver pelts taken from the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge in April, 1957. Seven of these pelts are "blankets" measuring more than 32 inches in diameter. Isaacson trapped 20 beaver at Mud Lake Refuge last year. Seals costing $1.00 each are required by state law. Blue Cross Benefits Hit Peak During 1957

Addressing the annual meeting of the Minnesota Hospital Service association (Blue Cross) held in St. Paul, February 20, Richard T. Crist, president announced that Blue Cross payments to hospitals during 1957 for care of members reached an all-time high of $28,632,405.

Speaking to representatives of 172 Blue Cross participating hospitals in the state, Crist said that, "Based on total income of $29,196,231 the highest figure in the history of Minnesota Blue Cross, the benefits paid figure amounted to 98.1 per cent of income, approximately a 22 per cent increase over total benefits provided for Blue Cross subscribers in 1956."

Crist pointed out that there were several contributing reasons for the new high in benefits provided by the Minnesota Blue Cross plan during 1957. One of the most significant reason was the abnormal upward trend during the last quarter of 1957 of respiratory cases. This upward swing was due largely to an increase of the number of Blue Cross patients hospitalized for medical care such as influenza, pneumonia and other respiratory infections. Total benefits provided to hospitals for care of Blue Cross subscribers in the general category of upper respiratory diseases showed a 40.7 per cent increase over 1956.

Although there was a high [illegible] of upper respiratory diseases, accident cases sent more Blue Cross [illegible] 1957 than any other illness or disease. Over 31,000 members received Blue Cross benefits for the treatment of accidental injuries. Blue Cross benefits provided to participant subscribers hospitalized for accidental injuries amounted to a 15.5 per cent increase over 1956.

Crist went on to point out that, "4.9 per cent of the subscriber's dollar was expended for administrative expenses. This was an all time low . . . the previous low of 5.2 per cent having been experienced in 1956."

As of December 31, 1957, there was a total of 1,137,902 participant subscribers enrolled in the Minnesota Blue Cross Plan. This represented a 2.9 per cent increase in the number of participant subscribers as of December 31, 1956.

Beaver Trapping to Start Soon on Mud Lake Refuge

Applications Now Being Taken, Says Herbert Dill; 94 Removed in Past Year

Applications are now being taken from trappers interested in trapping beaver at the Mud Lake national wildlife refuge this spring, according to Herbert H. Dill, refuge manager.

The annual harvest of beaver at the refuge is intended to remove the surplus animals. Also, the removal of beaver from lands near the refuge boundary is important to prevent their damming drainage ditches.

Last year, eight trappers took a total of 88 beaver; six beaver were taken by refuge personnel making a grand total of 94 beaver removed from the area. Of the 88 trapped, 30 were of "blanket" size, or more than 32 inches wide when stretched. Eighty four were sold for a total of $693.00 or an average of $8.25 each. Ten pelts were not sold.

Last year's trappers were: John Isaacson, Stanley Cwikla, Oliver Grondahl, and Eddie Henning, Middle River; Virgil Erickson, Rude Christenson, Carl Burrell and Eldon Swenson, Holt.

Variety of Weather in Area in February

February, 1958, was a curious month.

It was a month which saw disastrous freezes hit the southland all the way down to the Florida peninsula, ruining fruit and vegetable crops and causing large loss of livestock.

Heavy snows stunned the eastern U.S. and reached south to where snow seldom ever is seen—and unheard of quantities of the stuff fell there, too.

In the upper midwest February also provided some quirks to ponder. For instance it was the coldest month so far this winter, as well as the driest—only traces of precipitation fell.

The mercury dropped below zero for 20 consecutive days the past month, from the first through the twentieth. There were six days when the temperature didn't rise higher than zero at all. Feb. 16 was the coldest day of the winter when a high of —6 and a low of —28 was recorded.

Then, after Feb. 20 a most unusual thing took place. The mercury started a steady climb that day and before it stopped a new February temperature record had been set in this area with 58 above zero reached on the 25th. There was an 86-degree temperature variation during the month, which is probably some sort of a record, also.

Here are the February temperature figures, as provided by KTRF:

Explain Deductions for Gifts, Interest

(This is the seventh in a series of articles on income tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association, public relations committee.)

You may deduct contributions made by you during 1957 for religious, charitable, literary, educational, or scientific purposes. Gifts to churches, community chests, medical research groups, and schools are most commonly deducted. You cannot deduct contributions to needy relatives or other individuals, nor can you deduct gifts to social clubs, labor unions, or chambers of commerce. On your federal return you may not deduct contributions to political organizations or candidates, but on your Minnesota return you may deduct such gifts up to $100. To be deductible your contribution must have been paid, a pledge is not enough.

There are certain percentage limitations on the amount of contributions which you may deduct. If your contributions are in excess of 20% of your adjusted gross income on your federal return, you should read carefully the instructions to determine whether you may deduct a greater percentage. Even more restrictive limitations are contained in your Minnesota return, since the deduction cannot be in excess of 20% of your taxable net income before your deduction for contributions.

Contributions need not be in cash to be deductible. Donations of property such as clothing, toys, trading stamps, and the like should be included with your cash deductions at their fair market value. In addition you may deduct any expenses incurred by you in serving a charitable organization such as travel or transportation expenses. Many contributions of this type are overlooked.

You should have little difficulty in determining your deductible interest expense. A large deduction for many taxpayers is interest paid on real estate mortgage or contract for deed. Generally the amount of interest paid in 1957 will be shown in the payment book or the lender will supply the information to you if no payment book is used. You may also deduct interest paid on property purchased under conditional sales contracts even though the interest element is not separated from other carrying charges. In such cases you should determine your average monthly balance during the year and multiply this amount by 6% to compute your allowable deduction. If you pay special assessment, while the special assessment is not deductible if it tends to increase the value of your property, the interest charge may be deducted. Your County Auditor should be able to inform you of the amount of the interest charge.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

We wonder what historians of the future, looking back at the decade and a half following World War II, will have to say about that period.

Undoubtedly this period of our history has produced the most radical changes in the entire history of mankind. It was in this period that man broke the sound barrier and conquered gravity to the extent of placing artificial satellites in space.

Even more important though, was the changing pattern of the American way of life. Farm mechanization, although it started in the 1920's, became general after the war, improvement in the transportation field produced radical changes (the change from train to air travel, for instance) and we changed ever increasingly from a rural to an urban society.

Probably very few of us would want to go back to the good old days. In most of our minds the so-called "good old days" happened to be the Roaring Twenties and the unsettled Thirties, the days of prohibition and the big depression.

But there are memories of better things.

The diesel locomotive is more economical to operate, so railroad men tell us. Just the same the blare of an air horn, to me, doesn't compare with the music of an old Mallet's steam whistle as she snaked her string of cars through the valleys of southwest Virginia where I was raised.

We kids used to have more fun damming a small creek for swimming facilities than we ever could merely by walking a few blocks to a concrete pool.

We never had to go so far to have fun that a bicycle wasn't more than enough transportation. A high-school student who owned a car in those days was almost non-existent and the student whose dad would let him have the family car on a week-day was almost as rare.

(By the way—have you tried to drive around town much lately when the kids over at Lincoln High School are let out at noon? Or, have you tried to find parking space near the school on a school day? Those cars all around the school don't belong to the teachers because there aren't that many teachers!)

Some of us used to hunt with only a dog and a shillalegh on sunny fall afternoons. We'd roust out a cottontail and sooner or later the dog would bring the rabbit by us close enough for us to club him or throw the stick and clobber him.

One day the dog was in hot pursuit of a rabbit around and around a teepee-shaped stack of poles. Their circle was tight and we stood outside trying to distinguish between dog and rabbit. Finally one of the boys what he thought was a chance to wallop B'rer Rabbit and let fly with a mighty blow.

The dog was never the same after that. SO LONG!

Odd Fellows Head on Tour of State

The sovereign grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, James M. Elliott, Alliance, Ohio, will visit five cities in Minnesota during March to meet with officers and members of local Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges.

The meetings will be conducted on a "school of instruction" basis, according to James S. Lombard, St. Paul, publicity chairman, with information regarding the Order and the Sovereign Grand Master's program on the agenda in each case.

The meetings will include one at Detroit Lakes, March 20, Odd Fellows Hall, Roy G. Genneary, chairman.

CHAPTER TEN

Heir to Colonies, Kings

★ If Methuselah, during just 250 of his many years, could have maintained a huge estate around the headwaters of the Mississippi river, at different times he would have come under the rule of four nations, nine territories, and eventually, one state, Minnesota.

During some periods he might have been a bit mixed up, trying to serve two or three governments at one time. During other periods he would have been his own boss completely, under no government whatever.

To such an extent did the land of Minnesota change hands before statehood in 1858.

Three Sections

When explorers first entered Minnesota land they travelled along the great waterways. Two of these waterways, particularly, formed natural boundaries for national and territorial divisions. The first of these was the Mississippi river itself, way up to its headwaters. The second was the route of the voyageurs across the top of the state from Pigeon river over to Lake of the Woods. If a line is drawn straight south of Lake of the Woods to the headwaters of the Mississippi, the state is divided into the three sections passed from rule to rule over the years.

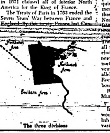
Under Four Flags

Old Methuselah would have started his life in Minnesota land as a Virginian. In its charter of 1609 the Colony of Virginia was generously granted all the land between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

However, Methuselah soon turned French. The Sieur de St. Lusson, in a picturesque ceremony at Sault Ste. Marie, in 1671 claimed all of interior North America for the King of France.

The Treaty of Paris in 1763 ended the Seven Years' War between France and England. By this treaty France lost Canada to the British. Thus, the northeast and northwest sections of the state were under English rule until after the Revolutionary War. The northeast portion was part of the Province of Quebec from 1774 until 1783.

France had ceded to Spain its land west of the Mississippi in 1762. The south-central section of the state remained under Spanish rule until 1800 when it was ceded back to the French again by the secret Treaty of San Ildefonso.



The three divisions

CHANGES OF GOVERNMENT IN MINNESOTA

Year	Northeast Area	Northwest Area	Southern Area
1671	France	France	France
1762	France	France	Spain
1763	England	England	Spain
1783	United States (Virginia)	England	Spain
1784	U.S.A. (Unorganized)	England	Spain
1787	Northwest Territory	England	Spain
1800	Indiana Territory	England	France
1803	Indiana Territory	England	U.S.A. (Louisiana Dist.)
1805	Indiana Territory	England	Louisiana Territory
1809	Illinois Territory	England	Louisiana Territory
1812	Illinois Territory	England	Missouri Territory
1818	Michigan Territory	U.S.A. (Missouri Terr.)	Missouri Territory
1821	Michigan Territory	Unorganized Territory	Unorganized Territory
1834	Michigan Territory	Michigan Territory	Michigan Territory
1836	Wisconsin Territory	Wisconsin Territory	Wisconsin Territory
1838	Wisconsin Territory	Iowa Territory	Iowa Territory
1846	Wisconsin Territory	Unorganized Terr.	Unorganized Territory
1848	Unorganized Territory	Unorganized Terr.	Unorganized Territory
1849	Minnesota Territory	Minnesota Territory	Minnesota Territory
1858	State of Minnesota	State of Minnesota	State of Minnesota

Then the United States entered the picture. The northeast section was relinquished by Virginia to the federal government in 1784, remained unorganized for three years and then was known as the Northwest Territory until 1800. In the famous Louisiana Purchase of 1803, [illegible] continue the European Wars, President Thomas Jefferson acquired for the U.S. all the land west of the Mississippi, including the south-central portion of Minnesota. England maintained control of the northwest part of the state until the Convention of 1818 established the 49th parallel from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky Mountains as the Canadian-U.S. boundary.

Between 1784 and 1818, then, all of Minnesota's land became American.

Territorial Changes

In 1800 Methuselah's huge estate would have been part Hoosier, part English and part French. By 1849, after the various territories had been assembled several times, the estate would have been pure Minnesota territory.

The northeast sector remained Hoosier until 1809 when it was included by act of Congress in Illinois territory. It was under Illini guidance until 1818, part of Michigan territory until 1836, part of Wisconsin territory until 1848, unorganized for a year, and finally part of Minnesota territory.

After England gave up the Red river valley in 1818, the northwest and south-central sections of the state became Missouri territory for three years, were unorganized for thirteen years, part of Michigan territory from 1834 to 1836, part of Wisconsin territory from 1836 to 1838, part of Iowa territory from 1838 to 1840, unorganized for another three years, and finally pure Minnesota territory in 1849.

During these years Minnesota land was entirely, for two separate periods, under the government of a single territory, from 1834 to 1836 under Michigan, and from 1836 to 1838 under Wisconsin.

The Northwest Angle

Many often wonder why Minnesota [illegible] which is the northernmost point in the [illegible] any other land in the country.

When the boundary between Canada and the United States was set in 1783, the line followed the old voyageurs' canoe trails west from Lake Superior to "the most northwesterly point" of Lake of the Woods. From there the line was to follow "a due west course to the river Mississippi."

However, it's difficult to go west from Lake of the Woods to the Mississippi. When the 49th parallel was established as a boundary in 1818 a line was run due south from the northwesterly point of Lake of the Woods to the parallel.

This chapter of the Minnesota Centennial story is sponsored by the

MOSTUE'S GIFTS AND FLOWERS

It was in February of 1911 that George Mostue became the owner of the Thief River Greenhouses, established by Martin Bothun in 1910. So while the florist business now operated by the Mostues is one of the oldest businesses in the community, the Mostue name in this connection is of comparatively recent origin.

But George Mostue's father came to Minnesota when the state was only 12 years old, and George himself can remember the boat ride up the river to Highlanding on the steamer Dan Patch, when his parents homesteaded in Deer Park township in 1901. That background qualifies George to the select society of Minnesota Pioneers in the state's centennial celebration.

Besides being a homesteader, George's father was a full time country school teacher and a part time preacher. When Pennington county was organized in 1910 Mr. Mostue was elected county superintendent of schools, an office which he held through two terms.

Prior to his going into business for himself George Mostue travelled for Gamble Robinson, wholesale grocers, in which capacity he became well acquainted thruout northwestern Minnesota. These old relationships have since become valuable to him in the establishment of agencies for his present business.

His purchase of the Thief River Greenhouses gave him possession of two greenhouses and a residence on north Arnold Ave., and also the downtown floral shop at 315 North Main Ave. in the building now occupied by the Sjoberg Appliance. The greenhouses were his real interest, providing him with an opportunity to make a business of some of the things he had enjoyed doing as a hobby.

In 1941 he bought the flower shop business of the Larson Company. Manager of the floral business of the Larson Co. was Miss Inez Anderson of Holt. She has an art major at Concordia college to her credit and is a graduate of the Bright's School of Floral Designing of Chicago. Miss Anderson became manager of the Mostue flower shop and in 1945 she became Mrs. Mostue.

From that time on, according to Mr. George himself, the business started doing pretty well, and soon larger quarters were needed. In the Fall of '45 the business was moved to its present location on Second Street and an interesting line of gift novelties was added. That is when the present name was adopted, "Mostue's Gifts and Flowers", and the addition of gift novelties, including many importations, has added much to the interest of the flower shop for shoppers.

Five years ago the greenhouse operation was sold to Aldin Sampson, a graduate of the University of Minnesota School of Floriculture, and the Mostues have concentrated on the floral service and retail operation. In flowers Mostue's serves a large area in Northwestern Minnesota, with representatives in many communities.

The flower business is an around-the-clock business, and there are times when service is needed on short notice. The shop has regular hours, as has any other business, but the service is just as available as the telephone. Regular employee as a designer is Ruth Shelveland, a graduate of the Denver School of Floral Design.

The service is not limited to the local field. Flowers are easily dispatched by telegraph it seems, and Mostue's can provide prompt service thruout the free world.

The Mostues have two sons, Brian and Brooks, who share their father's interest in trap shooting, hunting, fishing and golf.

From The Canton Independent-Sentinel, Canton, Pa.: Interesting is the announcement that John D. Hertz, who rose from a penniless immigrant Hungarian boy to an American millionaire, is allocating most of his fortune, which may run in to "many millions of dollars" to a scholarship fund for training young men and women as mechanical and electrical engineers.

Mr. Hertz, who is now 78 years old and a partner in Lehman Brothers, investment bankers, became disturbed by newspaper reports that the Russians "are turning out 100 per cent more engineers than we are." To offset Soviet advances in training engineers, he has made immediately available enough money to subsidize more than 100 students a year. The trustees of the fund, which will be called "The Fanny K. and John D. Hertz Engineering Scholarship Fund," will have full discretion in the administration of the money.

However, Mr. Hertz has made the following stipulations:

1. There must be no discrimination in giving aid with regard to race, religion or sex.

2. All those receiving aid must take a course in American history.

3. They must pledge themselves to serve the United States on request of the Government in time of national emergency.

In explaining the aims of the fund, Mr. Hertz said: "I simply want to contribute in the interest of defense the fortune the United States has allowed me to accumulate." And, later, he said he was interested in "the poor boy or girl who really wants an education but can't get it."

From the Catskill Mountain star, Saugerties, N. Y.: The great American cities are booming in population. But millions of people still prefer the smaller towns, the grass-roots feel and atmosphere, the way of life that goes with the countryside.

Recently an employment agency ran a three-line ad in the New York Times offering jobs on country weekly newspapers. From that single, tiny notice more than 80 replies were received. This caused the American Press to say that ". . . there may be many newspapermen who have gone to the cities to seek their fortunes and, after a few frustrating months or years, long to return to the country . . ."

4-H'er is Expert On Meat Animals

Donald Holte, 20, of Norman county, is a Minnesota 4-H'er who believes that livestock is both fun and fundamental to an all-round farm. Named 1957 state winner of the 4-H Meat Animal program, Holte received a smart pen and pencil set, the gift of Thos. E. Wilson, veteran donor of awards in the program.

Donald Holte

One Hampshire ewe—a Christmas gift—started young Holte's prize-winning 4-H Meat Animal project. Among his many awards are reserve champion barrow, champion gilt and champion ewe at the Norman County Fair. He also claimed champion Hampshire ewe; reserve champion of all breeds; reserve champion beef, and a purple ribbon at the Minnesota State Fair.

This capable farmer was the county champion beef showman in 1956, and a champion sheep judge in 1957 at Crookston.

He has served as president of his local 4-H Club for three terms, and vice-president of the executive council. He received the 4-H Key award for achievement in 1954. [illegible] obligation is fulfilled.

March Arrives as Proverbial Lamb

Mercury Hits 42 Last Thursday, 37 Sunday

Spring crept a little closer this past weekend as February slipped away quietly to make room for March which breezed in like a lamb. Possibly a few area residents were sorry to see February go but a great many fingers are probably crossed concerning the March weather outlook.

The high for the period since Thursday was a balmy 42 that day. The low was a 13 Saturday as the aftermath of a storm which missed northwest Minnesota but left slippery roads in central Minnesota and deep drifts and countless breaks in telephone lines in central and west-[illegible] the false spring which started a week ago when temperature records were broken all over the upper midwest. The mercury had started another slow climb Saturday, however, and reached 37 above Sunday. The low today was 25. Only a trace of precipitation has been recorded since Thursday.

The KTRF forecast: mostly cloudy today, tonight and Tuesday. A few scattered snow flurries are possible for the area today. Northwesterly winds, 10 to 15 m.p.h. will prevail today and tonight.

Today's high is expected to be in the 28-36 bracket and the low tonight will range from 15-20.

Former Resident Sees 3 Inches of Snow in Louisiana

Typical of reports from former Thief River Falls residents now living in southern states is a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Perkins from their daughter, Mrs. Lionell Martin, now living in Lafayette, Louisiana. A three-inch fall of snow on the morning of February 15 was a thrilling experience for the people of that deep south community, including those who had a northern Minnesota background. And, according to Mrs. Martin, the snow lasted long enough to keep the children occupied all day making snowmen. Needless to say, February 15 became a school holiday.

The Clinchfield Railroad, in the Southeastern United States, though only 277 miles long, has 55 tunnels on its line. The longest is 7,854 feet; the shortest 179.

Prowlers Face Climax In Dist. 31 Play Tuesday

"The field for the 31st district high school basketball tournament which will be played on the court at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse on March 4th, and 5th, and 6th was completed on Thursday night in the sub-district tourney played at Fisher. Red Lake Falls, Goodridge, and Fisher gained berths in this week's district tourney, and will join Crookston, Warren, Thief River Falls, Climax, and East Grand Forks in competition for the district title.

In first round games scheduled for Tuesday, March 4th, the Crookston Pirates will open the tourney by meeting the Fisher Flyers, third place winners in the sub-district, at 2:30 p.m. At 4:00 p.m., coach Irv St. John's Warren Ponies will meet the sub-district champions, Red Lake Falls. Tuesday evening's program will find the defending district champion Thief River Falls Prowlers meeting the Climax Vikings, with tip-off time at 7:30 p.m. At 9:00 p.m., coach Curly Gasperlin's Goodridge Huskies will meet the bulky East Grand Forks Green Wave.

The district tourney semi-finals will be played on Wednesday night, with the winners of Tuesday afternoon's game playing at 7:30 p.m., and the winners of Tuesday night's game meeting at 9:00 p.m. The district championship finals are slated for 9:00 p.m. on Thursday night, with a consolation game being billed for 7:30 p.m.

In the championship round of the sub-district tournament at Fisher, the Red Lake Falls Eagles, on strong second half play, defeated the Goodridge Huskies, 55 to 51, for the sub-district title. The Fisher Flyers, in the consolation finals, defeated the Plummer Cardinals, 63 to 30, to win third place honors.

Money orders, if over $10, cost less purchased at a bank than from the Post Office. A $100 order costs 35 cents at the Post Office, while some banks sell orders up to $250 for as little as 15 cents.

Take Your Choice

In all the years that we have been following district high school basketball in these parts, this year's tournament, which starts on Tuesday afternoon at Grand Forks, appears to be the most competitive ever. Here's the roster of the teams that will take the floor in opening round play—Crookston, Fisher, Warren, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Climax, and Goodridge. There isn't an odds-on favorite in the lot, and, contrariwise, there isn't a real short-ender. Anyone of these teams are capable of winning the title without having the result labeled as an upset.

Perhaps a slight edge, due to the factors of "big school" prestige and tournament experience, can be given to the Crookston Pirates, the Thief River Falls Prowlers, and the East Grand Forks Green Wave. Coach Al Droen's Pirates finished in the number one spot in district conference play, and they are "seeded" as the tourney's number one team. No complaints about that "seeding", either.

Incidentally, the tournament that gets under way tomorrow, Tuesday, will be the 46th annual district tourney. High school basketball, on a district tournament basis, began back in 1913, when the state was divided into sixteen districts. The Fosston Greyhounds, district champions in 1913, and state champions that year, too, were the first winners in tournament play. Fosston, a cage power in those days, won seven of the first nine district tournaments played.

Off and on over the years there have been reshufflings of the basketball districts and regions, and Fosston, while still in this region, is no longer in our district.

Here's a list of the teams that have district titles, and the number of times that they have been winners: Thief River Falls, 17; Fosston, 7; Crookston, 7; East Grand Forks, 6; Warren, 5; Stephen, 1; McIntosh, 1; and Climax, 1.

Our hopes are that the Prowlers will, when they enter tournament play tomorrow, play as well as they did in losing to Moorhead here on Friday, night. If they can put together three games like that, well, the Prowlers will be district champions [illegible]

There's Life

We are having our troubles in burying the league championship hopes of the Viking Tavern team of the Tuesday night Business bowling league. A couple of weeks ago, when the boys were four games off the pace, we "wrote them off", and gave them credit for a great battle waged and lost. But they rallied and came back to within a pair of games of the lead.

Last Tuesday night they dropped a pair of games to the V.F.W. team and they are again four games behind the league-leading Elks Club team. But we won't bring the flowers and the sad songs yet, for there remain five weeks of league bowling, and there is apparently plenty of vigor in the young Vikings.

The Vikings have bolstered their lineup for the stretch run by adding righthander Gene Leslie to their roster. Gene is a bowler who can carry a 170-pin average quite comfortably. So with this team roster—Dean Anderson, Pat, Mike, and Elmer Poole, Fred Jensen, Leslie, Don Haugen, and Otto Myhrer—the tavern boys are still in the league, and in the race.

Looking over the remaining games on the schedule, it appears that the league championship will be decided on Tuesday night, March 25th, when, on an early shift match, the Elks Club will attempt to "out-talk" the Vikings in a crucial three-game series.

Another Record

In Concordia college's losing effort, 88 to 78, to Augsburg college, in an MIAC game played on the Minneapolis Armory court on Thursday night, Art Johnson, the Cobbler captain, accounted for exactly half of his team's total when he scored 39 points. Art's 39-point effort set a new Concordia college single game scoring record, breaking his old mark of 38 points.

Incidentally, Art is concluding his college career this year, and he will be only 21 years old when he graduates this spring. Judged by the improvement Art has shown this year, the former Prowler is just coming into his prime as a college player.

Local Quint Has Big Advantage in Height

Coach Joe Mikonich's Prowler 'B' team, taking advantage of their superior height in clearing the rebounds and scoring on tip-ins, defeated the Goodridge reserves 67 to 42, in a preliminary [illegible]

Dick Parnow led the Goodridge club with 12 points, while Bob Pearson and Steve Embury racked up 15 points apiece for the Prowler 'B' team.

Moorhead Edges Prowlers 66-57

The off-again on-again basketball Prowlers turned in an on-again performance Friday night on the local court and the result was that the highly-touted Moorhead Spuds from Region Six were extended to their utmost in order to register a 66 to 57 win.

On Tuesday night, with the tip-off slated for 7:30 p.m., the prowlers will open the defense of their 31st district title when they meet the Climax Vikings in a first round game of the tournament being played in the fieldhouse on the North Dakota U campus at Grand Forks.

Friday night's rugged contest between the Prowlers and the Moorhead Spuds was featured by sturdy play off the backboards and expert outside shooting.

In a first period that found both teams hitting well on their field goal tries, the lead alternated four times with the Spuds, mainly on Stan Stevenson's outside shots, gaining a one-point, 19 to 18 lead.

With 4:24 to play in the second period, Dave Rasmussen hit on a jump shot, giving the Prowlers a 26 to 24 lead; and when Phil Hanson, on Dale Lamski's foul added a pair of points, coach Adams' squad held a four-point lead, 28 to 24. Four free throws and a field goal by Jerry Lovell while the Prowlers were tallying field goals by Rasmussen and Mickey Hanson, gave the locals a slender 32 to 30 lead at the intermission.

Rasmussen's jump shot, from the lane, and Phil Hanson's free throw, boosted the Prowler lead to 35 to 30 in the opening minute of the second half. Stevenson, with a long shot and a right-handed hook, and Larry Johnson, on a jump shot and a rebound tip-in, gave Moorhead eight quick points and a 38 to 35 lead.

Mickey Hanson dropped a long shot into the east basket, and when Jim Bennes followed with another long shot, the Prowlers had regained the lead, 39 to 38. Johnson shoved in a Moorhead field goal, and Meredith Schultz scored on a drive-in, and the Spuds gained the lead they held during the balance of the game.

With Moorhead holding a 46 to 43 advantage, the two teams moved into the fourth period. With 3:09 remaining of the quarter, Moorhead held a 57 to 51 lead, but Mickey Hanson's jump shot, and Bennes' field goal from the lane, pared the Spuds' lead to two points, 57 to 55, with 2:20 to play. Stevenson notched a Moorhead free throw, but Mickey Hanson, who led the Prowler scorers with 17 points, found the net with a field goal, and the game was 58 to 57 for the Spuds. A pair of free throws by Larry Johnson, a field goal by Dale Lamski pulled coach Shockey Strand's teams out of danger, [illegible] victory.

The Prowlers were unfortunate in that three of their free throw points were "waved off" the scoreboard because of foul-line infractions.

Thieves Lose 10-1 in 1st Round State Hockey Tourney

Minneapolis Bungalows, National Champions, Win Easily Saturday Night

The powerful Minneapolis Bungalows, state and national senior hockey champions, defeated the local Thieves, 10 to 1, in a first round senior hockey tournament game played at the Minneapolis Arena on Saturday night.

The Bungalows, in their decisive win over coach Paul Bedard's Northwest Hockey league champions, were paced in their scoring by Bob Meredith and Bob Boeser, each of whom scored a pair of goals. Darryl Durgin averted a shutout by getting the lone goal for the Thieves.

In the other first round game played on Saturday night, the Taconite team of the Arrowhead league defeated the KSTP team of St. Paul, 7 to 3.

Given favorable weather and ice conditions, it is planned to have a Northwest hockey league playoff series. According to present plans, the first round games will be played next weekend, with the league champion Thief River Falls meeting the Crookston Pirates in a home-and-home series, and the Grand Forks Jets playing the Roseau Cloverleafs, also in a home-and-home series.

The Minneapolis Bungalows successfully defeated their state amateur senior hockey title when, in a finals game played Sunday night, they defeated the Taconite team 16 to 4.

Canadians Worried by U. S. Wheat Export, Winter Shows Hear

U. S. exporting of surplus wheat under Public Law 480 has had an "adverse effect" on Canadian foreign trade, the Farm-City Forum held in conjunction with the Red River Valley Winter Shows was told Tuesday.

Sol Sinclair, agricultural economist from the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, said Canadians, while anxious to promote good relationships with the U. S. at all levels, are particularly concerned about P. L. 480.

He pointed out that in 1957, U.S. exports of farm products were the highest in history, and "more than 40 per cent of the U. S. total farm products exports was under the special legislation (P.L. 480) against which any other exporter had very little chance to compete."

In face of this competition, Sinclair said, Canadian wheat exports have gone down. "In 1955-56, we exported 309 million bushels. But last year, our exports were 263 million bushels."

P.L. 480 is a provision under which the U. S. can make government-to-government agreements with other nations to sell them American products and be repaid in loans, barter, or currency of the buying country, rather than in U. S. currency.

"Prewar Canada supplied 28 per cent of the total world trade in wheat and the U. S. supplied 11 per cent," Sinclair stated. "Last year, Canada's share was 30 per cent but the U. S. share had grown from 11 per cent to nearly 50 per cent of the total world trade in wheat and flour."

"Your action under P. L. 480 affected us adversely as it has other wheat exporting countries, but it did not improve your surplus situation. I note that you expect a production increase in 1958 of about 28 per cent over your 1957 winter wheat crop, even though you have a lower acreage," Sinclair said.

"It appears that the solution to our problems of surplus does not lie so much in the methods by which we attempt to dispose of our surpluses but rather something more fundamental at the production level."

Sinclair stressed, however, "the value of mutual aid at the various levels between our two countries."

"Together," he said, "we can progress very effectively towards the ultimate solution as well as of many of the world's ills."

He recalled that "in the early forties, the U. S. was able to call on the Canadian supply of wheat, to help tide over a serious livestock feed shortage.

"More recently, Canadians have been able to meet some of your shortages in feeder cattle resulting from the drouth your farmers suffered a year or two ago in some of your livestock producing areas. We also provide you with a good market for U. S. citrus fruits, for cabbages and lettuce and celery, for your soybeans and soybean oil, for corn and other crops."

Sinclair said, "The United States farmer and the United States industrialist will continue to have an ever growing market for their agricultural and industrial products in Canada. But if that market is to continue to be open to the American people, we must maintain relationships at all levels and especially at the foreign trade level that will encourage our people and our government to continue to permit American goods to flow into Canada."

State Bankers to Tour Europe in '58

State Association to Sponsor Tour in May

A Minnesota bankers tour of Europe has been planned for May 3-June 2 under the auspices of the Minnesota Bankers Association, it was announced today by Herman G. Hamre, president of the group.

The trip, which will include visits to Glasgow, London, Brussels, Paris, Geneva, Lucerne, Zurich, Wiesbaden, Bonn, Coblenz, Cologne, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Copenhagen and Stockholm, will focus on meetings with banking officials, government officers and industrial leaders in each city.

According to Hamre, banking is taking on increasing international character and as part of banking's service to industry and the public it is important that bankers be well-informed on world trade and banking practices.

Included on the itinerary of the Scandinavian Airlines tour will be interviews with the Organization for European Ec-[illegible] North Atlantic Treaty Organiza-[illegible] Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO); and the UN Economic Commission for Europe.

The SAS flight will depart from New York's Idlewild terminal May 3. Further information may be obtained from the Minnesota Bankers Association, 315 WCCO Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Education in Russia Winter Shows Topic

Americans must be devoted to their democratic faith and resume "the kind of moral leadership we gave the world when threatened by Nazism" in order to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union, a University of Minnesota authority on Russia said in Crookston Monday.

Mark Graubard, associate professor of inter-disciplinary studies, told an evening session of the Red River Vally Winter Shows that "we must examine our own system of education, defense, international position and ideological effectiveness in gaining friends, if we take survival seriously."

Graubard said, "To understand present Soviet policy, we must know, first, Czarist Russia, and second, the theory and practice of communism. Few people in America combine knowledge of both fields."

Speaking on the history of the Soviet Union, Graubard said Russia rose from a small, oppressed duchy and developed a strong inferiority feeling. "They resented being backward in technology and culture. The Czars built big universities. To every Russian, science meant national strength, equality with the West.

"To Marx and Lenin, science was their modern messiah," according to Graubard. "To them, science would liberate man from faith, superstition and all capitalistic tricks and deceptions. It was the key to prosperity."

"The Soviets know that to conquer the world for socialism they must be stronger than the democratic countries. Strength means scientific research.

"Soviet education is undemocratic and selective. No boy or girl can obtain free education or even any at all after 14, if his or her IQ is not sufficiently high. At the University, they pay many students in accordance with their grades.

"The political goals of the Soviets, their determination, fanaticism, tyrannical rule, selective education, and intensity of study present a great challenge to our survival as a nation," Graubard said.

The Soviet Union is "education mad," and educational facilities there are "second to none," Emma Birkmaier, head of the foreign language department at the University of Minnesota, told the evening meeting. She recently visited Russia and observed its educational system.

"Like us, the Soviets educate from the cradle to the grave. But the basic school of the USSR is the 10 year universal and comprehensive school, operating 6 days a week, 10 months of the year, excluding the necessary examination 'days,'" Professor Birkmaier said.

Americans to Eat Well During 1958

'U' M. Marketing Agent Reports on Prospects

Americans will keep right on eating well in 1958, if the amount of food available is an indication.

Food prices probably will average about the same as last year, Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing agent at the University of Minnesota, believes that if consumers have less money to spend on food, they'll buy about as much as before but will cut back their spending by buying fewer prepared and partially prepared foods.

Although the total amount of food will be just as great as it was in 1957, the amounts of different foods will vary, Mrs. Loomis reports.

Supplies of meat—especially beef—will be smaller than they were in 1957. Late in the year the pork supply probably will increase enough to help make up the drop in beef.

Consumers will have as much chicken and turkey as in 1957 when Americans ate record amounts of these two foods. According to U. S. Department of Agriculture forecasts, there will be slightly fewer eggs but as much or more milk, cheese, butter and other dairy products.

The Florida freezes cut down the amount of oranges and grapefruit that will be available, but there should be plenty of other fruits, especially canned and frozen.

Americans will have as many canned and frozen vegetables to eat in 1958 and about the same amount of fats and oils as in 1957. There will be plenty of grain of all kinds. However, Americans are eating a little less bread each year.

The Department of Agriculture predicts that Americans will eat about as much food as they did in 1957, but just a little less than in the "banquet" year of 1956, when the average American set an all-time high record for eating.

The Crying Need

The attitude of the Democratic congressmen toward secretary of agriculture Ezra Benson is understandable. They are on firm ground when they say they do not like him or the things he does. In terms of partisan politics that is a logical position to take.

It is not so easy for us to grasp just what the Republican congressmen hope to gain by their demands that he resign. If he did resign then their administration would be required to name a successor. As far as we know they have suggested no one to take his place.

And a new man in this office would be required to administer the laws as they are. The congressmen who do not like Benson do not seem to be able to agree as to what changes should be made in the laws. Until the laws are changed there can be no far-reaching changes in the present program.

We agree with those who maintain that Benson should be replaced, providing that whoever replaces him is better qualified than he to administer the program established by Congress. In the meantime the crying need of agriculture is a more capable crop of congressmen, and whether they are Republicans or Democrats is a matter of secondary importance.

Next Year, Maybe

There is cause for concern about the number of farms that are being soil-banked, especially in those communities where the participation is the most concentrated. Unfortunately the acreage taken out of production has not been distributed uniformly over the country as a whole and some communities are still bearing more than their fair share of the reduced farming activity.

Present indications, however, point to a for more general participation, state by state, this year, and, therefore, this year's results will be of some real value in determining whether or not the program does have merit as a means of production control.

All will agree that the program got off to a bad start as well as a late start last year. Participation was spotty and was limited largely to areas that had experienced hardship. The resulting reduction in acreage was more than offset by increased yield per acre. Instead of being curtailed, production actually increased.

It perhaps is fortunate that this year's results will be considered by the Congress that convenes next year. By that time campaign pressures will have eased. There will be less speech making for campaign purposes and more real deliberation. Until then there is little hope for the enactment of any sound farm program. By that time farm organizations may adjust their differences and agree upon a plan. This year may be written off as a campaign year.

We're Not Complaining

The weather has us completely baffled. We go along from day to day and say it can't last. Tomorrow will be different—but there is on change.

Last week we knew winter would come. It was the week of the Winter Shows, and traditionally that is the week for the weather to get worse. There were storms. In some areas near here blizzard conditions prevailed, but not here. The predicted bad weather moved around us.

We are not complaining. This banana belt climate suits us fine. We are not envious of our many good neighbors who have been huddling close to the heaters down south in recent months. We like it where we are.

But, frankly, it would be pleasant to have just one good seige of winter just to make Spring more welcome when it does arrive. There is one law that we have a lot of respect for and that is the law of averages. And with the law of averages in mind a couple of weeks of blistering cold would be kinda welcome right now—if you know what we mean.

A Great Speech

United States Senator Herman Talmadge of Georgia made a great speech one day last week. He said the present administration has been one of "waste, extravagance, special privilege, high interest rates, high taxes, runaway inflation, tight money and mounting debt". He took out after the Republicans in the truly Truman spirit.

But that isn't what made his speech great. The thing that distinguished it was his concluding statement [illegible] his own Democratic party was just [illegible] ing in constructive leadership as is the Republican. With this statement we will wholeheartedly agree:

> "While we would be loath to be driven from the house of our fathers, we must admit that neither of the two major political parties has shown the capacity for offering that brand of two-fisted, hard-hitting honest leadership we must have to save this country."

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

Q—I've seen a lot of real estate advertisements stating that the GI loan program comes to an end July 25, 1958. I am a Korea veteran. Is that my deadline, too?

A—No. Korea veterans have until January 31, 1965, to obtain GI loans. World War II veterans, however, must apply for GI loans before July 25, 1958 [illegible]

Q—I am a disabled Korea veteran, eligible for vocational rehabilitation training. I've had an offer of a job. Would it be possible to work during the day and take rehabilitation training at night?

A—No. Vocational rehabilitation must be full-time, unless a veteran's disability prevents him from training full-time. The law does not permit your holding a job and taking training part-time.

Q—I have a World War II GI term insurance policy. I would like to convert it to a permanent plan but at present I cannot afford the higher premiums. Would it be possible to convert part of my term insurance to permanent?

A—Yes. You need not convert the entire amount to permanent insurance. Instead, you may convert $1,000 or more in multiples of $500.

Q—I am going to school under [illegible] any limit on the number of times I can change schools, without changing my course?

A—No. There is no limit on the number of times you may change schools. You are limited, however, to only one change of course under the Korean GI Bill.

Budding Scientists

Like flowers, scientists bud before they bloom. Like flowers, also, some fail to bud at all, and no buds—no blooms! Bud failures may be due to little care or the wrong care at some earlier stage. Likewise scientists. First there must be good seed or bulb; in the case of scientists this means babies with intelligence and some limit to handicapping. Then the ground or water must offer some prescribed minimum of nurture; in the case of scientists, someone must talk to them, encourage them, explain to them, accept them, inspire them.

Like hardy flowers, hardy potential scientists occasionally endure and sometimes even bloom in spite of their environment, but [illegible] late about what they might have [illegible] scientists.

Like gardeners, parents influence the seed selection, sprouting and budding stages most; the blooms are pretty much on their own. With the young would-be scientists, once he is born and has survived to the stage where he communicates with words, small beginnings do a world of good. After first practicing a relationship with youngsters which assures them that their questions, their curiosity, poking, looking, and—manipulating—is desirable, parents should take the initiative. They can start with parts or all of such simple but orderly aids as these seven rules of nature:

(1) Everything is animal, vegetable or mineral. 2) Animals need other animals or vegetables to live. 3) Animals and vegetables both need water. 4) Everything is liquid, solid or gas. 5) Everything is high or low. 6) Everything is wet or dry. 7) Everything is hot or cold. Life takes on added interest and makes more sense when seen through eyes made more seeing and knowing with such aids. Other such aids appear in popular or scientific sources with increasing frequency. Parents play a real part in "budding" new scientists, long before teachers join in the production. Apart from influencing survival of the human race, potential scientists make living more pleasant for everyone, so the blooms are shared by all. Time well spent!

Sis "Puts on the Dog"

My paper's got two subscribers—Sis Harper and her brother Rip—out on lonely Sunset Mountain. A road goes by Sis' farm and both copies are mailed to her because Rip lives back in the woods.

Sis always ties her brother's copy of the Clarion—plus any mail—to an old hound who trots over to Rip's place. "Rip feeds the dog half of his dinner," Sis explains. "I give him the other half when he gets back. Speeds him along."

Thanks to Sis—I bet the Clarion's got the only dog-powered delivery system in the U.S.A.

From where I sit, Sis may live in the "backwoods" but she's got a wide-awake mind. Contrast that with some people who refuse to own up there's more than one opinion on any subject—like whether beer or buttermilk makes the best beverage. That mountain air sure keeps those "doggone communication channels" open!

SENATOR THYE Reports TO YOU

Our New Surplus

In this present day of surpluses, Washington and most of the Nation still finds itself face to face with a new surplus—snow. This "commodity" brought unusually cold weather here in Washington. Yet, we were probably better off than most Minnesotans. From my recent trip and from word received from Minnesota friends, I expect that the mercury dipped to near-record lows in our State.

Acreage Reserve

On the recent trip to Minnesota, I talked with many farmers about the acreage reserve program. These farmers were concerned because they were not able to sign up for the program this year. Some producers had participated in the 1957 sign-up but their applications are now denied because of lack of funds. I checked further and found that County Committees had obligated all of the funds and that hundreds of producers' applications were on file which could not be considered. This was also confirmed as a fact by the State Administrator, Mr. E. J. Person. Now the Soil Bank Act authorizes an appropriation of $750 million. The Congress appropriated $500 million. There is a new need for a supplemental appropriation of $250 million, which is within the authorization provided in the act.

Appeal To The President

Immediately on my return to Washington, I wrote to President Eisenhower to put the facts before him, including the new sign-up deadline which had been changed from March 7 to February 20. The letter outlined the nature of acreage reserve contracts which are, in my opinion, the most positive and effective way of reducing the number of acres which will produce crops in this calendar year. It will reduce the over-all surpluses in feed grains. I strongly urged the President to request the supplemental appropriation in order that every producer possible will be able to take part. Copies of the letter were sent to Secretary of Agriculture Benson, heads of the House and Senate Committees on Agriculture and other interested administrators.

New Post Offices

Postmaster General Arthur E. [illegible] Office construction program. In [illegible] tact regarding the acceleration of construction already planned for new Post Offices and Federal Buildings in Brainerd, Bemidji, Moorhead and Redwood Falls. In our talk, I further urged immediate construction of Federal Post Office buildings in St. Paul, Virginia, Dassel, Staples, Grand Marais, Clara City, Gaylord, Hopkins, Le Sueur, Roseau, Buffalo, Circle Pines, Two Harbors and Winona. Such a new post office construction program will not only provide employment, but will also meet a very serious need in the Minnesota communities involved. These are projects which can be justified without regard to the general economic situation. I shall continue to press for quick action to incorporate the Minnesota projects in general Post Office Department planning.

Supports Science Education

The growing importance of science today has brought about increased interest in our educational facilities. It is vitally important, to my way of thinking, that we provide ways and means for our educational institutions to expand and to be ready for any increase in scientific study programs. I have introduced a bill which will provide loans to colleges and universities for science equipment and facilities. My new bill will amend that chapter of the National Housing Act, increasing funds available to the Housing Administrator for loans to scientific educational institutions. We must not disregard the physical needs of colleges and universities if we are to thrust upon them the responsibilities of training students who are eligible for national scholarships.

Redwood trees sent in pots to England from California 98 years ago now constitute Britain's heaviest stand of timber. The tallest are about 150 feet. Some of them grew 60 feet in 18 years. The world's tallest tree is a redwood in California, 364 feet high.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

Washington military, diplomatic and congressional leaders are measuring the relative U. S. and Russian military potentials in preparation for a firm stand at the forthcoming summit talks.

The yardstick being used is striking power, measured both in total force and ability to move rapidly to counterattack once the first blow has been delivered. The opinion of military experts we've talked with is that neither nation could deliver an initial knockout blow.

Japan, they recall, delivered an all-out sneak attack on Pearl Harbor that crippled our Navy. Our superiority in the movement of men and material to distant parts of the world proved, in the end, to be decisive.

Russia undoubtedly has, or will soon have, the ability to strike an even more punishing first blow through the use of long-range missiles. But we now have the ability to move fully equipped armies thousands of miles in a matter of hours, and to keep them supplied through an aerial pipeline.

Secretary of the Air Force, James H. Douglas, pointed out that, in addition to an undisclosed number of military planes, the U. S. has on a stand-by basis some 2,500 civilian cargo and passenger planes in a Civil Reserve Air Fleet that would dwarf the famous Berlin airlift.

Except for the availability of the CRAF, the military budget now before Congress might be appreciably larger. Secretary Douglas recognized this when he told a congressional military appropriations committee:

"We have not ordered any turbojet transport aircraft for the Military Air Transport Service, such as the airlines have on order in large numbers, and which we count on the airlines making a part of CRAF. This fleet is an essential part of our wartime airlift ability."

These views are shared by Congressmen with whom we have talked. Rep. Prince H. Preston, (D., Ga.), Chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the Air Force, told us in an interview:

"Our not-so-secret weapon, more significant than all the sputniks, is the Civil Reserve Air Fleet. It should be maintained and strengthened to give us unmatched ability to shift and concentrate our striking power in a matter of hours, not days or weeks.

"The building of a strong civilian air fleet through government assistance not only is good sense, it also is good economy. The Berlin airlift demonstrated the value of our ability to move people and supplies safely and speedily."

Rep. Albert Thomas, (D., Tex.), another member of the subcommittee, told us that "if and when the next war starts, the initial movement of men and supplies must be done by air. This can be done only if we maintain and strengthen our air power; both military and civilian. An adequate reserve through the commercial airlines is of the utmost importance."

Rep. John J. Rooney, (D., N. Y.), also a member of the Air Force subcommittee, said "air power will continue to be of vital importance in our total defense for some time. I [illegible] military and civilian planes as the [illegible] economical method [illegible]

by Orville L. Freeman

I received a letter the other day from a Minnesota citizen who commented on the request I made in Washington last week for emergency assistance from the Federal government for Minnesota farmers who were hit by the disaster of floods during 1957. This writer expressed the opinion that we in Minnesota should provide any necessary assistance ourselves, without asking for aid from the Federal government. He did not indicate whether he would be willing to pay extra taxes to the state to finance such assistance.

The State Has Helped

Our state has, of course, done what it could to help flood-stricken farmers. It has provided many of them with work and wages, particularly in conservation and highways. It has provided public assistance in many cases. But the Federal Government has laws authorizing special programs for assistance in cases of natural disaster. It was to get assistance available under this law that I asked for the help of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Who Pays for What?

The opinion expressed by my correspondent relates to one of the major questions in government, and one that is particularly important in a federal form of government. That is the question as to what powers and functions of government shall be performed at each level,—national, state, and local,—and how the services thus performed are paid for.

Law enforcement, for example, is carried out at all levels, and sometimes in the same case. The taxpayers pay for it all, in one way or another, no matter at which level the function is performed. And various principles have been used in deciding at which level any particular services should be performed, and paid for.

Which Government Does What?

For example, we have always believed that schools should be under local control, but we also believe in some assistance from the state. Otherwise, school districts containing little wealth would not be able to afford good schools. And so we help to equalize educational opportunity throughout the state by providing state aid to local school districts for the support of schools. The Federal government has, for more than a generation, supplied some aid, particularly for vocational education. And now many believe that the Federal government should assume a greater share of the cost of providing good education for every American child.

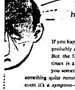
Another factor of importance is the source of revenue for the governmental level in question. Money supplied by school districts in Minnesota comes primarily from the property tax; that is supplied by the state from the state income tax. The Federal government has available to it the broadest tax base.

Disasters

In cases of natural disaster, it would seem particularly hard if the local area that is hard hit by such a calamity should have to provide its own assistance. Possibly disasters covering a small area could well be taken care of by a state. But the Federal laws relating to disaster relief cover drought as well as floods,—and we can recall times when severe drought periods covered entire states. Obviously, the more people who share in providing help after such a disaster, the less burden it is one each.

Changes

There is no fixed rule under our system of government as to which level is responsible for particular functions. The function of providing assistance to those in need—the aged, the handicapped, dependent children, and others—was at first regarded as a responsibility of each local community. Then state governments were called upon to assume part of the responsibility. Now, since the federal social security program was instituted in the 1930's, the Federal government also shares to avery substantial extent.



Could you guess what's good about a headache?

If you happen to have one right now, probably all you need is an aspirin. But the fact is: a headache sometimes is a signal. It may be telling you something is wrong . . . perhaps something quite remote from the pain. In this event it's a symptom—valuable information for your physician. So if you have a persistent or recurring headache and don't know why, see your doctor. Don't take a chance. Your physician can probably clear up your problem in short order. Of course, he may say all you need is aspirin—but even that's worth knowing.

Our LAND

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

How Thick should young, growing trees be in the farm woodlot to alow for the most growing room and still produce a maximum amount of good quality trees? Parker Anderson, extension forester at the University of Minnesota uses this "rule of thumb": The distance between good growing trees in feet should be equal to the tree diameter in inches plus four. That means a tree 10 inches in diameter should have a spacing of 14 feet. There are some other considerations too, but this rule is a good one for growing trees.

My Corn Yields have doubled since I started by land in contour strips with alternate strips in hay. Also there was no erosion last summer after hard rains." This comment is what Alvin Miller, Red Wing, recently told Julius Kubler, U. S. Soil Conservation Service worker.

Soil Testing and applying 150 pounds of 5-20-20 "starter" fertilizer and 500 pounds of 10-10-10 per acre paid off well last summer in "X-Tra Yield" corn plot demonstration set up by the Zumbrota high school FFA chapter. Charles Simkins, extension soils specialist at the University of Minnesota, reports that corn where this fertilizer application was used averaged 155.9 bushels per acre. An unfertilized check plot yielded 85 bushels—70 less than the fertilized plot.

Contour Strip Cropping is bringing handsome return to Oliver Berg, Swift county farmer. Ed Johnson, U. S. Soil Conservation Service worker, reports that Berg has more land in alfalfa than ever and is getting more corn and grain than before. The Berg farm is in the third year of contour strip cropping and crop rotations.

Diversion terraces "side-track" runoff that isn't held by pasture furrows on the Harry Griffin farm, Edgerton. Griffin has installed contour pasture furrows on his steep permanent pasture, with aid from Les Swanson U. S. soil conservationist, Pipestone. Diversion terraces add to this conservation plan, so that rainfall not held by the furrows is detoured and sent to a safe outlet. This keeps needed moisture on the pasture and protects land below the slope.

Ninety-nine cans of milk per acre—that's what George Oraskovich, Carlton county farmer, "harvested" from a fertilized pasture area last summer. He kept milk production records on pastures as part of a demonstration set up with County Agent Sigmund Restad and extension specialists from the University of Minnesota. The high yield came from applying 200 pounds nitrogen, 36 pounds phosphate and 90 pounds potash per acre. Unfertilized pasture yielded only 20 cans milk per acre.

Myron Grams, Westbrook farmer reports, "My low land didn't flood this year. I hold rainfall on the slopes by planting corn on the contour, alternating with strips of grain seeded to Brome and alfalfa." Grams is a cooperator in the Cottonwood soil conservation district and is receiving conservation planning help from Reinhold Kehren, U. S. Soil Conservation Service, Windom.

Wildlife population on the Steve Reudell farm in the South Wabasha soil conservation district has received a boost from strip cropping, grass waterways and a detention dam. Says Reudell: "Since I applied a farm conservation plan, I have more wildlife on my farm than ever. Pheasants and rabbits use the strips and odd areas; ducks, geese and deer use the detention dam.

State expenditures of nearly $311,000,000 in fiscal '55 went for schools 32.7% (2.1 at state level, 30.6 local units); highways 29.5% (21.9 state, 4.6 local); charities 14.7 (1.4 state, 13.3 local); followed by hospitals, conservation, public safety, general government, and "all other". At the county level charities lead, followed by highways at scarcely more than one-third and schools at less than 7% of the $96 million total. New Flooring Will Enhance The Beauty of Many Rooms

One of the first things that you notice when you enter a room is the floor. Which is one of many good reasons why you should give flooring an important place on your modernizing program.

Today there is a wide variety of attractive and long-wearing hard-surface floor covering materials on the market, most of which can be installed without professional help.

Included are asphalt, linoleum, rubber, cork, vinyl and vinyl-asbestos tiles as well as vinyl, rubber and linoleum sheets.

Before you select your flooring, consider the size, shape, lighting and use of the room you are about to re-do.

In the case of a "pattern" floor, the key motif which is repeated again and again to create the over-all design should be chosen in relation to the size of the room. If yours is a small room, use only one or two colors. A "busy" design has a tendency to make a room look smaller. If a room is large, a bold design incorporating striking colors can be used successfully.

Whether your decorating theme is provincial or colorful, the design and colors you choose should be in keeping with the decor.

For living and dining areas, a one-color floor is usually the best choice. Your best bet in the kitchen and bathroom is a multi-color floor, which not only adds a cheerful note, but hides dirt and so reduces cleaning to a minimum.

Wallpapering Gives Rooms A New Look

Wallpaper, judiciously chosen and imaginatively used, can work decorative wonders in the home at relatively small cost.

For instance, it can expand a small room with a design so cleverly drawn as to make you seem to see into the distance. It can set apart a special area in a living-room for dining. It can keep a bathroom beautiful in spite of constant use and soap and water scrubbings. It can bring brightness and cheer to a dark, boxy room.

Here are some of the ways in which wallpaper can be made to work its wizardry.

Depth and Dimension

A mural picturing an outdoor scene such as Venetian or an Oriental garden, a seascape or landscape, will give depth and dimension to a small room. In addition, a mural will completely decorate one wall and do away with the need for any wall hangings.

A homemaker on a restricted decorating budget can find scenic designs printed on rolls of regular wallpaper which will create much the same "open air look" and illusion of space as wallpaper murals.

A sunny-colored wallpaper will give a narrow, dark entranceway new light and color and a welcoming personality.

The right wallpaper can transform a bathroom that looks cold and bare into one that has warmth, color and beauty. Remember that many of the new wallpapers are made to survive hot-shower steam.

If you have a problem wall with a jutting protrusion or a dreary beam pushing itself forward just under a ceiling, the right paper (perhaps a small geometric pattern) can give the illusion of a continuous wall.

For the "Family Room"

The trend toward a second living-room or "family room" is growing. Here is the perfect place for a wallpaper background that reflects the interests of all. Currently the wallpaper industry is matching special whims or hobbies with delightful wallpaper designs. The subjects range from golf, tennis, music, gardening, antique automobiles or sailing ships to sea shells and miniature art posters.

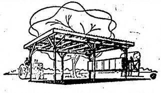
Today, more and more wallpapers have soil and stain-resisting finishes. This makes the papers practical for all the wear-and-tear rooms such as playrooms, dens, hobby rooms.

CORD CARE

Rub plastic or rubber lamp cords with the end of a wax candle or a block of paraffin. This will prevent the cords from drying out and greatly lengthen their service life.

Average number of polio cases in five years preceding 1956 was 37,864, compared with the 1956 total of 15,400 cases.

Tractor Port Is Handy



A new and different farm building, the tractor port, gives the farmer the same convenience and easy accessibility as the carport does for urban residents.

This structure, built near the house, permits the farmer to come in from the fields and park his tractor temporarily in an area protected against rain and snow. The building can also be used as a truck port or dry land port for boats and trailers.

Built on poles, this structure is easy to erect, economical and sturdy in the face of high winds. Where poles have been properly treated with a clean permanent-type preservative such as pentachlorophenol to prevent rot and termite attack, the buildings can be expected to be long-lasting.

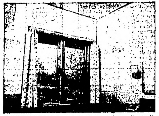
An off-the-ground storage cabinet may be hung between any two poles to provide adequate storage space for the tools, grease and oil needed to keep tractors in good operating condition.

James S. Boyd, Michigan State University agricultural engineering department, has designed a 14-foot by 24-foot tractor port with a 12-inch overhang on all sides. Design calls for three 16-foot and three 15-foot poles with four-inch tops, metal roofing but no sides. No special flooring is necessary.

The easy-to-build tractor port, can be a profitable project for FFA, 4-H and vocational agricultural groups, which can provide the labor in their localities.

Tractor port plans may be obtained from Public Relations Department, The Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich.

Wallpaper Works Decorative Magic



BEFORE WALLPAPER entered, this bathroom scene, the wall appeared as above, completely lacking in decorative interest or distinction of any kind. The overall effect was one of "cold" efficiency, that unfortunately is still all too common in today's bathrooms.

Painting Hints from Paint Headquarters

Tips on Painting Bedrooms, Living Rooms

by Bud Kelly

Bear one thing in mind: bedrooms and living rooms are primarily restful rooms. So a flat finish, with a softer look, is much better in these rooms than a gloss.

As for the right paint to use . . . we recommend SUPER-MIX Alkyd Flat Wall finish. This is one of the newest advances in the paint industry. It's a chemical "kissing cousin" of the synthetic fabric Dacron, so well known for wearing quality and durability.

It goes farther than most paints; just one gallon covers 500 to 600 feet. It hides beautifully, has a soft velvety look, dries in 4 to 6 hours. Another nice thing: It's odor free.

About color. Remember, these are "restful" rooms, so pick out soft colors like grays and greens. You probably wouldn't sleep too well in a bedroom with glaring red walls.

Now let's paint. Use either a brush or roller. Start in the upper right-hand corner of the wall and paint a strip 3 or 4 feet wide. Carry this strip right down to the baseboard. Then repeat the process.

Don't sound hard, does it? It isn't. But before you start painting, come in for a chat. We'll bet we can give you lots more help. We'd sure like to.

Paint Can Do Wonders For The Appearance of a Home

A little paint can give an old home a completely new look. With the use of the proper tones, a small room may be made to appear larger, a large room smaller, a dark room brighter.

Room too small? It will appear spacious when walls are painted in pastels or pale neutral tones. Pale blue, especially makes any room appear much larger.

Room too large? It will look smaller and feel more comfortable and friendly with walls painted a dark shade.

Room too dark? Try painting it with bright, light tones and see how much more cheerful it will look.

Ceiling too low? Use a color that is much paler than the walls (even a near white) and you can add inches to its visual height.

By painting two opposing walls of a square room a light shade and the other two a darker tone of the same color, you can give the room dramatic interest.

The colors in your home should be the ones that you enjoy living with. However, you will usually be influenced by some shade which you already have . . . probably in a rug or draperies. The idea is to build your new color scheme around this existing shade.

When making the choice of color for a room, bear in mind its exposure. Rooms with warm exposures, southern for example, call for cool walls of green, blue, or gray. Northern exposures, on the other hand, look their best when decorated in pinks, reds, yellows and other warm tones.

Even trim can make a big difference. A simple way to achieve a formal effect in a living room is the use of very light woodwork with dark walls.

BOILING OILSTONES

Boiling old oilstones which have been clogged with dirt in a shallow pan of water will quickly loosen up the old dirt.

WOOD REPAIRS

Chipped furniture, or other woodwork is easily repaired by rebuilding the missing sections with wood putty. Sold as a powder, wood putty when mixed with water dries into a hard, wood-like substance which is easily sanded, sawed or carved.

Kitchen Modernization Heads Planning Lists

If your house is more than 17 years old—and nearly half of America's 26 million family-owned dwellings antedate World War II—chances are you have at least imagined the joys of modernizing your kitchen.

If so, you are right in step with the times, for modernization is an important trend in the United States right now—kitchen remodeling in particular. A survey conducted last year indicates that of all home-owners' planning improvements, one out of every five was planning kitchen modernization.

For successful kitchen planning, the preliminary step should be a conference of all members of the family to determine exactly what requirements the kitchen should fill.

Important Questions

Planning will be well along by the time you've asked yourselves such questions as: What are the complaints about the present layout? Should there be dining space in the kitchen? Does the whole family gather there frequently? and, is more than one person apt to be working and or cooking at the same time?

Do we need an extra oven, sink, or more refrigeration space? Where should the washer and dryer go? Are there any structural bottlenecks or pantries? Is entertaining an important factor in our family, so that service and clean-up should be made easier than it is now?

And so on and on, until you have a clear picture of how a well-planned new kitchen can harmonize with your family's way of life.

"Remodeling" is a term covering a broad range. Modern straightline, mix-or-match appliances are designed to stack and fit together in such a way that a custom-look kitchen is the result. In some cases, merely the installation of new cabinets and appliances will modernize a kitchen. From there, remodeling can range all the way up to a thorough re-building project that includes, walls, floor and ceiling.

Features to Check

Whether your remodeling plan is modest or ambitious there are certain physical features which should be checked first, most importantly, the existing plumbing and wiring.

Ancient piping may require replacement, and depending on such additions as dishwasher, Disposall, and automatic washer, you may require additional traps and plumbing lines.

In many old houses, wiring is outmoded and simply not adequate for today's requirements.

Walls which are badly cracked or damaged can be remedied with the use of an interior wall finish, such as wood panelling or wallboard. Similarly, perfinished wood flooring or tiling can be laid over a deficient flooring.

Painting Is Simple Job For Owner

Painting is easy, if you go at it in the right way. The first step is proper preparation. Be sure you have on hand all the necessary materials. You'll need: Sufficient paint to finish the job at one session, good quality brushes, plenty of newspaper and masking tape (painter's drop cloths really are better) and thinner.

Don't forget to wear old clothes. Either gloves or protective cream on your hands will make the washing-up easier. If the job involves plaster walls, have some spackle and a flexible putty knife on hand. Move the furniture out of the room or pile it all in the center and cover with a drop cloth.

Check that both your brushes and the surfaces to be painted are clean. Grease and soot on the wall will prevent paint from binding to the old surface properly and eventually cause peeling and alligatoring.

Use Quality Paints

Use good quality material. There is no doubt that in the long run you will save money and get a lot more satisfaction by using the best available paints and brushes.

While professionals favor the 5-inch wall brush, the amateur will find it more convenient to use one that is 3 to 4 inches wide. You'll need a 1½ or 2 inch varnish brush for trim.

After you have covered the floor and furniture with drop cloths or newspapers and removed switch and outlet plates, you are ready to begin. The best practice for the do-it-yourselfer is to paint the walls first and then do the trim.

In doing the walls, paint in strips about three feet wide. Paint rapidly with bold strokes so that one strip will not set before you start the next. Remember to always brush back into the work already done.

Stippling Adds Beauty

Stippling is easy and adds immeasurably to the beauty of walls done in flat oil paints. Best way to do it is to use a roller stipple. As soon as you finish a strip with your brush, roll the stippler up and down it. Use a roller covered with carpet, not sheep wool.

Before doing the trim, mask the walls with newspaper and masking tape . . . or use the inexpensive tool known as the "painter's helper."

Of course, if the ceiling needs re-coating it should be done first of all. The easiest method is to stretch planks between two ladders so that your head is about 4 inches from the ceiling. You can then paint a full wall-to-wall strip without getting down.

Eckvoll Farmer Gets Ninety Days on Beer Charge

Alfred Mielke Pleads Guilty to Supplying Many Minors with Beer

An east Marshall county farmer was sentenced February 11 to 90 days in the Marshall county jail at Warren after he pleaded guilty in justice court, before Justice of the Peace Carl Johnson, to a charge of procuring beer for minors.

Alfred Mielke, 52, a widower who lives in Eckvoll township about eight miles north of Goodridge, was apprehended by the Marshall county sheriff's department after a number of complaints from parents in Marshall, Pennington and Beltrami counties about reportedly wild parties that had been held at the Mielke farm.

Pennington county Sheriff Charles Richards cooperated with Marshall county Sheriff Oscar Erickson and Deputy Milo Sorenson in the case. The officers questioned implicated youths from a wide area, Erickson said. Most were very cooperative in making statements.

Sheriff Richards said Thursday that although several Pennington county youths were involved and several of the complaints originated in this county, no arrests were made. More than 50 boys and girls ranging in age from 13 to 21 were implicated in the affair, with many of the girls being in the 14 and 15 year age bracket.

The wild parties apparently started when two boys working on the Mielke farm invited some friends to the farm for a party [illegible] held more persons became involved and the parties became rougher with drinking, dancing and necking being commonplace.

A—Send your request to the VA district office that handles your insurance. After processing it, the district office will forward it to the regional office from which payments are made.

Q—I own a home bought with a GI loan. I have to sell it because I have gone back into military service and I am being transferred to another city. If my loan is paid off in full, would I be entitled to have my GI loan rights restored?

A—Yes. Your GI loan rights could be restored, since you have had to sell because of a military transfer.

Q—Is it possible to attend school less than half-time under the War Orphans Education program?

A—No. No War Orphans payments may be made if a student is attending school less than half-time.

Handy Hints

Want an inexpensive, easy to make carrier for nails or staples? Tack three No. 2 tin cans to an 18-inch strip of 8-inch board. Fasten a strap at each end—long enough to loop over the shoulder—and you have a handy carrier ready to travel when and where you will. One pound coffee cans serve equally well.

Keeping the poultry fountain clean is important to the good health of your chickens. Here's an easy do-it-yourself method that will do the trick. Remove one side from a wooden box. Put the box on two skids to keep it off the ground. Hens cannot scratch litter into the fountain placed in the box, and it helps keep the floor dry, too. This is especially true if the bottom of the box is replaced with wire mesh.

Income Tax Chief Urges Using Form 1040A Mailed out

Knox Says Form Contains Key Information That Should Be Kept Intact

Federal income taxpayers who receive in the mail punch-card type Forms 1040A were urged today by District Director A. R. Knox of the Internal Revenue Service, to use them rather than to obtain other copies of the same form or to use the regular Form 1040.

The punch-card Form 1040A is intended for the use of taxpayers whose incomes during 1957 were less than $5,000 total income consisting of wages reported on Form W-2 and $100 interest and dividend income. Mr. Knox explained that the forms actually distributed by the Revenue Service through the mails direct to taxpayers, already contain certain punched entries relating to statistics determined in last year's returns of these same taxpayers, and it is desired to maintain such key information intact. For this reason taxpayers are asked not to obtain other copies of the same form which would of course, lack these details.

Prospective taxpayers who do not receive a Form 1040A, but are eligible to use it, were urged to obtain a copy from the nearest Internal Revenue office. It is a simpler form than the regular 1040, is more easily prepared, and may speed up any refund. All 1040A users were urged by Mr. Knox to determine their own tax owed, if any. This may be done by reference to the instruction sheet which accompanies the punch-card form. Revenue officials estimate that approximately 25 million persons may be eligible to use the card-type form, 1040A.

National 4-H Week Now Being Noted

47,000 Minnesota Members to Share in Observance

Some 47,00 boys and girls and 7,820 adult volunteer leaders in Minnesota will observe National 4-H Club week March 1-8.

Featured during the week will be special programs, exhibits, radio broadcasts and newspaper articles telling the public about the 4-H program of "learning by doing".

The 4-H program is part of the national educational system of cooperative extension work in which the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the state land-grant colleges and the county extension service share. Nationally, the organization has more than 2 million members.

Parents and volunteer adult 4-H leaders will receive a special salute during the week for their contribution in making the 4-H club program a success. According to Leonard Harkness, state 4-H club leader at the University of Minnesota, most of the 7,820 volunteer leaders who work with 4-H members are interested parents. Last year the average adult leader devoted time equivalent to nearly 17 days to 4-H work alone, Harkness said.

Climax of the observances during National 4-H week will be the state 4-H radio speaking contest on Saturday, March 8. Seventeen district winners will take part in the finals Saturday morning on the University of Minnesota's St. Paul campus. Winner of the state radio speaking title will be announced following broadcast of the speeches of the two highest-scoring contestants over WCCO radio, between 3 and 3:30 p.m.

Close to 800 4-H members in Minnesota have taken part in this year's radio speaking contest, writing their own speeches on "Our Country's Most Important Problem Today—What Can I Do About It?

March 3, 1883 Congress appropriated funds for construction of the first steel warships our Navy ever owned, the cruisers Atlanta, Boston and Chicago, and the despatch boat Dolphin.

The newly formed Marine Corps saw its first combat March 4, 1776, when 300 Marines stormed ashore and captured the British port of New Providence, Bahamas, seizing large stores of powder, later taken back to the colonies for the continental army.

In 1957, 1,496,675 vehicles were registered with the Secretary of State in Minnesota. Also in 1957 there were 567 fatal motor vehicle accidents in which 684 persons died.

$3,062 Sought in Pennington for Red Cross

Mrs. Geving, Chapter Head, Calls Meeting to Arrange for Drive

The Pennington county Red Cross chapter will complete plans tonight for its annual fund campaign, which will continue thru March with the objective of raising the assigned quota of $3,062, it was announced this week by Mrs. I. R. Geving, chapter chairman, who added that the national goal has been set at $95,000,000.

"The success of the 1958 campaign is vital to the organization," Red Cross National Chairman E. Roland Harriman said.

"An enthusiastic determination to succeed on the part of this army of fund-raising volunteers and a generous response from the public are essential if the American Red Cross is to provide the expanded and improved services demanded by the American people," he added.

Harriman pointed out that Red Cross annually spends some $36 million—over a third of its budget—to help servicemen, veterans and their dependents when problems disrupt normal living and to provide needed funds or communications when emergencies arise.

The Red Cross, he continued, spends another $14 million annually to pay the costs of its blood program which provides lifesaving whole blood and blood products for the ill and injured in hospitals.

Almost $9 million, he said, will be required to provide the people of this county with health and safety services and to continue the school activities of 22 million members of the American Junior Red Cross.

Another large portion of the Red Cross budget, Harriman explained, goes for emergency relief and long-term rehabilitation aid to disaster-stricken families. In the past two years, when the country was hit by an unprecedented series of floods, tornadoes and hurricanes, the Red Cross spent $51 million for this purpose, completely exhausting all disaster reserves and cutting deeply into the organization's general funds.

In an effort to re-establish the ability of the Red Cross to meet disaster emergencies, the organization [illegible] recently increased the disaster budget for 1958-59 to $10 million [illegible] begin replenishing the disaster reserve funds.

Put New Eighth Street Bridge Into Use Soon

ffic will soon begin to flow across the new st. bridge here, according to highway department officials, who, however, declined to set a date.

The bridge is not scheduled for completion until late this summer but construction firm officials said it would be completed ahead of schedule.

Considerable work remains to be done to the bridge and approaches, but it will go into use as soon as possible so that the old bridge may be dismantled on the river ice before it goes out. Some cement work, as well as rip-rapping and mounting of handrails remains to be done on the new bridge, while approaches must be blacktopped before it is completed. However, most of the work remaining can be accomplished while the bridge is in use, officials say.

Support Price Rates on Grain Nationally Are Revealed by ASC

Patrick W. Culkins, office manager of the Pennington county ASC, announced today that pursuant to a recent announcement by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the national average support rates for 1958 commodities, except wheat and corn, are as follows, together with the eligible grades:

Barley, .93c per bu. for No. 2 or better. No. 4 or better eligible.

Oats, .61c per bu. for no. 3 No. 3 or better eligible.

Rye, $1.10 per bu., No. 2 or better or No. 3 on T. W. only.

Flax, $2.78 per bu. for no. 1. No. 2 or better eligible.

Soy beans $2.09 per bu. for no. 2 or better.

All supports except on oats and soy beans are down slightly from 1957.

The announcement states that the price support eligibility requirements and operating provisions are substantially the same as in 1957. The county loan rates for the commodities will be released when they become available.

All producers who have warehouse loans on flax and wheat are informed by Culkins that these loans mature March 31. In case these commodities are not redeemed by that date they will become the property of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Farm stored wheat and flax [illegible]. However, the producer will have control of these commodities until they are delivered to Commodity Credit Corporation sometime after April 1.

Farm stored loans on barley, oats and rye mature on April 30. Delivery orders on these commodities will be issued shortly thereafter.

The USDA has recently announced a reseal program on 1957 oats, barley, rye and wheat and on 1956 crop re-sealed wheat. All producers interested in this program are urged to contact their County ASC Office, where the necessary reseal applications are available.

Co. Board Rejects 6 Identical Bids on Steel Culverts

Votes to Open Bids April 8 on Light Truck for Use of County Road Department

At its March session Tuesday, the Pennington county board, after considering six virtually identical bids on the season's requirements of steel culverts for the county highway department, rejected them all on the ground that there was no competitive bidding. The culverts will be bought as needed without calling for further bids.

Thirteen offers were received to rent road equipment to the county and Joseph Seidel, county engineer, was authorized to rent equipment as needed on the basis of the lowest bids.

Seidel also was given authority to set up load restrictions on county highways during the spring breakup, and he was instructed to call for bids on a light truck to be opened April 8. At the same time bids will be [illegible] for heating road oil in tanks.

The board took under advisement a [illegible] ing town board that additional roads in the township be incorporated into the county system.

Approved for publication in the Times was the annual county financial statement prepared in the office of County Auditor C. W. Rodekuhr.

Directors Are Named by Tri-Co. Beet Assn.

Leonard Furuseth, E. Amundgaard named from Pennington Co.

An estimated 100 persons attended the third annual meeting of the Tri-County Sugar Beet Development association held Wednesday afternoon in the city auditorium at which Harry Oen, president, Thief River Falls, presided.

The meeting was opened with the showing of a film, "The Root of Progress," a newly-released production of the Western Beet Sugar Producers association. Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county described results of a beet experiment plot near here, citing the excellent yield from the plot as being very encouraging.

Speakers at the meeting were C. Einar Johnson, Warren, president of the Western Beet Growers association; Byron Hanson, Hallock, president of the Minnesota-Dakota Beet Development association, state Senator Roy Wiseth, and Rep. Ben Wichterman.

One resolution was passed in the form of an amendment to by-laws of the association, increasing the number of directors from nine to 12 and becoming Article 4 of Section 1 of the by-laws.

The increase in the board was made to allow representation on the board of members from Clearwater county. In balloting at the meeting Donald Evje was elected to a one-year term and Earl Wagner, three years on the board of directors to represent Clearwater county. Both men are from Gonvick.

Other board members elected were: Calvin Knolling, East Polk county, two years; Everett Amundgaard and Leonard Furuseth, Thief River Falls, Pennington county, elected to three-year terms; and Donald Lykken, Red Lake county, also three years.

Johnson, main speaker at the meeting, told of efforts of the Western Beet Growers association to get increased allotments and cited the opposition to such allotments by various industries.

At the present, he stated, the sugar market is somewhat depressed. Before the upper midwest can get much increase in beet allotments a closer market for the sugar must be developed in the area since the cost of shipping sugar to the eastern markets would be prohibitive. [illegible] capita sugar consumption, Johnson [illegible] industries use two-thirds of the sugar produced, and helps to account for the high consumption. He spoke of the use of sugar in synthetics, etc, and said growing of more sugar beets here called for more industrial users to increase per capita consumption.

He opposed expenditures to artificially develop beet growing

Sutisna Entertains Lincoln PTA: School Curriculum Is Topic

John Sutisna, international exchange student from Indonesia currently attending high school in Thief River Falls, appeared on the program at a well-attended meeting of the Lincoln high school PTA, unit Monday evening in the school auditorium.

He discussed conditions in his native land, especially in the field of education, and also executed in costume a stately dance from his homeland, which was heartily applauded.

Before his talk, Mrs. Robert Bredeson, president, who had charge of the program, called on Roy Barzen, at whose home Sutisna is staying while here, to explain the student exchange program. Barzen said that his past experience with two former foreign students had convinced him that the program does much to stimulate understanding between nations.

Paul Anderson, high school director, had charge of the remainder of the program, which featured a discussion of various phases of the school curriculum by three groups led by Anderson, Dennis Rolle and Arnold Larson.

Generally agreed upon in the discussion was the advisability of continuing language courses [illegible] for high school, and an accelerated [illegible] has already been approved by the state department of education.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor The Times:

Can you tell me why your paper reported that our local school teachers received a pay increase of $250. for the coming year, when actually their pay increase was $400.

Is your newspaper cooperating with the local school board, and school officials in trying to keep the truth from our taxpayers regarding teachers salaries? What have they got to hide?

Corporation Tax Is Due March 15

There is still some misunderstanding about the due date for filing Federal corporation income tax returns, Mrs. A. B. Knox, District Director of Internal Revenue, said today.

In as much as individuals, partnerships and estates and trusts all have until April 15 to file calendar year 1957 returns, some corporations automatically believe they too have that length of time.

"This is not true," said Mr. Knox. "Calendar year 1957 corporation returns are due on or before March 15. Penalties and interest may be incurred for delinquent filing," he said.

State Bar Explains Tax Deduction Items

(This is the eighth in a series of articles on income tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association, public relations committee.)

During 1957 you undoubtedly paid numerous taxes, many of which are deductible on both your federal and Minnesota returns. The taxes most commonly deducted on federal returns are state income taxes, real estate taxes, personal property taxes, automobile license taxes, state gasoline taxes, and drivers' license fees.

If you paid sales taxes in other states you may also deduct the amount of such taxes paid. Special tax assessments levied against your property are not deductible if they tend to increase the value of your property. Many taxpayers do not know the exact amount of state gasoline and sales taxes paid during the year.

The Internal Revenue Service will, however, accept reasonable estimates. For instance, if you know the number of miles your automobile traveled during 1957, you can determine the number of gallons of gasoline consumed on the basis of your average mileage per gallon. In Minnesota, a state tax of 5 cents per gallon is collected, while all bordering states impose a tax of 6 cents per gallon. Retail sales taxes generally vary between 2% and 3% of the price of the article purchased.

If you sold real property during 1957 you may be entitled to deduct real estate taxes paid or to be paid by your purchaser. All real property taxes payable in 1957 would be deductible by you since they are 1956 taxes and you owned the property throughout the year.

In addition a part of the 1957 real estate taxes which are in 1958 may be deducted by you. This amount is determined by multiplying the 1957 taxes on the property (which may be estimated on the basis of the 1956 taxes which were paid in 1957) by the number of days you owned the property and then dividing this amount by 365.

The additional deductible real estate taxes paid by your purchaser must be added to the purchase price in determining your gain or loss from the sale of the property. While it would seem that the additional deduction and the increase in the purchase price will merely offset each other, in almost all instances the overall effect will benefit the seller of the property.

All of the above taxes are also deductible on your Minnesota return except for state income taxes and real estate and personal property taxes on property located outside of Minnesota. Certain federal taxes also may be deducted on your Minnesota return such as taxes on telephone and telegraph services, [illegible] which are levied on jewelry, [illegible] many other articles, are not deductible. Also if you were an employer and paid employment taxes on your employees, you may deduct your share of the taxes but not your employees' share.

On page 1 of your Minnesota return you may deduct federal income taxes paid during 1957. However, an apportionment of your federal income tax payments [illegible] included in your taxable income on your federal return, there is income not taxed by Minnesota, such as interest on United States government bonds and income from property located outside of Minnesota.

areas, such as dams and irrigation, saying the Red River Valley has excellent natural resources that can produce beets much cheaper than irrigated areas.

Improvements in beet raising methods have led to increased production over past years, thus creating little need for increased acreage. Some areas, he stated, are not using their full beet acreage allotment. In closing, Johnson advised the Tri County association members to hang on as it is through persistence that they can eventually accomplish their goals.

2 Boy Scout Groups Organized at Grygla

Nearly 50 boys from the Grygla area met to organize a Boy Scout Troop at the Grygla school auditorium Monday evening. Robert St. Lawrence of Grand Forks, field executive of the Lake Agassiz council, organized the troop and explained the purpose of the scouting movement. "The main purpose of scouting," St. Lawrence said, "is to teach boys to have fun and adventure in the great out-doors."

Because of the large number of boys and the diversity of ages, the troop was split into two age groups, the regular troop for boys 11 to 14 and an explorer post for boys over 14. The regular troop was organized into patrols and they will start work immediately to earn their rating of Tenderfoot by learning the scout oath, scout laws, how to tie knots, and other requirements.

The older boys were organized into an explorer post and while they will have to learn the same things, they will go through it at a much faster pace. In time the explorer post will learn such things as archery, hunting, trapping, animal husbandry, photography, or whatever their interests and hobbies might be.

John McMartin, technician with the Soil Conservation Service, was selected as Scoutmaster, and he will be assisted by Emil Boyum, manager of the Co-op store; Arnold Stanley and Saave Johnson, young farmers of the area. Douglas Miller, rural mail carrier, was selected as Explorer advisor and he will be assisted by Dale Erickson, also a farmer.

Rev. Arthur Dale, pastor of the Lutheran Parish and chairman of the troop committee, urges all boys who are interested in scouting, regardless of religous affiliation to attend the boy scout meeting. The regular troop will meet at the Grygla school auditorium and the Explorer post will meet in the kitchen of the Lutheran church every Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

The Goodridge Dance Club will meet at the Goodridge gym Friday, March 7, at 8:00 P. M. P. M.

Bluegrass and Timothy Pastures

A remarkable piece of research work on pastures warrants a try in Pennington county. It is on bluegrass and timothy bluegrass pastures. Pastures from these grasses can yield from each acre the same amount of total feed value as you would get from 5 tons of legume hay. All it takes to make this possible is proper fertilizing and pasture management. Evidence that this is true comes from the University of Minnesota's North Central School and Experiment station, Grand Rapids.

In a demonstration at the station last summer, research workers there kept a complete feed and milk production record on a 33-cow herd grazing on 10 acres of permanent grass pasture. It was 80 percent bluegrass and the rest was timothy and bromegrass. There were 10 1-acre plots. Two received no nitrogen. On other plots, researchers compared 50, 100, 200 and 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Cows grazed the area on a "ration-a-day" plan. When one field was grazed, the cows were moved to the next tallest pasture. The grazed field was clipped and station workers spread the manure droppings. Look at the results: Costs per pound of the total digestible nutrients (TDN) in the plot where 200 pounds nitrogen was added was 30-40 cents less than a farmer would pay for each 100 pounds of TDN in alfalfa-brom hay or oat silage. And it was considerably lower than the TDN cost in corn grain or silage or 16-percent-protein dairy concentrate.

The 200 pound rate gave the best over-all yields. One acre receiving this rate provided all the grazing needed for the 33 cows for 13 days. The demonstration also showed, however, that high rates of nitrogen on pasture pay off only when proper management practices are followed. These include ration-a-day grazing, clipping ungrazed forage and spreading the droppings.

Soil Packing Can Lower Yields

More and more evidence is showing that "minimum tillage" leaves the soil in better condition.

Minimum tillage literally means working the soil less, by eliminating much of the tillage with disks, drag harrows and other implements that often cause excess surface compaction.

Some of the latest research at the University of Minnesota's Rosemount Agricultural Experiment Station show that when the surface soil is packed too much, crop yields can definitely be reduced. The work was done [illegible] nesota. [illegible] pacted in the plow layer alone; also in the surface soil alone, and both the layer and the surface, to see if this compaction would affect yields. The plow layer was compacted with a 2½ ton, especially built tractor wheel, and the surface soil was compacted with a heavily loaded truck.

Corn where just the surface soil was compacted yielded 77 bushels per acre compared to 84.1 bushels on uncompacted soil. Compacting subsoil along didn't affect yields, but where both surface and subsoil were compacted, yields dropped to 72 bushels per acre. Most of this reduction was caused by the surface compaction.

Why did the compaction reduce yields? In the laboratory, it was found that the packed soil "puddled," leaving a poor soil structure. Packed soil had less air space and poorer draining ability. Also, it was harder to penetrate, meaning young corn plants had a tougher time getting through it.

In these studies, maintained an "effective" corn stand of 20,000 plants per acre was maintained by planting 24,00, then thinning. This is much higher than the average Minnesota farmer plants and shows that surface compaction can reduce yields even with high populations.

Are vitamins medicine?

Door-to-door salesmen are selling "vitamin preparations" these days and you may think these are therapeutic doses. They may or may not be. Point is, that you can't know whether they are or not, and the salesman probably isn't qualified to know whether you even need them. If you do need vitamins in therapeutic quantities, only your physician can tell you what you need and how much, and only your registered pharmacist should dispense them. Where your health is concerned, always rely on competent professionals.

Sportsmen Hear of Mud Lake Problems

The downstairs assembly room of the city Auditorium was packed to capacity Tuesday evening when area farmers and sportsmen attended the regular monthly meeting of the Pennington County Sportsman Club to hear discussions concerning the Mud Lake refuge and the anti-wetlands movement.

Gunsten Skomedal, a leader of the anti-wetlands movement, spoke for the organization, while Herb Dill answered questions about the refuge.

Skomedal was cheered lustily by a small anti-wetlands minority at the meeting when he attacked articles in the Times and a Minneapolis newspaper as "plain lies." The point he referred to was a statement crediting Dr. George A. Selke, head of the Minnesota Conservation Commission with saying that the anti-wetlands movement was composed of farmers who, a short time ago, had favored a higher water level at Thief Lake.

Beaver seemed to get a large share of the blame for flooded farmlands in eastern Marshall and Pennington counties and a Mr. Phillips told of land flooded so badly it had to be abandoned with subsequent loss in tax revenue to the county.

With few exceptions the discussion remained temperate and ample opportunity was given everyone to speak who wished to do so. Clarence Lien, Gatzke, was applauded heartily by everyone present after he had cited the need for cooperation between city and farm residents in the flooding matter. Both are dependent on the other, Lien said, and a spirit of cooperation is needed to help all concerned.

Herb Dill, refuge manager, cited instances of cooperation between the refuge and farmers and promised further cooperation in every possible way in the future. He reminded the group that "it takes two to cooperate," however.

Queried on the beaver question, Game Warden Carl Sundstrom told of a recent meeting of state wardens in St. Paul during which the wardens recommended that a new set of laws concerning beaver control be drafted because the wardens' hands were tied by the present obsolete laws. He also cited how present laws make it almost impossible to control the beaver.

Action by the sportsmans club took the form of a resolution to form a study committee composed of member farmers and city [illegible] cording to the recommendations [illegible] President Robert Larson said. Members of the committee are Larson, chairman, Raymond Johnson, Fred and David Wilde, and Stanley Szymanski.

The meeting was opened with a movie on conservation and after adjournment lunch was served by Ole Ness.

Over 134,000 Sea Lamprey Killed in Great Lakes in '57

In a recent review of the lamprey control program in the Great Lakes, federal officials have reported over 134,000 sea lamprey killed in 1957 by the expanding network of electrical barriers located on the spawning streams.

Thirty-seven Lake Michigan barriers accounted for 64,435 lamprey; 71 Lake Superior barriers killed 61,395 predatory eels; and one Lake Huron barrier accounted for 8,163. In releasing these statistics the Great Lakes Fishery noted the inroads made by the lamprey in Lake Superior as reflected in the steady increase in the kill in 30 electrical weirs in 1955—8,823; 1956—19,000; and 1957—30,060.

The threat of the lamprey to Lake Superior lake trout was indicated when the Fishery Commission reported that the 1956 catch was only 40.8 percent of the 1950 total.

Lincoln Quint Defeats EGF; to Play in Finals

It will be the defending district champion Prowlers against the Crookston Pirates in the finals of the 31st district basketball tournament which will be concluded tonight, Thursday, on the fieldhouse court on the UND campus. Tip-off time for the championship tilt will be at 9:00 p.m. A consolation game, between the Warren Ponies, losers to Crookston last night, and East Grand Forks, losers to Thief River Falls, will be played at 7:30 p.m.

The Crookston pirates, showing superior all-round team speed and scoring balance, rolled up an 82 to 51 win over Warren in the opening game of Wednesday night's semi-finals. The Prowlers, engaging in another 'squeaker", defeated East Grand Forks, 59 to 56, and the winning points were scored when Ken Jones drove in to the lane and dropped a lay-up shot into the east basket with forty-five seconds to play, breaking a 56-all tie. Fouled on the play, Jones added the free throw point, giving the locals a three-point cushion.

It was the double-barreled offense of the Hanson shotgun, with Phil shooting the full choke, and Mickey using the modified barrel, that gave the Prowlers their win over the East Siders last night. Phil Hanson drilled the laces for ten field goals and five free throws, for 25 points; and Mickey Hanson looped in five field goals and a pair of free throws.

The Prowlers, with Phil Hanson garnering four two-pointers, sprinted away to an early 10 to 3 lead, and a 16 to 9 advantage at the end of the first period.

In the second period, with Phil Hanson counting seven points and Mickey Hanson adding six points, and getting five points from Lynn Nicholson at the free throw line, the Prowlers moved away to a 39 to 28 lead at the intermission.

The Prowlers, as in the previous night, were plagued by an epidemic of fouls, and in the third period, the East Siders, outpointing the blue-and-gold, 13 to 11, pared the Prowler lead to nine points, 50 to 41, entering the final quarter. Ken DeLap left the game, on personals, with six minutes remaining of the third period, and Jim Bennes, also on personals, left the game with 4:10 of the period remaining.

In the hectic fourth period, East Grand Forks, on a free throw by Dale Piker and pair of field goals by Dick Stalimo, boosted their score to 46 points. Dave Rasmussen, scrapping for a rebound, recovered the ball and dropped in a Prowlers field goal; and Phil Hanson followed with a two-pointer, and the Prowler lead was at eight points, 54 to 46. Rasmussen fouled out with 4:06 of the period to play.

A field goal by Stalimo, and four free throw points by Piker carried the game score to 54 to 52 for the Prowlers with 3:40 to play. At the 2:11 mark, Phil Hanson dropped in a pair of Prowler free throws, but lanky Paul Havig, scoring on a tip-in, and [illegible] with 30 seconds to play, knotted the score at 56-all. Ken Jones then donned the hero's mantle and drove in for the game-winning field goal.

Compliments and Kind Words

We have heard nothing but good words and agreeable phrases from the basketball fans who were in attendance at the high school gymnasium last Friday night for the Prowlers vs. Moorhead Spuds game. It was one of the most interesting and entertaining games that the local court has produced in a long, long time. The fact that the outcome of the game, which was won by the Spuds, 66 to 57, was in doubt until the final two minutes of play, added to the excitement.

The two teams played good and solid basketball, exhibiting remarkable marksmanship, especially in the first half, and showed strength on covering rebounds. As one fan aptly expressed the game, "It separated the men from the boys". We are sure, too, that the boys who participated in Friday night's game, the winners and the losers, derived a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction out of that tilt.

Ordinarily we do not make any comments on the officiating, or lack of officiating, in athletic contests. We know full well that the officials have a thankless job, and at poor pay, and that they do their jobs to the best of their ability. But we do believe that a few kind words are due Palmer and John Olstad of Karlstad for the discreet manner in which they used their whistles on Friday night. Over-zealous whistle-tooting could have ruined the game, both for the fans and the players. The Olstads, and they are two of a nine-brother family, used excellent judgment in their body-contact calls, and we think the fans appreciated the lee-way that was permitted.

There were some questions asked about the calls on blocking or charging; but those fouls, according to qualified officials, are the toughest to call. In most cases, whether a foul is a charging infraction on an offensive player or a blocking foul on a defensive player, is a matter of angle and position. In most of the instances, the officials are in the position to make the cor[illegible]

Memories

The Whitby Dunlops, Canada's representatives in the world amateur hockey tournament now in progress in Oslo, Norway, are being subjected to considerable criticism because of their "win at all costs" attitude.

Some of this criticism is justified and warranted, too, because the Dunlop team does have a couple of players—Sid Smith and Jean Paul Lamirande—who are, for all practical purposes, professional hockey players. In fact, Lamirande is reported to have stated that he will rejoin the Quebec Aces, a professional club, immediately following the conclusion of the Oslo tournament. Jean Paul, an able defenseman, was just recently reinstated as an amateur, and for the express purpose of adding blue-line strength to the Whitby team. He has added that strength, too.

And speaking of Jean Paul Lamirande, Jack McGill, the Thieves' goalie, said that the mention of Lamirande brought back fond and riotous memories of experiences with the New York Rovers. Lamirande and McGill were team-mates and room-mates while with the Rovers, and, explained McGill, Jean Paul was one "wild Frenchman".

Loss of Sleep

We stayed awake until 1:30 A.M. on Tuesday, and just for the purpose of listening to the "live broadcast" of the Canadian bonspiel being held in Victoria, B.C. And it was worth the loss of sleep.

Our interest was focused on the first round match of the young Terry Braunstein of Winnipeg's Granite club, the Manitoba curling champions, as they met the defending Canadian champions, the Matt Baldwin rink of Edmonton, Alta.

The Braunstein rink, the youngest rink to ever participate in the MacDonald Briar, as Canada's premier bonspiel is called, held a 6 to 1 lead at the end of three ends, and a 7 to 2 lead after six ends of plays had been completed. The veteran Baldwin rink finally evened the match at 11-all entering the 12th and final end. With Braunstein having the last rock "coming home" the odds were in favor of the Winnipeg skip, but it apparently wasn't to be. Baldwin, on his last rock, drew in behind a guard at the four-foot circle, and when Braunstein's final rock failed to chip that shot rock out, Baldwin had gained a hard-earned 12 to 11 win.

Please Keep Off the Course

The plea of the local golf club's greens committee is that local golfers keep off the course. Playing the course in its semi-frozen condition, and the alternate thawing and freezing of the greens, would cause great damage.

Hockey Loop Plans Weekend Playoff, Ice Permitting

Playing of Matches Is Dependent on Whether Temperature Turns Cold

It is the hope of the senior hockey Thieves' management that that below-zero blanket of weather that is hovering over northern Manitoba will sweep down into northern Minnesota by Friday or Saturday in order that ice conditions will permit the playing of the Northwest hockey league playoffs. Unless freezing weather occurs, it is extremely doubtful if the ice sheets at Crookston, Roseau and Thief River Falls will be playable.

According to present plans, the first round playoff games, which will be played on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, will be on a home-and-home total-goals basis. The Thief River Falls Thieves, the league champions, will play the fourth place Crookston Pirates at Crookston on Saturday night, with face-off time at 8:30 p. m.; and the two teams will return to Thief River Falls for the second game of the series, game-time at the Arena will be 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

The Roseau Cloverleafs and the Grand Forks Jets will meet in the other semi-finals tilt, with Roseau on Saturday night, and the second game slated for the Winter Sports Building at Grand

Grade Schools Also to Share in Hockey Event

The city recreation board's grade school and midget hockey program will be climaxed this week when, on Thursday and Friday, March 6th and 7th, a tournament will be held in the arena, starting at 6 p. m.

In the 5th and 6th grade competition, four teams — Northrop, Washington, Knox, and St. Bernard's — will be playing an elimination series.

In the midget hockey classification four teams — the Black Hawks, the Rangers, the Bruins, and the Red Wings — will be in competition. While in the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th grade play, two teams — the Jets and the Rockets — will be playing.

Mud Lake Refuge Official to Take California Post

Robert M. Abney, assistant manager at the Mud Lake national wildlife refuge, has been promoted and transferred to the Tule Lake national wildlife refuge, Tule Lake, California, according to Herb Dill, manager of the Mud Lake refuge.

Dill stated that Abney's new assignment would be as wildlife management biologist for the extensive Tule Lake Area, which is best know for its tremendous concentrations of geese which run more than 200,000 birds at times during the spring and fall migrations.

In addition to his refuge duties at Mud Lake, Abney and his wife Sally were well know locally for their musical talents. They both play the guitar and sing specializing on "Country music".

Abney's replacement as yet has not been announced by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Prowlers Rally to Win 1st Round Tilt

In the 31st district's first round basketball tournament games played on the UND fieldhouse court at Grand Forks, the Crookston Pirates, the Warren Ponies, the Thief River Falls Prowlers, and the Green Wave of East Grand Forks registered victories.

In the tournament—opening game, Crookston shellacked Fisher, winning by an 85 to 57 score. Coach Irv St. John's Warren team edged out Red Lake Falls in a high-scoring tilt, 78 to 65. Thief River Falls, the defending district titlist, made a thrilling rally to defeat Climax, 64 to 61; and East Grand Forks, in the night-cap game Tuesday, trounced the Goodridge Huskies, 66 to 46.

The feature of the first round games was the remarkable fourth period scoring rampage by the Thief River Falls Prowlers. Trailing by a 47 to 31 score entering the final period, and by a 48 to 31 score in the opening minute of the final stanza as Climax' sharp-shooting Brent Amundson dunked in a Viking free throw to open the final quarter, the Prowlers looped in 33 points to notch a splendid up-hill victory over a classy Climax club. Final score, Thief River Falls, 64, Climax, 61.

The Prowlers, with jump-shooting Mickey Hanson, drive-in Phil Hanson, hooking Ken DeLap, rebounding Jim Bennes, and aggressive Dave Rasmussen scoring the field goals, chopped down that seemingly insurmountable Climax lead.

With 2:29 to play, and DeLap leaving the game on his fifth personal, following Jim Bennes who had left the game via the personal foul route with 5:35 to play, Climax held a 59 to 54 lead. Rasmussen drove in to shove a lay-up shot into the west basket, paring the lead to 59 to 56. But with 1:54 to play Rasmussen left the game on fouls.

Brent Amundson, who's first period shooting had given the Vikings their early lead, dropped in a pair of free throws, boosting Climax' lead to 61 to 56. Mickey Hanson hit on a jump shot, and when cool Lynn Nicholson dropped in a pair of free throws on Gary Monson's fifth foul, the Prowlers trailed by a point, 61 to 60, with 1:24 to play. With 38 seconds remaining Mickey Hanson, from the lane, looped in a jump shot, and the Prowlers gained the lead for the first time during the game. With sixteen seconds to play, Hanson was given a free throw, and Mickey dropped in the try, and then added the bonus, giving the Prowlers their "insurance" points, and the game 64 to 61.

In breaking a six-game losing streak, the Prowlers were paced in their scoring by Mickey Hanson, who hit for ten field goals and three free throws for a 23-point production, and Phil Hanson, who totaled four field goals and four free throws for 12 points. Southpaw Brent Amundson, who scored five field goals and a pair free throws in the first half as Climax sped away to a 18 to 6 lead at the end of the first period, and a 33 to 17 margin at the half, added two field goals and five free throws in the second half to rack up 21 points for the losers.

Ask 40 et 8 Unit to Sponsor Peewees

Men Seek Backing for Young Hockey Players

At a meeting of the Thief River Falls 40 & 8 voiture February 25, Paul Bedard and Don Houfek, representing the local pee wee hockey group, proposed to the 40 & 8 membership that their organization become official sponsors for the pee wees.

They explained that midget hockey, a still younger group of hockey players sponsored by the local V.F.W. club, has proved to be a good training ground for beginning players of grade school age. Pee wee hockey, which is intended to bridge the gap between this group and high school teams, has been neglected in the past two years because of lack of official sponsorship.

The voiture referred the request to a committee for study.

Almost half of all government workers of the executive branch are employed by the Defense Department.

Selective Service to Test Prospective College Men May 1st

The Selective Service college qualification test will be given to college men May 1, 1958, Lt. Colonel Murley A. Reep, State Director of Selective Service for Minnesota announced today. The May 1 test will be the only test offered for the 1957-58 school year, the State Director said.

Scores made on the test are used by local boards as one guide in considering requests for deferment from military service to continue studies.

Application cards and instructions may be obtained from Selective Service local boards after Monday, March 10. Men planning to take the test were urged by Lt. Colonel Reep to make early application at the nearest local board office for fuller information and necessary forms and materials.

The state director pointed out that student deferments which test scores have helped determine since 1951, have been a major factor in insuring the nation its present supply of manpower. Many students deferred since the testing program was begun are today scientists, engineers and specialists in other technical fields and in the social sciences, teaching and humanities.

Test scores, with other information which each registrant is required to provide his local board, will help those boards continue to insure the national strength by making the best possible decisions on how and when a man may best contribute to the national defense, the state director added.

In previous years, two regular and one make-up test customarily have been given. But with fewer men applying to take the test, it was announced last summer that only one test would be offered this school year.

Many men are able to complete undergraduate study before reaching an age when induction can be expected and do not need to seek a deferment it was pointed out. Draft calls presently are for men over 22 years old, he added.

Emphasizing that no make-up test will be offered, the state director warned students wishing to take the test to obtain 1958 application cards and other material from the local board. Use of old application cards may result in students missing the test.

Applications must be postmarked not later than midnight Friday, April 11, 1958. The test will be administered by Science Research Associates, Inc., of Chicago, Illinois.

'58 State Highway Map Is Available

Half-million Copies Will Be Distributed

Minnesota's 1958 official highway map, designed and illustrated by the state Highway department to mark the state's centennial year, became available today for distribution to the public. A half million copies are being printed to be available at the Highway department's central office in St. Paul and its district officers, from county auditors, auto clubs, tourist bureaus and hotels.

Besides bearing the official map of all state trunk highways the 32x38-inch sheet, printed in six colors, on both sides, includes a welcome from Governor Orville L. Freeman to visit Minnesota's historic and scenic areas during the centennial year, pictures of historic scenes and personages, and listings of historical dates, highway markers directing to historic scenes, and of state parks. The historic sites and parks are keyed to their map locations.

On the reverse side, there also is a large map of the surveyed portion of Minnesota as of 1858, showing locations of roads built by that time by federal and local agencies, roads then surveyed but not built, and the historic Red river trails. There are also lists of the state's counties and of cities and incorporated villages, with their population figures and also keyed for location on the highway map.

Conservationist Group Appoints General Manager

Effective March 1, Verne E. Joslin of St. Paul, who has been Twin Cities representative for the Free Press company of Mankato the past four years, becomes general manager of the Minnesota Conservation Federation, according to Dr. Arthur E. [illegible] tion president. He will continue to edit the federation's monthly publication, "Minnesota Out-of-Doors," which he has been doing the past two years.

From 1928 to 1942 Mr. Joslin owned and published the Heron Lake News and is a past president of the Minnesota Editorial association. From 1942 to 1953 he was employed by the State of Minnesota, three years as acting director of the game and fish division and nine years as director of the Minnesota tourist bureau, now know as the division of publicity.

Mr. Joslin is serving his 13th year as secretary-treasurer of the International Ass'n. of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners.

Wardens Arrest 398 in January

Arrests for violations of the game and fish laws during January nearly doubled those of a year ago, reports Arthur Emroe, assistant chief game warden.

Wardens made 398 arrests as compared to 201 made in January of last year.

Ice fishing violations account for the bulk of the apprehensions. Transporting loaded or uncased firearms resulted in 21 arrests.

Other violations included those involving big and small game, trapping, polluting state waters and minnows.

In 1956 U.S. manufacturers' sales totaled $331 billion, compared to $317 billion in 1955.

"The ability to discriminate between that which is true and that which is false is one of the last attainments of the human mind."

—J. Fenimore Cooper

Lavish Living

The United States Air Force is to be commended for its recent action in recalling its top commander from the Philippines on the ground that he had undermined morale by lavish living. The Major General is charged with having "exercised poor judgment".

Much of the resentment toward Americans in foreign countries is due to this kind of poor judgment not only by American military and civilian employees but also by tourists. By the standards of most foreigners we are a nation of wealthy wastors, and too much given to bluster and brag.

Some consideration has been given to the proposal that our agents and employees in foreign countries be given drawing accounts somewhat in relation to earnings in the country in which they serve. The balance of their salaries would be made available to them upon their return home and in most cases would be a tidy sum. The idea has much merit.

At any rate it is encouraging to know that the top brass is concerned about the problem and that a major general is being disciplined for this kind of misconduct. This action probably will serve as an effective example for the many good men serving our country thruout the world.

A Backward Step

One of the highly controversial questions the present Congress will have to act upon is the proposed five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. This act dates back 24 years to the early period of the Roosevelt administration when it was adopted as a reform measure. Since that time tariffs have been reduced more than 80 percent in treaties with other nations that have made corresponding concessions to us. During the intervening years our foreign trade has increased tremendously. Our exports and imports have multiplied many times.

The five year extension of this Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act is now being urged by a Republican administration, and, believe it or not, there is some likelihood that it will not be approved by a Congress that is controlled by the Democrats.

It no doubt is true that tariff reduction has been detrimental to the interests of some special groups that have lost some of the protection they once enjoyed. These protectionist groups are now highly organized and by combining their attack it is possible that they may be able to defeat the measure or to cripple it by amendments so as to make it ineffective.

There could be no more damaging blow to our international relations than to have our position on international trade reversed. Far better that we discontinue all forms of foreign aid than to serve notice on the world that we no longer are going to encourage a free exchange of goods and services among friendly nations.

Our United States of America has become great as a nation largely because we have not permitted barriers to be erected against a free exchange of goods and services between the states. The success of our own experiment here among the states justifies the hope that through industry and commerce we may gradually build world prosperity and security.

To reverse our position on this question at this time would be a step backward from the standpoint of our own economy and would undo much of what has already been accomplished, through the sacrifice of men and dollars, in the interests of world peace.

Politics at its Worst

In a night session Friday the Senate voted a postal rate increase that would bring in an additional 700 million dollars of revenue, reducing the operating deficit of the department by that amount. But in the same measure a pay increase for federal employees that would cost much more than this additional revenue was authorized. The Senate divided pretty much along party lines, the Republicans generally favoring a lower administration-proposed pay increase. It is considered likely that in this form the bill would be vetoed.

Some years ago Congress made quite a to-do about taking the post office department out of politics and that action was generally popular. A service that at one time had commanded a great deal of respect had become a political plaything. It was hoped that, separated from politics, efficient, low-cost service could be maintained. But the post office department is too tempting a plum, and the politicians refuse to yield their control to good management.

It should be noted that the vicious pressure group favoring continued loose operation is not the employee organization. There are many big businesses that are now being subsidized under the present postage rate structure and these businesses do not want the rate structure disturbed. They want us to continue paying for the postal service with tax dollars. And where so many millions of dollars are at stake we suggest that a congressional investigation of the activities of this particular pressure group might properly be considered.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

An old-timer is a fellow who can remember having to go to the grocery with his wife because she couldn't carry home $5 worth of groceries.—The Treynor (Iowa) Record.

At a small party a lady was heard to admonish her husband, "Joe, that's the fourth time you've gone back for more food. Doesn't it embarrass you?"

"Not at all," said her spouse. "I tell them I'm getting it for you."

Price Support Program

The continued downward trend in the income and buying power of our farm population is one of the most urgent matters now before Congress. We must move toward a solution and we must do so without delay. The April 1 date set by Secretary of Agriculture Benson as the effective date of the reduction in dairy price supports is perilously near, and unless the decision is rescinded, Minnesota dairy farmers will lose an additional $20 million during the next marketing year. This would be serious enough if we were in a period of stable prices, but at a time when the cost of everything from food and clothing to the cost of sending our children to school is on the rise, it is little less than tragic. The Department of Labor has just announced that the cost of living rose again in January. It has taken the biggest monthly spurt since July 1956. This means that a middle income family grows now ETAOIN ETAOINN now pays $12.23 for the same amount of goods that cost $10 in the 1947-49 period.

Price vs. Production

In 1913 Secretary of Agriculture Benson made a sizeable reduction in the support level for dairy products. He maintained that by lowering the price paid to the farm, the farmer would then cut production and our so-called surplus problem would be solved. The experience of the past four years has proven the [illegible] spite of lowered prices, production both nationally and in Minnesota has increased every year since 1953. Yet the Secretary insists on a further reduction. This can only serve to take money out of the pocket of the dairy farmer and at the same time make him increase his production to partially offset his losses.

Joint Resolution

In order to prevent the Secretary from further reducing price supports and acreage allotments, I have joined with Senator Symington in introducing Joint Resolution 150. This resolution prevents the Department of Agriculture from lowering support levels without the prior consideration of Congress. In essence, this measure will require that any commodity shall not be priced (in terms of dollars and cents) any lower than it was during the marketing year or season which began in 1957.

Acreage Quotas

In letters to every member of the House and Senate Committees on Agriculture, I have asked for immediate consideration of my bill to restore the acreage reserve funds for 1958 to the full amount authorized in the original soil bank act. Farmers were not told they would have to sign up on a first-come, first-serve basis and as a result, Minnesota's quota is already oversubscribed by more than 150%. The farmer is the innocent victim. If he had been informed that there was to be only a limited sign up, he would have had to take his own chances, but he was not, and under the circumstances, he deserves some protection.

Expanded Food For Freedom

We are pushing for expansion and extension of Public Law 480—the Agricultural Trade Development, and Assistance Act—to make it a more effective means of converting our agricultural abundance into a vital instrument of peace in support of our foreign policy objectives abroad. I have asked for a two-year extension of the Act, plus an increase in the sales level for foreign currencies. In addition, we have also requested that the scope of commodities upon which voluntary agencies may draw for relief needs be broadened.

Now, team this all-new automatic with Ford's new Thunderbird-powered V-8 (with up to 300 hp) and you get as much as 15% better gas mileage, too! That's because a special gas-saving rear axle ratio is used to give you all the savings of "built-in" overdrive economy.

And based on factory suggested retail delivered prices, a Cruise-O-Matic Ford is priced lowest of the low-price three with comparable equipment.

So, with Thunderbird go... down-to-earth gas savings... plus Ford's traditionally low prices and high resale return... you have the best reasons in the world to make yourself a deal on a beautiful new Cruise-O-Matic Ford!

State Highways Cost Well above $1 Billion

More than one billion 233 million dollars has been invested in the Minnesota state highway system since it was created in 1921, a compilation of highway department financial reports showed Wednesday.

This was made possible primarily by taxes levied exclusively against users of the highways, the motorists and truck operators of the state. Third major source of revenue has been federal aid.

Of the total investment, more than one billion and 50 million dollars has been spent for actual highway construction and maintenance, Commissioner L. P. Zimmerman said. Other major expenditures were for equipment, administration and services, including the highway patrol and the driver's license division.

Construction figures alone show the great increase of highway department activities. In the 19 years from 1921 through 1940, slightly more than 234 million dollars was spent on building the system, while in the 16 years from 1941 through last December 31, more than 495 millions was spent. The state now is in the early stages of building a 728-million-dollar system of interstate freeways over federal government will pay for 90 per cent of this.

Another indication of modernization of the system is the growth of the highway patrol, which was started in 1929 with the next 15 to 20 years, but the first expenditure of $13,450. By last year it had grown to an annual expense item of $1,829,586, but during the year the patrol brought an income of $882,677 in fines collected.

Another revenue-producing unit is the driver's license division, which has cost $5,414,319 since it was organized as a separate section. License fees charged by the division have brought in $4,944,715.

Principal income from the time the highway department was organized through last June has included $492,304,862 from state motor vehicle licenses, $[illegible] from the department's two-thirds share of the state gasoline tax and $200,740,433 in federal aid.

Last July 1 new laws changed the method of income so that all vehicle taxes and all gasoline taxes now go into the highway users fund, of which 62 per cent goes to the highway department, 29 per cent to the counties and nine per cent to municipalities of 5,000 or more population. Under this system, highway department income for the last six months of 1957 was $21,972,316 from the Highway Users fund plus $15,900,000 in federal aid.

Under the highway users fund formula of distribution, the highway department will lose about 16 million dollars annually in income.

Look out for Bad Drivers: Warning

State Traffic Director Urges Defensive Driving

"Drivers are no safer than the worst drivers on the highways." This warning was issued today by Harry A. Sieben, Minnesota highway safety director, in announcing that "Defensive Driving" is the March theme of the year-long Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents program.

"Knowing and obeying traffic laws, driving at safe speeds and using courtesy are not enough to protect the driver from the unsafe acts of others," he said. "But defensive driving helps the safe driver to anticipate those acts and be prepared to avoid collisions."

Defensive driving is the technique used to avoid traffic accidents by anticipating all hazardous situations created by others and by adverse traffic and weather conditions, Sieben said. The "DD" technique avoids those situations which are the result of human errors.

In three out of four fatal traffic accidents, one or more driver violations are noted on accident reports made by investigating officers. In the other fatal accidents, driver or pedestrian errors of judgement or lack of skill—rather than violations—were often involved.

Defensive driving should be used where pedestrians are concerned, too. Pedestrians also commit errors in judgement for which drivers must be prepared to avoid accidents.

Low Bids Entered on Highway Work in Northern Area

The Minnesota highway department received apparent low bids totaling $3,112,609 on 14 pro-trunk highways in 12 counties, State Highway Commissioner L. P. Zimmerman announced yesterday.

The projects listed more than 44 miles of trunk highway improvements, five bridges and the clearing of buildings from the right of way on two inter-state Routes in St. Paul (T.H. 390 and T.H. 392). Contracts will be awarded after checking of the bids.

The projects include in this area:

Beltrami County, T.H. 72—Grading and gravel subbase of 12 miles between Kelliher and a point 4½ miles south of Waskish, Megarry Bros., St. Cloud, $358,713. Work to be started by June 2 and to be completed in 125 working days.

Itasca County, T.H.1—Grading and gravel surfacing of 8.1 miles between a point 5.7 miles east of Effie and a point 10.4 miles west of Togo, Fischer Construction Co., Farmington, $158,362. Work to be started by June 2 and to be completed in 80 working days.

The rings around the planet Saturn are composed of tiny, highly reflective solid particles or "moonlets."

46 Die in Traffic in January, Same as '57

Minnesota started its 1958 traffic fatality record at the same rate as 1957, according to a January report issued by the Minnesota Highway department.

During January, 1957, 46 persons died in traffic mishaps to begin the year which found traffic deaths reaching an all time high with 684 killed.

During January, 1958 46 persons also died in traffic mishaps.

One cause for the total reaching the 1957 figure was the big jump in pedestrian deaths. Ten pedestrians were killed, two and one half times the number of a year ago when only four persons walked to their death. Six of the pedestrians died in urban areas on low speed streets compared to four who died on rural highways. Over the past five years, pedestrian deaths have averaged 20 per cent of the total traffic deaths. During 1957, pedestrian deaths accounted for one-sixth or 16 percent of the total deaths.

Speed continues to be a major factor in accidents. Therefore there will be a continuing emphasis on the "Slow Down and Live" program during 1958. Harry A. Sieben, Minnesota's director of highway safety, pointed out that the nation-wide safety promotion is aimed at the in-a-hurry attitude of many drivers whose bad judgement endangers the safety of others.

"Speed in itself is not the target of this program," he said, "but rather we will direct our program at harmful driving habits, particularly repeated bad judgement, so that all highways will be safe-ways on which we can drive without fear."

1957 marked the end of a four-year downward trend in the fatal accident rate. Since 1952, the accident rate has fallen steadily to a 5.2 rate in 1956. Last year that rate hit 5.3 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles.

With the exception of the few years of World War II, the number of total reported motor vehicle accidents in the state has risen steadily to an all-time high in 1957 of over 55,000.

Its spiritual message strengthens you, its worship services enrich your life, its opportunities for leadership increase your ability.

In the Church you will find other fathers and mothers with problems similar to your own. You will find boys and girls, men and women, working together, and from these beginnings will grow a better home life, a better community, a better world.

Yes, this is a beginning. Start now to make your home a center of Christian activity . . . and make the Church your home!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

[illegible] character and good citizenship. It [illegible] democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Marshall Women Now Bagging Flour Ground at Old Mill

Miniature Sacks to Be Sold as Souvenirs by Centennial Committee

Marshall county homemakers will have their hands full (of flour) during the next few weeks as they will be called upon to fill and sew the souvenir sacks for the Marshall County Statehood Centennial Committee. The sacks will be filled with flour ground in the mill at the Old Mill State Park.

Club leaders can pick up their supply of bags at the county extension office at the Marshall county courthouse in Warren immediately, according to Miss Janice Kyseth, Marshall county home agent. Instruction sheets will be furnished with each bundle of bags distributed.

Each of the 10,000 bags received is to be filled with six ounces or three-fourths of a cup of flour, Miss Kyseth said. Mailing tags are stitched to the bags so that they can be mailed as souvenirs without any inconvenience.

Writing on the sacks states, "This souvenir sack of flour was ground for you at Minnesota's Old Mill State Park, using the original mill stones of a century ago."

About 1½ tons of flour have been ground at the mill and distributed to the homemaker clubs throughout the county. No date for sale of the souvenir sacks has been announced, but they will be sold for 50 cents each by the Marshall County Statehood Centennial committee when the sale begins to raise funds for Marshall county's noted ox cart trek.

Shootin' the Breeze

BY Mack Draper

The boys who keep tab on the traffic fatalities in Minnesota must be breathing a little easier so far this year, with the death count, so far, about 25 under what it was a year ago at this time. At this writing that would also be about 25 per cent less for last year we had 100 and this year at the same time there were only 75 fatalities.

Twice a week, on Monday and Thursday, I talk to the boys at patrol headquarters here and they seem pleased that there have been so few accidents in the 8th district. Asked for his opinion about why the count was lower this year, Captain Walter Anderson said that it would be hard to pinpoint the exact reason for the year-to-year variation.

Among the factors he mentioned as affecting this year's decline were better driving on the part of motorists, better driver education, possibly a slight reduction in traffic in some parts of the state— and a lot of luck.

Whatever the reason for it, everyone hopes we can improve on last year's sorry record when an all-time high number of traffic deaths went on the books in Minnesota.

You come to think of it, the way we bump into each other on the highways is slightly ridiculous. [illegible] sidewalk; why do it on the road?

We read of fatal accidents at [illegible] visibility is unobstructed for miles. In such a case there can be no doubt about some human failure somewhere. To me it seems an indication that one, or both, of the drivers wasn't driving and farther ahead of his car than the hood ornament. You can't do that and live long!

Under most circumstances I figure two miles is the least I can drive ahead of the car. Look at it this way: two cars, each traveling at 60 m.p.h., when approaching each other have a closure rate of 120 m.p.h. In other words, they'll close a mile gap between them and pass in 30 seconds.

Under normal conditions it takes a good part of 30 seconds— I don't remember - the exact - figure to pass another car going in the same direction you are traveling. If you are meeting a car when you are about to pass another, about the absolute minimum distance allowable for the approaching car would be a mile —preferably more!

In my book the less passing we do the safer we are, so long as we don't have many 4-land divided highways. If everyone drove at about the same speed and kept a reasonable distance apart it would eliminate a great deal of passing, thus reducing the accident potential from such situations.

The overly fast driver is no more guilty of creating a hazard than the poke-along driver in this respect. And, the more traffic there is the more the passing factor is involved in traffic accidents.

All these things come under the heading of highway courtesy. If you drive 50 when everyone else is driving 60 your are creating a hazard for other highway users—and this definitely isn't courteous, is it? One's privilege of setting his own speed does not [illegible] highway users' lives are endangered.

Last, but not least, we note that Governor Freeman, in a recent statement said he might favor a periodic testing of drivers in the state if he thought it would cut highway accidents.

Well—perhaps. But, most folks wouldn't go for that because of the cost and red tape involved in such a program. It might do far more good to call in all those drivers who were never required to take a drivers examination and give them one. Such people may not be involved in many accidents but it's a pretty safe bet that they cause a lot more than the figures show. Your opinion?

And, that's the lecture for today, folks. SO LONG!

C GUSTAV HARD
ORRIN C TURNQUIST
AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

Starting Flower Seeds Indoors

Now is the time to start the annual flowers you will want to plant in the garden this spring. Among those which should be started now are ageratum, browallia, carnation, dahlia, lobelia, petunia, pinks, verbena, and torenia. Also start perennials and alpine plants which you would like to have bloom this year.

These flowers are usually started in flats. A flat should be at least 3 inches deep. Shallow clay pots and azalea pans may be used also. If you use flats, plant the seeds in rows spaced about 2 inches apart. In clay pots, broadcast the seeds on the surface of the medium.

A good soil mixture is loose in texture but holds plenty of moisture. Good drainage is essential. Mix the soil thoroughly and then put through a ¼ inch screen. Put the soil in the pot or flat and then level it off and firm it slightly so there is a smooth surface about an inch from the top of the container. To prevent damping-off, a disease which kills many seedlings, use a ½ inch layer of sphagnum moss over the top of the soil mixture. Put the moss through a ¼ inch screen and moisten before putting it over the soil.

Plant the seeds thinly so they are about ½ inch apart. Plant very fine seeds more closely. Cover the seeds lightly with the screened sphagnum moss or with washed sand. Water carefully, using a fine spray, or place pots in a pan of water until the surface appears moist.

Place a glass over the top of the pot, shading it with a newspaper until the seedlings appear. Set in a room about 68 degree F. until the seeds germinate. When the seedlings are up, remove the paper and tilt the glass slightly to allow air to circulate over the surface of the pot. Place pot or flat in a south window where there is good ventilation and where the temperature is between 55 and 60. Never allow the soil to dry out. Flats may be covered with moist newspaper to keep the seeds moist until they germinate.

Crookston Dethrones Prowlers in 31st Dist.

An emotionally spent Prowler squad, playing a sluggish brand of ball, permitted the fast-moving Crookston Pirates to gain a 21 to 8 lead in the first period of the 31st district basketball tournament championship finals at Grand Forks on Thursday night, and that was the margin, 13 points, by which coach Al Droen's club dethroned the defending champion locals, winning by a 58 to 45 score.

Crookston will represent the district in the regional cage tourney which will be played on the UND fieldhouse court on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 11 and 12. Crookston will meet Bemidji of district 29, the defending regional champions, in a first round game, with tip-off time on Tuesday night slated for 7:30 p. m.

In a consolation game played Thursday night prior to the championship tilt, the Green Wave of East Grand Forks, with Dick Raymond dropping in 12 field goals, defeated the Warren Ponies, 75 to 49.

In the championship game, it was apparent that the Prowlers' two preceding tournament games, against Climax, in which the locals rallied for a 33-point fourth period, and against East Grand Forks, in which the locals were forced to hold off a threatening Green Wave team, had take their toll. Coach Al Adams' squad allowed the Crookston Pirates to maneuver into position to set up their scoring plays, capitalize on several fast breaks and move into a commanding 21 to 8 first period. In this game-deciding first period, the Pirates notched seven field goals and added seven free throws, while the Prowlers, on field goals by Jim Bennes and Mickey Hanson, and four free throws, could garner but eight points. Three of Crookston's field goals came as the result of a fast break, with Ken Wold, Roger McWaters, and Mert Fish outfooting the Prowler defense to score on a lay-up shot.

Also a factor in providing the Pirates with their first period bulge was the defensive work of Crookston's Ken Wold, who held Phil Hanson scoreless.

The Prowlers, with aggressive Dave Rasmussen driving thru the Pirate defense for three lay-up shots, outpointed Crookston, 13 to 12, in the second period, and left the court at the intermission trailing by a 33 to 21 margin.

In the third period, the Prowlers yielded that one point that they had regained in the second quarter, being outpointed by the Pirates, 9 to 8, and were down by a 13-point margin, 42 to 29, entering the final eight minutes of play.

Famed for their remarkable fourth period play, the Prowlers mounted a rally to open the final stanza and, using an all-court press, the locals racked up eight points to narrow the lead to 42 to 37. Ken DeLap dropped in a pair of free throws, Phil Hanson hit on a jump shot, DeLap added another pair of free throws, and Lynn Nicholson, breaking up a Crookston play, dribbled in for a lay-up, and the Prowlers trailed by only five points with 6:29 to play.

Mert Fish dropped a couple of Pirate free throws, but Mickey Hanson flipped a jump shot into the east basket. Wold, following a free throw try, scored a rebound field goal, but Phil Hanson's jump shot kept the Prowlers within five points of the Pirates. Fish hit on a hook shot, and Rog McWaters ringed in a pair of free throws, moving Crookston into a 50 to 41 lead with 3:50 to play. Ken DeLap was forced out of the Prowler lineup at this point via personal fouls.

Phil Hanson's jump shot, with 3:30 to play, lifted the Prowler hopes, but free throws by Fish, Jerry Solheim, and Bill Taylor, as the Prowlers were losing Jim Bennes and Mickey Hanson on fouls, dimmed these hopes.

Fish scored a field goal on a rebound with 1:15 to play, and that two-pointer "insured" the game for the Prowlers. Phil Hanson's jump shot and Bill Taylor's in-the-lane toss closed out the game scoring, giving the Pirates a 58 to 45 triumph.

Black Hawk Six Wins Midget Hockey Title

Two evenings of furious hockey activity was concluded at 9:18 P.M. on Friday night at the Arena rink when the game-ending buzzer sounded to close out Black Hawks vs. Rangers midget hockey finals game.

The city recreation board's fine "kid" hockey program was brought to a finale for the 1957-58 season with a two-day tournament.

On Thursday evening in grade school league competition, the Washington team, with Elory Froland and Larry Joppru scoring, defeated the Northrop Indians, 2 to 0. Getting credit for the shut-out goal-tending was goalie David Erickson. In the other grade school semi-finals match, the powerful St. Bernard's Broncos, with Wayne Loeffler tallying four goals, Dennis Halder three goals, and Bill Allison a single, trounced the Knox Tigers, 8 to 3. Bobby Sturdahl accounted for two of the Knox goals, with Jerry Forsberg scoring the third goal.

In midget hockey league play, Thursday night's first round

On Friday night, in the grade school finals, St. Bernard's, after spotting Washington a 1 to 0 lead on Don Mathieu's first period goal, with Froland assisting, came back to even the game at 1-all on David Froehle's goal midway in the third period, and [illegible] in the period. Members of the title-winning St. Bernard's team are Jim [illegible], Dennis Halder, Bill Allison, Pat Munt, Delwin Schoh, Charles Langevin, Mike Solsten, Dave Froehle, Bob Loeffler, Dennis Sullivan, Tom Miller, and Bill Myrchin.

In a 2-3-4 grade tilt, between the Jets and the Rockets, the Jets, on goals by Wayne Smith and David Wegge, defeated the Rockets, 2 to 1. Charlie Bedard scored the lone Rocket goal. Members of the winning Jets are John Olson, Wayne Smith, Merle games found Larry Poole's Black Hawks scoring a 7 to 3 win over Gary Gustafson's Red Wings. The Pooles, with Tony scoring four goals and older brother Larry hitting the laces for three goals, monopolized the Black Hawk scoring. Red Wing scoring was done by Wayne Loeffler, who scored twice, and Jim Ranum.

The high light game of Thursday night's program was the overtime tilt between Jack Houfek's Rangers and Tim Teal's Bruins, and which was won by Rangers, 1 to 0, on Houfek's goal in the overtime period. Sampson, David Wegge, Bobby Sullivan, Bobby Gall, Marvin Johnson, Mark Halvorson, Mike Kusmak, Monte LeMoine, Stephen Nablen, Pat Walker, and Dan Dowers.

In the midget league finals, the Black Hawks, after trailing the Rangers by a 1 to 0 score in the early minutes of the game when David Iverson scored on an assist from Gene Fisher, tallied to roll up a 6 to 1 win over the Rangers. Larry Poole scored four goals for the winners, while Tony Poole notched a pair of tallies. The members of the winning Black Hawks are Lynn Lian, Murray Down, Ronald Lindberg, Ronald Kvikstad, Larry Poole, Tony Poole, Dick Anderson, and Bobby McCrum.

The midget and grade school hockey program was under the direct supervision of Paul Bedard and Art Cloutier, with Don Houfek giving valuable voluntary assistance.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Our All-district Selection

By and with the consent and advice of the side-line and locker-room experts, it's our consensus that the following boys played first-rate basketball in the 31st district tournament that was concluded at Grand Forks on Thursday night.

Ken Wold of Crookston, an inspiring type of player, and the boy who congealed the Crookston Pirates into a district championship unit; Phil Hanson of the Prowlers, as smooth a performer as the tournament exhibited; Brent Amundson, the southpaw from Climax who nearly tipped the Prowlers in a first round game, hitting on a variety of shots; Roger McWaters, the Crookston tow-head who sliced through the Prowler defense for numerous lay-up shots in the title-deciding game on Thursday night; Tom Knutson the rapidly-improving string bean from Warren, and who proved to be a scoring threat whenever the Pony playmakers could get the ball in to him; and Paul Havig, the lanky and bespectacled East Grand Forks center, and who was a problem for the Prowlers until the locals began to press and thus force Havig to come out and give his down-court mates some help.

But it is surely tragic that such players as Dave Hanson and Keith Johnson, both of whom were members of last season's Prowler district champions, should have ran afoul of eligibility problems this season. It would have been a joy to see such a potential Prowler team in action. District champions? A cinch! Regional champions? Very probable. And state champions? Could have been.

For the Record

Here's a recital of the number of personal fouls that the Prowlers committed, or rather were called on the locals, during the recent district basketball tournament: Thief River Falls, 27, Climax, 13; Thief River Falls, 22, East Grand Forks, 16; and Thief River Falls, 26, Crookston, 11. That accumulates to a total of 75 fouls called against the Prowlers, while a total of 43 were called against the opposition.

So that a perspective of the foul situation can judged, we'll call off the fouls that were called against the Prowlers in district tournament games over the past several years. 1954—Thief River Falls, 13, East Grand Forks, 23; Thief River Falls, 20, Warren, 16; and Thief River Falls, 17, Red Lake Falls, 11. 1956—Thief River Falls, 20, Al[illegible] 8, Climax, 19, 1956—Thief River Falls, 17, Warren, 10; Thief River Falls, 18, Climax, 22; and Thief River Falls, 19, Crookston, 20.

The three-game totals, during these years, progress like this: 1954—50; 1956—43; 1957—54; and 1958—75. And in 1954, 1956, and 1957, the ratio of Prowler fouls vs. the opponents fouls were just about even. This year the figures reveal fouls to the number of 75 for the locals, and an average number, 43, for the opposition.

It's probably true this season's club lacked finesse and mobility, but not too such an extent.

Query

Who was this overly-enthusiastic Prowler basketball fan who, after the nerve-wracking experiences of the Prowlers' district tournament games against Climax and East Grand Forks, was forced to consult a local doctor prior to Thursday night's championship finals and who, after the consultation, accepted a prescription for tranquilizer pills?

In accepting this prescription for the tranquilizers, this individual made this plea to the doctor: "Doctor, don't give me such potent tranquilizers that I will become so relaxed that I will cheer for the officials tonight."

Clearing the Rebounds

There is a possibility that Dave Hanson, the most potent scorer in Prowler basketball history, will enroll at Concordia college at Moorhead. If that event should occur, good for Dave. The six-foot five-inch, 215-pound Hanson is a prime college prospect, and it is fitting and proper for him to enroll at the Cobber school where he will be following the extra-large foot-prints of Art Johnson.

We hear, too, that Marc Kolden, a fine forward on the Bemidji Lumberjack squad, has decided to attend Concordia. Now if the Cobbers can only persuade Ray Cronk to enroll at the Moorhead school!

Another rumor that was reported to us last week was to the effect that Herschel (Pepper) Lysaker, Crookston's fine all-round athlete of last season, isn't too enchanted with his surroundings at Minnesota. He may transfer to Concordia, or accept appointment to one of the United States academies. Pepper, who is rated as a fine Gopher football prospect, being a quarterback candidate, apparently misses his basketball. Well, the Cobbers would be "sitting pretty" if they could get Dave Hanson, Marc Kolden, Ray Cronk and Pepper [illegible] He's Arlo Brunsberg?

Thieves Win First 2 Loop Playoff Games

The Thief River Falls Thieves advanced into the finals of the Northwest hockey league playoffs when, in a two-game total-goal series against the fourth place Crookston Pirates, coach Paul Bedard's club rolled up a decisive 23 to 3 margin.

Playing at Crookston on Saturday night, the Thieves, with a five-goal cluster in the second period, trounced the Pirates, 11 to 1. The Thieves, on goals by Sid Vrsa, Glenn Carlson, and Art Cloutier, held a 3 to 1 lead in the first period. In the second stanza, a pair of goals by Mike McMahon, and single tallies by Vrsa, Mick Hajostek, and Monty Markstrom, pushed the locals into a commanding lead.

The Thieves added three goals to build up their margin to 11 to 1, and gave the locals a 10-goal lead as the two teams moved over to Thief River Falls for the second game of the series on Sunday afternoon.

The Pirates gave the Thieves a stubborn game for a period and a half on Sunday afternoon, but then the superior manpower of the local club took its toll. The Pirates had only nine players suited up for Sunday's tilt here. And in the early minutes of the second period the visitors lost their goalie, Lyle Brekken, when a shot off Gordy Bjerken's stick slashed open his right cheek. Vaudrin finished out the game in the nets for the Pirates.

Ice conditions permitting, the Thieves will enter a two-game total-goal series, on a home-and-home basis, for the league playoff championship on Saturday and Sunday.

Minnesota Bar Assn. Explains Deductions for Medical Expense

This is the ninth in a series of articles on Income Tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association, public relations committee.

While medical expenses are deductible on both your federal and Minnesota returns, there are important differences in determining the deduction allowable under federal and Minnesota law. Your deduction is not limited ot the medical expenses of you and your spouse; you may also claim any amounts you paid for medical expenses of dependents whom you provided with over half their support during 1957. Most medical expenses are deductible in both returns.

The more common examples of such expenses are payments for doctors, dentists, nurses, hospitals, eye glasses, false teeth and hearing aids. However, no deduction is allowed if you were reimbursed for the expense by insurance or otherwise. You may also deduct premiums paid on hospital or medical insurance. This expense is often overlooked since in many cases payment is made directly by the taxpayer's employer.

Federal law is more liberal than Minnesota law in allowing the cost of transportation primarily for and essential to medical care. However, other traveling expenses are not allowable, such as meals and lodging, unless the cost appears in the bill of a hospital or comparable institution. Minnesota does not allow the cost of travel for medical care, but you may claim on your Minnesota return hotel and lodging expense incurred after discharge from a hospital if you, your spouse, or a dependent is required to remain in the town in which the hospital is located for additional medical care.

There are strict and technical limitations imposed on the amount of your deduction in your federal return which are not contained in your Minnesota return. The maximum amount of your deduction, which varies between $2,500 and $10,000, will depend on your marital status and the number of your exemptions. Federal deduction is limited to the excess over 3% of adjusted gross income for medical expenses and the excess over 1% of adjusted gross income for drugs and medicines, but such limitations are not contained in your Minnesota return. If either you or your spouse reached the age of 65 in 1957, the 3% limitation may be disregarded in connection with the medical expenses of the two of you (but not those of your other dependents.)

You can only deduct expense actually paid by you in 1957. It is not enough that the expenses was incurred in 1957 if the bill was not paid.

Minnesota Butter Cookie Contest to Wind up March 31

Annual Event Sponsored by Dairy Industry Group and Creamery Operators

Two well-known home economists and last year's association winner are the three judges announced to select the Minnesota champion butter cookie baker in the sixth annual butter cookie contest sponsored by the Minnesota Dairy Industry committee and the Minnesota Creamery Operator's and Managers' association.

Judges are Mrs. Shugard, St. Paul, "Betty Service" of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press; Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, St. Paul 1, consumer Marketing agent, agriculture extension service, University of Minnesota; and Mrs. Elmer Enstad, Route One, Albert Lea, whose tasty "Lemon Drops" in last year's contest won her the association first prize.

On April 2, the three will judge thousands of butter cookies baked by Minnesota homemakers entering the contest. The following day a big share of the cookies will be delivered to the crippled children at Gillette State Hospital, St. Paul, for a special "Milk and Cookie break" over which Princess Kay of the Milky Way will preside along with other state celebrities.

Many valuable prizes will be awarded the winners. All entrants will receive a special metal cookie recipe box. Participants are asked to submit recipes along with at least 18 cookies to the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee, 2239 Carter Avenue, St. Paul 8. Any recipe may be used which contains butter as a primary ingredient. The recipe need not be original. Contest closes Monday, March 31.

Minnesota Near Top in Old-age Payments

Minnesota ranks 10th highest among the states in the amount age assistance recipients, and 8th highest in the amount of payments to individual recipients of aid to dependent children, Norman A. Borgen, executive secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers association said today, quoting the January 1958 issue of the Social Security Bulletin, official publication of the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The average payment to old age assistance recipients throughout the United States for the month of October 1957," Mr. Borgen said, "was $60.07. The average in Minnesota for its 49,504 recipients was $78.12 or about 30 percent higher than the national average. Had the Minnesota payments been at the national average, Minnesota would have spent $860,000 less for old age assistance in that month. On this basis, Minnesota is spending more than $10,000,000 a year above the national average for old age assistance."

"In the field of aid to dependent children," Mr. Borgen continued, "the average recipient for the nation as a whole received $26.18 while in Minnesota he received $40.07 or more than 50 percent higher than the average for the nation. The average general assistance payments per case in Minnesota were $61.47 while the average for the country as a whole was $57.66."

Mr. Borgen also called attention to a current report in Minnesota Welfare, the official publication of the Minnesota Department of Public Welfare. This report says, "In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957 Minnesota's public assistance expenditures totaled $66,922,000, excluding the cost of operating public hospitals and nursing homes. Of this amount $27,323,000 or 40.8 percent was paid from federal funds. For the country as a whole 50.7 percent of public assistance expenditures came from Federal funds."

Potato Diversion Program of USDA to Close March 15

Plan Provided for Diverting Low Grade Potatoes to Other Uses

The program providing payments for diversion of low grades of Irish potatoes to starch, flour and livestock feed will be terminated at the close of business March 15, 1958, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

This program was put into effect last fall to assist in orderly marketing of the 1957 fall potato crop. The marketing period for fall crop potatoes usually closes at the end of the following June.

Under the program, USDA makes payments to growers and other participants for diversion of potatoes into starch, flour and livestock feed. The current rate of payment is 40 cents per hundredweight for potatoes which are of U. S. No. 2 quality or better and have a minimum diameter of 2 inches or a minimum weight of 4 ounces. The program is effective in Washington, Oregon, northern California, Idaho, Colorado, North Dakota, Minnesota, Maine, and three counties in Montana.

These areas are the major sources of our present potato supply. USDA said the supply situation now existing is such that, with continuation of good marketing practices, these areas should be able to dispose of their remaining 1957 fall crop potatoes without encounting marketing difficulties.

Through March 1 approximately 4.5 million hundredweight of low-grade potatoes and 5.4 million hundredweight of cull potatoes were diverted under the program. No payment is made for diversion of culls.

"There are young men who do not work, but the country is not proud of them. It does not even know their names; it only speaks of them as So-and-So's boys. Future Prospects Not Bad

In its current issue, Business Week presents an interesting group of charts along with a story about the past, present, and possible future, of our economy. While any projection of past trends into the future is apt to be wrong in many details, such projections nevertheless do indicate the possibilities and, considered in their proper perspective, serve a useful purpose.

Looking back, the gross national product, the total of all our production, has doubled since 1940. Looking ahead, the total could double again by 1975.

Since 1930 the output per man hour nearly doubled and, with greater mechanization and automation, that trend should continue. Moving in the other direction the average work week is growing steadily smaller.

And so go the charts and the story. The prospect is encouraging. Barring the possibility of suicidal wars and other unpredictable calamities, with good management living conditions by 1975 should be materially improved.

Our sensational progress is attributed largely to research. In 1957 American industry spent $7.3 billion for research and development, almost double the total for 1953. Government, university and foundation spending totalled another $3 billion last year. By 1960, Business Week predicts, "total research and development spending should climb to $15 billion—and create the new products, new processes, even new industries, upon which an economy grows."

If this encouraging prospect does materialize, it is reasonable to assume that the favorable trend toward higher living standards will be interrupted occasionally by setbacks. There will be recessions and maybe some depressions, which seem to be necessary now and then as social sedatives to restore us to economic sanity.

We hope we're alive in '75.

Could Be Helpful

Senator Mike Monroney is urging a joint congressional committee on traffic safety, which might be a good idea. But he is hopeful that a study of this kind would lead to a national safety program with the federal government paying 90 percent of the costs, and that is not a good idea. That would mean one more federal agency duplicating many of the services that should be maintained as state responsibilities.

Please, Senator Monroney, we already have too many federal agencies wasting the dollars that must be collected from us before the government gives some of them back.

There is a proper place for federal participation in the field of traffic safety. The federal government can provide a useful service encouraging coordination among the various state agencies. There is a very urgent need for greater uniformity of safety rules and traffic regulations among the states, and while much progress is being made in this direction, federal agencies could be helpful in speeding up the process through information and guidance rather than by bureaucratic authority.

Time For Revolution?

John Hartle's resignation as state chairman of the Republican party came not as a surprise, but to many citizens who look upon political parties as essential to our form of government, his retirement will be accepted with regret. A southern Minnesota farmer, with many years of service in the legislature to his credit, soft-spoken and mild-mannered John Hartle was an honest and conscientious citizen and party worker.

With John Hartle no longer contributing integrity and respectability to the official family, the Republican party in Minnesota may now be written off as a completely ineffective organization. Only by a thorough renovation and reorganization, which is long overdue, is there hope for its survival.

Now is a good time for such a reorganization. Whether or not the conclusion is correct, many rural Minnesota Republicans have lost interest in the party because of the feeling that it has been a boss-controlled machine, and there has been a general suspicion that the Republican machine has been controlled by the same Minneapolis powers who are in command of the DFL party.

The Republican party needs a rejuvenation, in the state and the nation, and if it is to be the party of conservatives nationally maybe a change of name would be in the best interests of good government. But, here in Minnesota, a revolution probably is a necessary first step.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"Has your wife changed very much since you married her?"

"I'll say—my habits, my friends and my hours."

An American can consider himself a success when it costs him more to support the government than to support a wife and children.

"I'm sorry to tell you that you'll be a widow soon," said a fortune-teller to her client. "Your husband is going to die a violent death."

"Will I be acquitted?" asked her client eagerly.

The most exasperating kind of reducing pill is the one who tells how he did it.

QUESTIONS answered for VETERANS

Additional information [illegible] may be obtained by writing or visiting the VA contact representative at the Grand Forks VA office.

Q—I understand VA benefit checks now can be forwarded by the Post Office. Is this automatic, or do veterans still have to give some sort of notice if they move?

A—Veterans still must give notice. They must file a regular change-of-address form with their local Post Office. And they still should notify VA so the agency may keep its records current.

Q—I had a World War II GI term insurance policy which lapsed in 1946. Is it too late to reinstate or renew it?

A—Yes. Application for reinstatement of GI term insurance must have been made within the policy's term period. Since your term insurance expired, it is too late to reinstate it.

[illegible] compensation and pension [illegible] those compensation because the payments would be higher. If conditions should change [illegible] to receive pension payments, will VA make the switch automatically?

A—No. VA may not make such changes automatically. You must request the change.

Q—I am eligible for War Orphans schooling, but as a Korean veteran I previously took training under the Korean GI Bill. May I still receive the full amount of 36 months of War Orphans education?

A—No. Your entitlement will have to be reduced by the amount of training you received under the Korean GI Bill.

Commercial exports from the United States in 1956 reached a record high of $17.3 billion, a $3 billion gain over 1955, the previous high.

REPORT from the GOVERNOR

by Orville L. Freeman

The preliminary plans have now made for the sixth statewide Governor's Conference on Children and Youth, to be held in Minneapolis on April 28th and 29th. We hope that the conference this year will have even greater success than its predecessor.

Participation

The most important factor that contributes to the success of conferences of this kind is the participation of those who attend. It is not intended that this should be a meeting at which people sit and listen to experts telling them what to do. It is intended as an opportunity for all those interested in problems of children and youth today to raise questions, contribute suggestions, and to tell and hear about the experiences of others.

All are Invited

We hope that among those who register for this conference will be representatives of all [illegible] subject [illegible] organizations, service clubs, and volunteer groups of many kinds are planning to make sure that [illegible] attendance. I am particularly eager to have young people themselves attend and participate.

Discussions Planned

Fourteen panels have been planned for discussion of a wide variety of subjects, including education, recreational opportunities, law enforcement, leisure time problems, social services, and many others. From each of these discussion groups we hope that reports will give us many good suggestions for improving our many programs for extending and expanding opportunities for youth in Minnesota.

Plan to Attend

I am reporting on this proposed conference several weeks in advance because I hope that every community in the state will plan to have in attendance at this conference both adults and young people themselves. The state can only sponsor such a conference as this. It cannot provide for expenses of those who attend. But I know that every interested community can find ways to provide for the expenses of those who wish to come. And I would especially urge that plans be made to send representative young people from student councils, from youth organizations connected with religious bodies, and from other community organizations.

Youth's Contributions

At our last conference nearly 100 young people attended, and constituted nearly a third of the total attendance. It was because these teen agers came and contributed to the conference that we were able to launch the Teen Age Code that has been so successful.

At our conference this year, two young people will be principal speakers at the luncheon on the first day. Others will attend and take part in each of the panel discussions. The Advisory Council that has planned the event has done an excellent job in laying the groundwork for a constructive conference.

I am confident that with continued cooperation from communities throughout our state we can look forward to a positive program for developing to its maximum the potential that lies in our greatest resource—the young people of Minnesota.

THIS WEEK

—In Washington

With Clinton Davidson

Will Rogers once said of Washington: "If you don't like the weather, just wait a minute." To that might be added, the weather isn't the only thing that is changeable in Washington.

To paraphrase the great cowboy humorist, we might observe that "if you don't like Washington policy, just wait awhile." It is the only place in the country where the weather forecaster is right more often than the political prognosticator.

One of the most fascinating, and at the same time baffling, traits of official Washington is its almost complete lack of consistency, plus an inclination to go from one extreme to the other without a wink or a blush.

In more than 25 years of first-hand observance of the Nation's Capital, we have seen policies changed more often than most officials change their shirt. Republicans and Democrats seem equally proficient in changing their minds, often without a pause in the middle of a policy speech.

Just as an example, take farm policy. Since 1933, we have had so many changes in farm policy that no one in the Agriculture Department can remember how many there actually have been. The number must average very close to one a year.

Other examples are plentiful. Since the leaves dropped from the elms along Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington has stopped fighting inflation and switched to combating deflation. In a flash—that of a soaring Sputnik—Washington changed from military complacency to frantic arms spending.

About the only thing that hasn't changed in the past quarter century is the Washington Monument, but now "eyes" are being installed in that so that it can wink at passing airplanes and confused politicians.

One eye looks across the green-carpeted Mall toward the Capitol building; another over the Ellipse at the White House, and a third across the shimmering Reflecting Pool at the implacable marble statue of Abraham Lincoln. If Honest Abe is disturbed by what goes on, his face never shows it.

A fourth eye is beamed to the south, toward George Washington's Mount Vernon home on the banks of the Potomac. There, just over the brow of a hill, lies Washington's tomb. There, things are as they were 150 years ago.

In the city that Washington founded and gave his name, a million people live and work, mostly at running the biggest and most complicated government on earth. Their doubts, their worries, and their ambitions are Washington.

In a city where honesty is a predominant trait, deceit and dishonesty in a few leave their lurid mark on all. Washington washes its dirty linen in public for all the world to see. The only time a congressional committee can be certain of an over-flow audience is when it is investigating wrongdoing.

Washington has been aptly described as a place of "organized confusion." The uninitiated visitor—and there are five million of them each year—never ceases to wonder at the semblance of order that seems to flow out of the confusion. Washington is indeed a remarkable city.

When is Juvenile Delinquency?

Yes, When? The question "What is juvenile delinquency?" is easier to answer: A minor is classified as delinquent if he or she gets caught at a violation of existing law in the community concerned. Obviously some young people break laws without getting caught. Also some juvenile delinquents are law-abiding in most things other than the area of their misdeeds.

Therefore, a more pertinent question to consider, especially if prevention of juvenile delinquency is to be kept prominently in mind is, "When is a juvenile delinquent?" The "when" digs deeply into attitudes and meanings and throws light on its equally important companion, the "why."

Tom makes a start - maybe slow, maybe fast - toward a delinquent frame of mind When he recognizes clearly his duty but makes a decision in favor of his wish, which conflicts with his duty. Jeff heads toward delinquent thinking When he sees his father fail to correct a cashier's error which gives him too much change, and they laugh together and share the ill gotten gains.

Donna heads into delinquent attitudes When she puts her quarter into the cigarette machine at the drug store near her high school. Pearl initiates a wrong turn When she peers across the aisle at her classmate's exam.

Mrs. Olson abets a delinquent course When she prompts 13 year old Bob to lie about his age at the movie ticket window. Mrs. James supports questionable ethics When she writes a school excuse claiming illness for Bab, who was merely sleepy.

Small incidents in isolation, but - they like the small snowball at the top of the hill - pick up speed, size, and over-powering significance as they roll along. What begins as mere "pulling a fast one," if repeated, and reinforced by getting by or gaining rewards, ends in a vicious circle indeed.

The "when" of juvenile delinquency can be anytime, any place, with anybody, and it is everyone's problem in exactly the same amount.

Safety experts list these remedies for highway hypnotism and grogginess. Loud singing, fresh air, frequent rest stops, light food.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Carving a New Territory

★ The year 1849 was very important to Minnesota. It marked the birth of a territory and a state. It was a year of great events brought about by very able men.

The territory of Wisconsin became a state May 28, 1848. There was some contention concerning the western boundary of this new commonwealth. Some proposed the western boundary as the Mississippi river. Others contended for the Rum or the Chippewa. Those concerned with the unborn territory and future state of Minnesota used their influence to establish the St. Croix as the principal western boundary of Wisconsin. Thus were both sides of the Mississippi at the Falls of St. Anthony saved for the future state of Minnesota. A favorable access to Lake Superior was also assured.

Opportunity in Uncertainty

The western part of the former territory of Wisconsin did not become part of the new state. This included the area between the St. Croix and the Mississippi rivers. It was this exclusion of an important area which gave necessity and incentive for the creation of the Territory of Minnesota. A large area with somewhat more than four thousand citizens had been left without government.

August 4, 1848, a number of citizens of this ungoverned area met at Stillwater. They issued a call for a convention to be held August 26. On that date 61 citizens assembled. Sixteen were from Stillwater, the principal community of the area. Others came from a settlement called St. Paul's and others walked or paddled in from such places as St. Anthony, Sauk Rapids, Spunk Creek, Crow Wing, Cottage Grove, Point Douglas, Boles's Mill, Rum River, Cervais Mill and Prospect Hill.

The chairman of this convention was Joseph R. Brown, pioneer farmer, owner of many townsites, legislator, publisher, logger, trader, inventor and resourceful politician. A committee drafted a memorial to congress asking for the creation of a new territory. An appeal was made to President Polk.

The convention needed a delegate in congress to further its purpose. In this the new state of Wisconsin was most obliging. John Catlin, acting governor of that state, also claimed to be the governor of left-over territory of Wisconsin. The former delegate from Wisconsin resigned. Catlin called for the election of a successor.

Bustling old St. Paul in 1849

At an election held October 30 Henry H. Sibley was chosen delegate from the remaining Territory of Wisconsin. Here was a man who was to be a governor, a general, an honored student and one equally at home at his trading post at Mendota or in the capitols of his state and nation. Sibley went to Washington. He said his purpose was to keep his eyes open and his mouth shut. But December 22 he made a striking address in congress and was seated as an active delegate upon the ground floor of legislation.

Naming the New Land

Several suggestions had been made for a name for the new territory that was sure to become a state. Some favored the name Itasca and others proposed Chippewa, Jackson and Washington, for at that time no state had been named for the Father of Our Country.

The name "Minnesota" ultimately prevailed. This was a combination of "minne" meaning water and "sotah" whose real connotation has never been fully agreed upon by outstanding students of the Dakota language. Some said this term meant "clear" and others "cloudy." Some said that [illegible] ing of "sky tinted" was acceptable to some and not to others. Whatever its meaning, the name prevailed because it was euphonious and distinctive.

The Territory Established

March 3, 1849, creation of the Territory of Minnesota was approved by congress and the act signed by the President of the United States.

In these times such an act would be known before the ink of the official signature of approval was dry. A hundred years ago no telegraph, telephone, radio or even overland mail brought the news to the people of Minnesota. The first boat up the river whistled out the glad tidings at Winona. St. Paul first heard of it April 9.

A Vast Area and Few People

The Territory of Minnesota extended northward from the Iowa line to the Canadian border. East and west it stretched from the Mississippi to the Missouri rivers. In some places the territory was more than five hundred miles wide.

The area of the territory was approximately double that of the present state.

The white population, taken in 1850, was 6077. About four times as many Indians roamed the territory.

St. Paul with a few log houses and frame shanties was the capital town.

A Government is Founded

Alexander Ramsey of Pennsylvania was appointed governor of the territory. He was one of Minnesota's most distinguished citizens, holding many places of honor including that of Secretary of War of the United States.

The new governor of the new territory was paddled in a birch bark canoe to the new capital. His first act was to proclaim the existence of the territory. July 7 the new governor divided the area into seven districts from which were selected nine councillors and 18 representatives to make up the first legislature of the territory.

September 3 the first legislature met [illegible] destiny of Minnesota for more than a hundred years.

THE FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Savings and Loan Associations, as such, date back to 1831, when what now is Minnesota was unorganized territory and the true source of the Mississippi was still a controversial question. Credit for organizing the first association goes to Isaac Shallcross who, in that year, in the Borough of Frankford, Pennsylvania, formed an association of 37 members who subscribed $5 each at the time of organization and agreed to advance $5 each month thereafter.

This humble beginning established the pattern for what has become a great nationwide operation in which there are more than 6,000 active associations doing a 50 billion dollar business.

A century after that first association was organized the First Federal of Thief River Falls came into being. Among other things in common with the first company, the local association had a very humble beginning too. It was organized in a time of national depression, its first business day being May 1, 1934.

As a means of encouraging home construction a new Federal Saving and Loan System had been created, and the First Federal of Thief River Falls was one of the early associations licensed under that act. Next year in 1959, the association will celebrate its 25th anniversary, and that will be an occasion for celebrating 25 years of outstanding progress and service in the community.

Founder, and manager during that quarter of a century of growth, is Stanton R. Dahlen, president. When the books were closed on Dec. 31, 1934, the association had assets of $16,402.39. The 1957 statement showed assets of just a few thousand short of the five million dollar mark.

Stan Dahlen was ten years old when he came to Thief River Falls with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Dahlen, and he is a product of the Thief River Falls schools. After one year at St. Olaf college he was employed as a bookkeeper by the First and Peoples State Bank which was managed by his father and where he advanced to the position of assistant cashier. In 1927 he joined the staff of the First National Bank of Grand Rapids. In 1929 he became a special agent for the Traveler's Fire Insurance Company, serving two years in the Minneapolis office and two years in the office at St. Louis.

Upon the death of his father in 1933 he returned to Thief River Falls, taking over his father's business in insurance, farm management and real estate. It was while serving in this capacity, with his office in the Dobner-Meehan building, that he organized the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Associated with him as directors were Paul A. Lundgren, Dr. O. F. Melby, A. E. Mattson and Roy Lambert. Lundgren was elected president, Melby vice president, and Dahlen secretary-treasurer.

During those early years of hard-to-get dollars the growth of the organization was not sensational, but each year showed a substantial gain. By 1938 the assets had passed the $200,000 figure. It was in 1947, ten years ago, that the million dollar mark was reached, and by 1951 the assets totalled more than two million.

That was the year the new building was constructed, and on Feb. 1, 1952, the association moved into its present convenient and completely modern quarters. In the past five years the assets and the volume of the association more than doubled again.

The record of the Association's 24 years of operation reveal some interesting figures that probably are more important than the total of assets. During these 24 years the Association has made 1,933 loans totalling $7,905,246. At the present time there are 2,510 active savings accounts, with $4,550,500.56 to their credit, and during the 24 years of its operation the Association has paid to its saving members a total of $776,704.77 in dividends.

The First Federal is a comparatively young organization, but it already is one-fourth as old as the state of Minnesota. While it is primarily a Thief River Falls institution, it serves a large area in Northwestern Minnesota and many of its members are residents of neighboring communities in eight counties of this area.

Judge Paul A. Lundgren shares with Stan Dahlen the distinction of being a part of the original organization. They are the only remaining members of the original board. Besides them the present board includes Helmer Baumann, William W. Prichard and Frank E. Tunberg.

Active staff members include Milton Helerson, secretary-treasurer; Burnell Kast, assistant secretary; Marilyn Shumway, assistant treasurer, and Janice Eggers, teller.

Mr. Dahlen points proudly to the large volume of business that is being handled by a small number of employees. This efficiency is attributed in large part to mechanization. The First Federal is equipped with the most modern machines. Looking back to the days of pen and ink entries, he recalls that a rule-of-thumb guide to office efficiency at that time called for three employees for each million dollars of assets. On that basis the First Federal would now have 15 employees, a volume that now is being handled efficiently by five. With more modern equipment in mind, and looking forward to continuing increases in volume, Mr. Dahlen is confident that the present ratio can be further reduced.

The organization is looking forward with happy anticipation to its 25th anniversary celebration in May of 1959—next year.

Q—How can I fasten paneling to the walls of a basement without using furring strips.

A—You could use a special mastic adhesive, but you'd be better off with furring strips. These provide an air space between wall and paneling, important in basements where there may be dampness.

Q—It is illegal for a homeowner to install new electric wiring in his house? I have a detailed book on the subject, but no experience.

A—Most states or municipalities have codes requiring that all wiring be done by a licensed electrician. Even if your locality doesn't have such a law, trouble can hit you from another direction. Electric shock has killed many amateur electricians, and faulty wiring has been the cause of thousands of tragic home fires.

Q—Is there any way to get caulking compound into fine cracks too small for an ordinary caulking gun?

A—A plastic squeeze bottle, such as the type used for mustard at lunch counters, does an excellent job of caulking small cracks when filled with compound which has been mixed with a few drops of paint thinner to make it flow more easily.

Q—Is there an easy way to tell which fuses serve various electrical circuits? I'd like to mark these in the fuse box for future reference.

A—Easiest way is to plug an electric alarm clock into outlets throughout the house, and set it to ring. Remove fuses one at a time until the clock stops ringing. This tells you what circuit the plug is on, and you can move on to the next one.

Q—Are there any tricks to make door-hanging easier for an "all-thumbs" handyman like myself?

A—No. It takes a lot of skill and years of practice to hang a door properly. There is a door, however, that can be installed in a matter of minutes by the average handyman. It's a pre-hung panel door of ponderosa pine which comes from the factory already hinged inside a complete frame. The unit is simply fitted into the door opening, shimmed level, and nailed into place. It's then ready for painting or staining.

Q—Our summer cottage at the seashore has an old metal roof that has become somewhat unsightly. We'd like to replace it with a better-looking roof that would also be wind-resistant. What can we use?

A—Asphalt shingles probably would be your best bet, since you would have a wide choice of colors and can also have your choice of application. The three wind-resistant application methods are: strip shingles applied with a spot of quick-setting roof [illegible] prevent lifting; asphalt shingles which lock together to form a continuous wind-resistant surface; and self sealing shingles that have a strip of cement applied to the tabs at the factory. Chances are the asphalt shingles can be applied directly over the old metal roof, saving you the cost of removing it.

Q—The slate tiles on our patio are multi-colored, but dull. Can they be brightened?

A—Apply a half and half mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine with a paint brush. Let is soak in and dry thoroughly, then polish with a cloth.

Steps to Take In Plumbing Emergencies

Knowing what to do in a plumbing emergency can save homeowners unnecessary expense, according to the National Association of Plumbing Contractors.

The three most common plumbing emergencies faced by homeowners are (1) leaky faucets, (2) leaking pipes and (3) stopped up water closets, sinks and drains.

The most economical way of solving the "leaky faucet" emergency is to ask your local plumbing contractor to replace all the washers in your home at the same time. Such "preventive maintenance" is very inexpensive and saves repeat calls — especially if a worn valve-seat rather than the washer is causing the trouble.

First Aid Measure

To keep a little drip from becoming a big problem — late at night when you are trying to sleep — here is a simple first-aid measure that will at least stop the noise. Fasten a strip of cloth to the end of the faucet with a rubber band so that the water runs down the cloth to the sink instead of splashing.

Leaking pipes, especially those hidden in walls and floors, can do serious damage if not detected early. A damp spot on the wall or ceiling should always be investigated. If it results from a leaking pipe, it may spread and cause damage to plaster and wall paper.

When a leak is discovered, the homeowner can prevent further damage by closing the main water cut-off valve and draining the supply lines by opening the lowest faucet in the system. The "lowest faucet" may be the garden-hose connection outside or the laundry — try faucet in the basement.

Close Cut-off Valves

Knowing how to close the main gas and water cut-off valves can prevent serious damage during an emergency. Your local plumbing contractor can [illegible] rate them.

Stopped-up drains and water closets often can be quickly cleared with a plunger — com[illegible] friend." If the plunger doesn't do the job, it's best to call a plumbing contractor.

"How about one of those wonder drugs?"

"I've got a cold," the man said, and he went on to ask for a "wonder drug." The pharmacist sold him some aspirin and advised him to see his physician. As it happened the aspirin fixed him up fine, but the point is this: Pharmacists are not physicians. We work with doctors, providing the drugs and medicines they prescribe. We have a professional knowledge of the powerful new "wonder drugs," so we know how important it is to use them correctly. Please do not feel offended when your pharmacist refuses to sell you a certain drug. It is for your protection and in the best interest of your good health. Wallpaper Wins Men

With so many of today's new wallpapers reflecting masculine interests, many men have begun to move in on the selection of wallpapers, especially in choosing a paper for the den or family room.

The paper shown above is just the thing for the man who has a yen for sailing, collecting old marine pictures, ship's models or even flotsam and jetsam.

The paper is called "China Trade," and shows ships in full sail skimming across a sea of old gold, while wind-worn buildings and feminine figures wistfully look seaward. These figures are colored in sharp accents of skyblue and Chinese red. Other papers catering to masculine interests show old motor cars, old firearms, rare stamps, tin soldiers, art posters, golf clubs and tennis rackets. According to today's decorating trends, most of these papers should be accompanied by textured wallpapers on adjacent walls and ceilings.

TV And Hi-Fi Makers Identify Hardwood Cabinets

This beautiful sliced walnut hardwood cabinet typifies the new trend in TV and Hi-Fi cabinets.

In selecting television and high fidelity cabinets, the purchaser is now able to identify quickly, those crafted from real hardwoods as opposed to those employing other materials, as a result of certifying seals issued by trade associations.

These seals give assurance that all exposed wood parts of the cabinet are of genuine hardwoods and that the natural beauty of the grain has not been distorted in any way. They guard the unwary shopper from purchasing, in the belief that it is genuine hardwood, a cabinet on which a printed or decal imitation wood grain has been applied. The deception comes to light later when a scratch or wear reveals the "wood" grain exists only on top of the surface and cannot be repaired satisfactorily.

The major TV and Hi-Fi manufacturers feature real hardwoods for at least their medium-priced and better sets and a growing number of them are utilizing these seals to make sure their customers are properly informed when selecting "the most looked-at furniture article in the house."

Aside from the non-duplicating, deep grain beauty of real hardwoods, which is their main attraction, they also do not conduct electricity or heat, and offer relatively trouble-free maintenance and durability.

Genuine hardwoods seals are also widely used on other household furniture.

Selling Your Home?

Look Out for 'Sale Killers'

If you plan to sell your home, don't miss a chance for a quick, profitable turnover because of "sale killers," says Andrew C. Lang, author of the new book, "Home Repairs."

"Sale Killers," says Lang, are things about a house and lot which can discourage an otherwise enthusiastic prospect.

Here are some common "sale killers" and hints on how to get rid of them:

1. Unkept grounds. You don't have to re-landscape the place, but be sure lawns are neat and shrubbery is trimmed.

2. Broken and cracked concrete work in sidewalks, drives, foundation, garage, or patio. An afternoon spent with a sack of ready-mixed patching cement may save your sale.

3. Peeling or cracked paint on siding and trim. An investment in a complete paint job may pay for itself in a faster, more profitable sale. If the complete job isn't needed, a bit of touching up here and there can accomplish wonders.

4. Shabby, weathered roof. Since this usually is the largest expanse visible from outside, an old, worn roof can ruin the exterior appearance of a house. An investment in a new roof of asphalt shingles in a color that complements the rest of the house can pay dividends in the final sale. A new roof also gives you a strong selling point: the new owners will have years of trouble-free security from all kinds of weather.

5. Streaked, faded interior walls and ceilings. A weekend or two with paintbrush and roller is an inexpensive way to cure this "sale killer." Floors and woodwork also may need sprucing up.

Some other things to be ready with after the "For Sale" sign goes up are good housekeeping with a minimum of clutter, an affirmative answer to the prospect's inevitable question, "Are the plumbing, heating, and electrical systems in good shape?", and the right answers to questions about transportation, shopping, schools, and taxes.

Paint Brightens Softwood Floors

One way to brighten a softwood floor that is old and worn and not worth refinishing is to paint it. It is economical in the long run to use a good quality floor paint or enamel that will stand up, and if the floor is to be subjected to heavy traffic use three coats.

Even the best of paints will show wear, however, and therefore it is necessary to keep the surface protected with a polishing wax. If you have one of the new type electric polisher-scrubbers the job can be done quickly and effectively.

PAINT TRAY IDEA

No need to clean paint trays if you use this tip. Line the tray beforehand with common brown wrapping paper. Pour your paint in and go ahead with the job. When finished, simply remove the paper from the tray. A little, easily-wiped-up oil is all that remains in the tray.

Tiling Bathroom or Kitchen Can Be a Simple Job for Homeowner Simple tools, a supply of ceramic tile and surprisingly little time and money are all you need to turn home maintenance problems into good looking, carefree facilities.

Whether you want to remodel the kitchen, bathrooms, fireplace or patio, the first step is to check whether the surface to receive the ceramic tile is sound, plumb and free of any material that might interfere with the bond of the adhesive that holds the tile to the wall or whatever.

If the surface passes this test, the next step is to prime any areas that will be exposed to steam or water. Seal all openings with waterproof tape. When you are ready to start tiling, begin around the tub if it's a bathroom. If the tub is not level make your cuts in the first row of tiles to establish a straight line.

Use a saw tooth trowel to apply the waterproof adhesive on the wall. Avoid spreading on too much adhesive or the excess will ooze up between the tiles when they are pressed into place. Apply adhesive to about 10 square feet at a time and then press the tiles into place. Glazed tile made in this country has small raised bars on the edges to insure straight lines.

To cut glazed tile simply mark the glazed surface lightly with a pencil parallel to ridges on unglazed side. Using a glass cutter score the tile along this line. Then place the unglazed side of the tile over a large nail with the pencil line parallel with the nail. Apply pressure and the tile will break evenly. Use pliers to break off bits of tile when fitting around fixtures. Fixture flanges and cement will conceal rough edges.

After installation allow the tile to set overnight so volatile elements in the adhesive will escape. Then soak the tile joints with plenty of water.

After soaking, grouting is the next step. Mix enough water with a commercial tile grout to form a paste with the consistency of heavy cream. Work this grout into the tile joints with a sponge or rubber gloves. The excess grout that will partly cover the tile sponges off readily. Polish the finished job with a dry cloth.

Most grouts should be wetted several times a day during the four days following installation so they will cure properly.

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTIONS FOR LAYING TILE!

STEP No. 1: Spread adhesive on the primed surface, using a saw tooth trowel. Cover about 10 square feet at a time and set tiles before the adhesive hardens. Primer and adhesive are flammable.

STEP NO. 2: Set the ceramic tile into place on the adhesive, using a twisting motion of the hand. Press each tile firmly. If excessive adhesive oozes out onto the tile, remove it with a solvent.

STEP No. 3: Fill the spaces between tiles with grout, which is a fine white cement. First mix the grout with water to the consistency of heavy cream. Then force it into the joints.

FOR FLOORS: Small unglazed tiles install quickly because they are mounted on sheets of paper. Remove paper with a damp sponge after tiles have set an hour. After one day, grout.

Wrought Iron Adds Beauty

WROUGHT IRON BEAUTIFIES, a home at relatively modest cost, as exemplified here, where graceful columns and railings have been judiciously employed to enhance the appearance and value.

Extra Rod Adds Drying Space to The Bathroom

An extra shower curtain rod over the center of the bathtub provides a convenient place for the housewife to hang hand-laundry, raincoats and other drippy items to dry, suggests the National Association of Plumbing Contractors. Wet garments drip in the tub instead of on the floor, and the shower curtain conceals the laundry if company drops in.

This "wife-saving" suggestion from NAPC also lets the men in the family shave without having to fight their way through a jungle of lingerie.

Most Homes Need More Housepower

The average American home is using four times the amount of electricity it did 25 years ago and three times as much as it did 14 years ago. Yet eight out of 10 homes in America were wired long before this greatly increased demand occured.

The home electric system that was originally designed for operating a dozen 60 watt bulbs is now being called upon to provide electric power for a multiplicity of appliances, some of which alone, may well take the entire load of incoming electric power. In addition to old wiring problems, many owners of relatively new homes are discovering that their electric systems are almost as obsolete as those in antiquated houses.

To understand what has happened to the average electric system, it is necessary to know a little bit about how it works. Home wiring systems are in two parts. The first is the service entrance which brings electricity from company power lines to your house. The second distributes that electric power throut your home.

Service Entrance

The service entrance consists of the wires coming from the power lines to your house, the meter, the switch and fuse box. The amount of electricity which can be brought into your home at any one time is determined by the capacity of the service entrance wires and equipment.

The second part of your electric system which distributes electricity from the service entrance throughout your home is composed of branch circuits and outlets.

The number of branch circuits and the [illegible] lights and appliances. If your system doesn't have enough branch circuits of proper size wires to accommodate all of your electrical equipment it be[illegible]

Your electric system works on the same principal as your water system. Pressure induces flow in both instances. Small wires restrict the flow of electricity just as small pipes restrict the flow of water. The size of your wiring is therefore important to the efficiency of your system. In addition, many modern appliances need so much "house power" that they should be on separate circuits of their own.

Amperes and volts are indicated on the label of your main switch box and by multiplying them you will have the amount of wattage in your electric system.

It is a simple matter to get a "house power" rating that will show you if your wiring is adequate. Most electrical contractors will check your system and give you a free estimate if rewiring is needed.

Painting Hints from Paint Headquarters

TRICKS WITH A PAINT ROLLER

by Bud Kelly

Start on [illegible] side. That way, you remove all lint and dust before it can get into your paint job.

If you're using a latex paint — like Super Kemtone, the best there is — damp-dry the roller before painting.

Sometimes people find paint spattering from the roller onto woodwork. Here's a way to avoid this: cut a piece of cardboard into a square; then hold it against the woodwork with one hand while you run your roller with the other.

The beauty of roller-painting is its ease and speed. Actually, you can cut painting time up to 50% with a roller — and get a better-looking job in the bargain.

If you're working from a stepladder, place the paint pan on the top step and anchor it in place with a heavy rubber band.

Never clean a lamb's wool sleeve with alcohol or lacquer thinners. Use soap and water for water-base paints.

We've had a great deal of experience with rollers — so we're pretty sure we can help you with your next paint job. We'd like to try . . . so come in for a talk before you start painting.

Bathroom Takes Small Space

COMPLETE BATHROOM is made possible in little more than powder room space by means of this small compact tub, which is ideal for children or elderly persons, because of the low 12-inch sides.

Modernizing Adds Utility To Bathrooms

Does your family often wait in line to use the bathroom? Do the fixtures leak or show signs of cracking or discoloration? Is the bathroom cramped for storage of towels, linens, cleansers and cosmetics? If your answers to one or more of these questions is yes, it is time to give serious thought to remodeling your bathroom. No other room in your home is as important to family health and comfort.

Fixtures that show signs of age should be replaced — cracks in the finish not only are unsightly, but are breeding places for germs.

A new bathtub is essential if yours is an uncomfortable [illegible] a new tub installation probably will be the costliest part of your remodeling job, it is wise to select a tub made of durable materials. Enameled cast iron bathtubs are smooth and will not [illegible] of use. Acid-resisting finishes protect against stains and discolorations.

Choose Tub Carefully

The tub style you select will depend upon available space, your taste and your budget. Standard rectangular tubs come in lengths of [illegible] feet and heights of 14 and 16 inches.

Next, the toilet and lavatory (or washbowl) should be replaced. If space permits, try partitioning the toilet from the rest of the bathroom. If not, a partial partition of laminated plastic or similar material offers a degree of privacy.

Choose a toilet made either in one piece or with tank and bowl close coupled. This insures a quiet flushing action and is easy to keep clean. And, install seats that are posture designed for comfort. A toilet made of non-absorbent vitreous china is the best bet for top sanitation and easy cleaning.

Add as many lavatories as space permits, for each additional washbowl doubles the usefulness of the bathroom. Large-size bowls and countertop surfaces are excellent for light laundry, hair washing and for bathing babies. If there is space for lavatories you might select one standard lavatory and a large flat rim sink with a spray attachment.

Second Bathroom

If there are three or more persons in your household, a second bathroom or powder room is a must. For economy, the new bathing area should be located near existing plumbing — the main bathroom, the kitchen or laundry room — and it should be handy to living areas — near the living room for guests, the back door for a clean-up "mud room" or the basement recreation area.

Storage space can be built into almost any bathroom. Shelves can be built above the toilet, above and below the lavatory and even above the bathtub, so long as they are low enough to avoid standing in the tub. Or, you can put recessed shelves along the inside perimeter of the bathtub.

Wrought Iron Adds Beauty To the Home

Many homeowners appreciate the grace and richness of wrought iron railings and columns and recognize how much they can do to enhance the appearance and value of the home but hesitate to include them in improvement or new construction plans because of the feeling that they are too expensive.

Modern methods, however, have greatly reduced the costs involved in the fabrication of wrought iron. In fact, cost of wrought railings and columns is often less than that of masonry and wood where good design and construction practice is followed.

Good wrought iron is practically indestructible and, with a minimum of maintenance such as occasional painting at intervals dictated by climatic conditions, it will last indefinitely.

Ornamental iron work finds many uses, both inside and outside, on old and new structures.

Wrought iron railings may be used on both exterior and interior staircases and balconies, around porches, stoops, landings and platforms, "airing porches", swimming pools, etc., wherever an added touch of beauty is desired or danger of falls exists.

Wrought iron columns, like railings, are gaining increasing popularity in interior decorative and structural applications such as balcony supports, room dividers, etc.

WAX PROTECTS TOOLS

Wipe tools with waxed paper occasionally. This gives them just enough of a protective coat of wax to keep rust away, and avoids the messiness of oil and the possibility of getting oil stains on wood.

SHARPENING TRICK

Take a tip from the oldtimers. Before sharpening dull saws, first smoke the teeth by passing the blade through a candle flame. This makes it easy to see where the file is cutting.

Social Security Man Discusses Effect of Soil Bank Payments

Many farmers who are participating in the government's soil bank program, are asking us what effect this has on their social security, Walter Kistler, district manager of the Grand Forks social security office, said today.

"We explain to them that, for social security benefit purposes or for the purpose of the amount of earnings permitted to a farmer getting retirement benefits, soil bank payments must be taken into consideration. These payments apply to acreage reserve, conservation reserve, and also in cases where a farmer has placed his farm in the soil bank under the 'bid' procedure."

For example, Kistler said, a farmer who is getting soil bank payments before he retires, reports those payments as net earnings for social security purposes. He gets social security credit for them. A farmer who places his farm in the soil bank after he retires and has started getting old-age insurance benefits, must report soil bank payments also. They apply against the amount of earnings that a person can have and get social security benefits.

Whether or not a retired farmer's old-age benefit payments are affected by the payments he gets under the soil bank program depends upon the substantial services he renders in connection with his participation in the soil bank program.

Soil bank payments would not affect the old-age insurance benefits of a farmer who elected to plant trees on his land and merely gave a little time to directing the planting of the trees. However, a retired farmer who placed his farm in the soil bank and personally planted a cover crop on his land, would probably be rendering substantial services during one or more months in the year. In this case, he would not get social security payments for the months in which the cover crop was planted.

Farmers who have questions about soil bank payments in relation to their social security, should get in touch with our office, Kistler concluded.

A representative from the Grand Forks Social Security Office, will be in Thief River Falls at the city Auditorium on Tuesday, March 11, at 10:00 a.m. He will answer questions on social security, and assist in filing claims.

Tripled Net Returns from field crops—that's possible for farmers who apply fertilizer according to what their soil needs and follow the right management practices. In south central Minnesota, this could mean boosting net returns from all crops from $8 per acre—the present average—to $20. This shows that Minnesota's fields are producing far below their potential.

Ermond Hartmans, extension economist, and Charles Simkins, extension soils specialist at the University of Minnesota, say such estimates of possible increases are really conservative. These figures are based on long-time studies of soil potential in 27 counties of southern Minnesota. If each farm in that area made the increases stated above, net farm income for the entire 27 counties would leap by $100 million per year.

Farmers would need to use 5-6 times as much fertilizer as they are now using to reach these production goals. At present, each farmer is buying an average of $1.50 worth of fertilizer for each crop acre annually. This needs to be increased by $3.80 worth of additional nitrogen, $3 more phosphorus and $1.25 more potash on each acre. This is based on a rotation of 40 percent corn, 15 percent soybeans, 15 percent alfalfa and 20 percent small grains—a typical rotation in that area.

Each dollar spent for fertilizer applied according to a soil test should return at least $2 in net profit, the specialists say. And if all farmers in the 27 southern counties applied lime and fertilizer according to what the land needs, they could raise corn yields to 75 or even bushels per acre. Average for the past 10 years was 48 bushels.

Unemployment Claims Are up Sharply in '58

Job Office Manager Report $190,107 Is Paid in 5 Counties

A report released today by R. S. Eldevik, manager of the Thief River Falls office of the Minnesota state employment service, reveals that 1400 persons are currently filing unemployment insurance claims in the area served by that office which covers Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties.

Eight hundred persons from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Plummer, Oklee, Goodridge, Grygla, Middle River and Newfolden report to the local office at Thief River Falls. The remaining 600 claimants report to itinerant points at Warren, Hallock, Roseau and Red Lake Falls.

Total payments for January and February, 1958 in the five county area amounted to $190,107. Of this amount an estimated $25,000 is for payments to local area claimants who worked in other states and are filing claims against those states.

Payments from the Minnesota unemployment compensation fund for the January-February 1958 period amounted to $165,107. Currently 275 of the 1400 claimants drawing unemployment benefits are filing claims based on the wages earned in other states. Payments to such interstate claimants are made directly by the liable states.

For the calendar year 1957 the Thief River Falls employment office paid out $452,054 in unemployment insurance. Payments made by other states to local claimants for 1957 are estimated at $100,000. Total benefits payments for 1957 in the five county area therefore amount to over half a million dollars.

Unemployment insurance claims for January and February, 1958, are up 300 over the corresponding 1957 period. Local job opportunities have been very scarce. Out-of-area employment opportunities have also been scarce in most categories. Layoffs in other states have caused former local area residents to return home in order to keep living costs as low as possible.

With the coming of spring and a gradual pickup in employment is expected. A balanced local labor market, will, however, depend upon a general increase in employment opportunities nationwide, and in particular on a pick-up in employment in var- [illegible] the Twin Cities and Grand Forks, North Dakota.

And if these players and fans require hotel reservations, Wally and Roy also have available a supply of hotel reservation forms. Tickets for the banquet will be $4.25 per plate.

Mr. Carlson added that the wives of the former Prowler athletes and Prowler fans are most welcome to attend the reunion banquet. The only private session during the four-day get-together will be the Sunday morning "brunch" when the 1938 team and Coach Lee, just as they did in 1938, prepare for their departure.

$500,000 Damage in International Falls Fire Monday

Fire swept through a two-story brick building containing 32 residential apartments and the sales office of a lumber firm in International Falls late Monday.

Several residents of second floor apartments were forced into near-freezing weather with nothing [illegible]

Two firemen on aerial ladders barely escaped being tossed to the ground when second floor windows burst, sending flames gushing at them.

Fireman Willie Toninato reached the ground safely by sliding down a hose line attached to the ladder. Keith Lovejoy escaped injury when alert ground crews pulled his ladder back from the flames.

Fire chief Vernon McMicken said all occupants got out safely, although those living in the 26 apartments on the second floor lost everything. Residents of six apartments on the ground floor removed some of their furnishings and personal property with the aid of spectators.

McMicken said he expects the damage estimate to reach a half million dollars.

Municipal Band Reports Lack of Necessary Funds

Votes Monday Night to Continue until $1,000 Appropriation Is Used up

A special business meeting was held Monday evening at the regular practice session of the Thief River Falls Legion municipal band. Involved was a major decision on the part of the band as to how to budget the funds allocated by the city council.

Treasurer Muriel Peterson, reported that the treasury was exhausted as of the first of this year. She went on to explain that a carry-over of funds from 1956 had enabled the band to continue through last year in spite of a serious cut-back in the funds allocated by the city.

In figuring the budget for the coming year, treasurer Peterson estimated that present funds might last as long as July or August of this year. The amount of funds allocated by the City Council this year was $1,000. The same figure as allocated in 1957. Previous to 1957, the annual budget had been $2,100.

Consideration was given to ways and means to cut expenses. Director Alvin Anderson proposed to donate his time as director. This proposal was not adopted because the membership felt a salary necessary to maintain a director's interest in the band. After discussing several other proposals, it was decided to continue on the present budget as long as funds would permit.

Director Anderson announced that the sponsoring organization, [illegible] band uniforms to replace worn or misfitted uniforms now in use. Anderson expressed thanks to the Legion for their continuing support of the band.

Most TRF Teachers Get $400 Increase in Pay Next Year

Report in Previous Issue of Times Did Not Give Complete Picture

In a letter to The Times a reader questioned a report on teachers' salary schedules recently adopted by the board of education. The Times issue of February 10 stated, "Members of the public school faculty were offered salary increases of $250 for the the 1958-59 school year." The writer inquired if it is not true that increases actually were $400.

The Times report was incomplete in that it did not state the increase voted by the board was an additional increase supplementing an increase provided for in an old schedule. Irwin T. Mickelson, superintendent, states that with this addition most of the teachers will receive a salary increase of $400.

It does not apply to all teachers however. For some there will be no increase, for some the salary will be upped $125 and for some the increase will be $250.

Chest Drive Raised 69 Pct. of Objective

$8,818 Is Collected; Funds Allocated by Board to Agencies

Plans for the distribution of 1957 drive funds, and the annual meeting were discussed at a recent meeting of the Pennington county Community Chest board of directors.

According to the latest figures $8,818.21 has been collected in the 1957 drive. These figures represent approximately 69% of their requests, which figures were used to arrive at a goal figure last fall.

A committee was formed for the purpose of nominating candidates to fill the places on the board of directors which will be vacated by the four outgoing directors; Charles Emanual, Harry Oen, David Brown, president, and Rev. E. C. Person. These four men will be members of the nominating committee as outgoing directors. George Kildahl was appointed to fill the place of Rev. Eldor Person on the nominating committee since Rev. Person has left Pennington county.

The board named Les Ihle, W. E. Dahlquist, J. M. Roche and Rev. Walter Pedersen as non-director members of the committee. This committee will meet March 24 to submit the names of the eight nominees.

The date for the annual meeting was set for April 15, in the basement of the municipal Auditorium at which time the public is invited to attend. It is hoped that heads of local organizations who benefit from the Community Chest will be on hand at the meeting, said Chairman Brown.

Gets Good Clover Yield in March

A good yield of red clover was combined this week by Bud Molstad, who farms about 12 miles northeast of Thief River Falls. Molstad said the clover, which was impossible to get at because of excess moisture and wet fields last fall, is yielding about 100 lbs. per acre. He is combining on a farm owned by an uncle, Albert Molstad, in the Nelson Slough area. The Molstads were surprised that the clover yielded so well, as they had previously considered burning off the field. A test of the swathed clover revealed it would be well worth combining, however. Some combining was done in this area in December and January but such an occurrence very rare indeed as late at March 12.

Former Resident Sets up Research for Colitis Study

Miles Fiterman, Lumber Dealer in Minneapolis, Establishes Foundation

Fiterman's interest in the disease arose from the fact that his six-year old daughter is afflicted with it. After conferring with medical men in various parts of the country, he discovered that only a limited amount of research is being devoted to the malady.

He then proceeded to organize a non-profit foundation—the National Foundation for Research in Ulcerative Colitis—with headquarters in Washington, D. C. The agency is supported by contributions from the National Institute of Health and from Fiterman and other donors.

"Most of all", he said, "we want to provide a research climate that will attract young men —a long-range program with continuing and guaranteed funds. We accept the fact that no cure exists now, but we will not accept the fact that little or nothing can be done about it."

Grass, Brush Fire Warning Is Issued

Game Warden Warns of Promiscuous Burning

A warning against promiscuous burning of alfalfa and brushlands was issued to area farmers this week by Game Warden Carl Sundstrom, who said thousands of acres of game cover are being ruined by the ill-advised practice.

In many cases, Sundstrom said, farmers intend to burn off stubble from cultivated fields. However, too often the stubble fires are left untended and go into areas that provide cover for game.

He warned that anyone intending to burn should first procure a burning permit. Permits may be obtained from state forestry officials or their representatives in the individual townships. (A list of some such representatives in east Marshall and Pennington county townships is published in an advertisement in today's Times.)

Sundstrom said anyone burning fields or brushland without a permit is violating state law and that violators are liable for prosecution. Not only does burning fields and brushland destroy upland game cover but it destroys soil fertility, conservationists say.

Ways and means of promoting more activity at the airport were aired in open discussion following the election of the interim director. The club went on record in favor of the city's providing better facilities for an airport restaurant and pilots' lounge in the interest of drawing more traffic, both local and out-of-town, to the airport.

Action concerning an additional assessment of members was postponed until a later date, in the hope that increased flight activity would make such action unnecessary. Club members were urged to avail themselves of the airplanes for cross-country flying more often than is now being done.

The Wednesday meeting, which was well attended, was presided over the club Secretary V. M. Draper in the absence of both Wendel and Ehrenstrom.

Fire Hazard Serious in Northwest Minnesota

Due to lack of snow, conditions in the woods and swamps are very dry. Ditches and creeks are dried up, some wells gone dry and the fire hazard increasing each day. Never in history have we had this condition at this time of year, and unless we get a lot of snow or rain fire conditions will soon become serious.

Parties who burn are requested by law to get their burning permits from their local township fire warden or ranger. Such permits will be issued for periods not to exceed three days, provided the fire can be controlled.

PROTECT YOURSELF
Prevent fires

The ranger or township warden may limit permit burning to certain short periods in the evening or may refuse to issue any permits at all if conditions are dangerous. Please cooperate with us.

Many Fined for Not Showing 1958 Plates

Failure to display 1958 license plates was the most common charge against a fairly small group of violators in municipal court here Monday before Judge H. O. Chommie. These were all tagged by city police.

Those who pleaded guilty to not displaying 1958 licenses were Robert Wiseth, Goodridge; Ruth I. Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls; Glenn Tasa, Trail; and Earl D. Haugen, and Timothy Conners of this city. All were fined $5 except Tasa, who also paid $3.50 costs.

Also in for infractions involving non-display of 1958 plates were: Harvey Odegard, city, failure to display both plates, $2.50; Tunberg Motors, two violations, fined $2.50 each, and Taxerass Implement Co., also two violations at $2.50 each.

Henry Sampson, Minneapolis, was also fined $5 for failure to display 1958 plates but fine was suspended since Sampson, was able to produce a receipt showing he had ordered plates but that they had not been delivered as yet.

Other city police cases were: Ruby M. Johnson, city, pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $10 plus $3.50 costs and Ronnie A. Udstrand, city, going through school patrol flag, plea guilty, fined $10 plus $3.50 costs.

Bernard O. Garthus, Holt, who had formerly entered a plea of not guilty to driving under the influence of liquor changed his plea to guilty and was fined $100 plus $4 costs and license was revoked.

William C. Everson, Minneapolis, forfeited $15 bond for speeding, while Wayne D. Johnson, Grand Forks, forfeited $20 bond on the same charge.

The only non-police case in court Monday was brought in by Sheriff Charles Richards. Carl E. Trulson, formerly of Trail, now a resident of Montana, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence and was fined $100 plus $8.50 costs.

Economic Trouble

Mounting evidence of economic trouble can hardly be ignored. Even Dr. Arthur Burns, the President's own former chief economic adviser, has said he sees no grounds for the President's prediction of a quick recovery. The Joint Economic Committee, in its recent hearings heard from five leading economists, and not a one of them felt that recovery was in the near future. It doesn't help to gloss over the facts; it's important that we recognize them, face them, and do something about them. We've learned from sad past experience that we can't just talk our way out of economic trouble. It's going to take more than "chin's up" speeches.

Latest Indicators

Here are some of the latest facts which are "signs of the times": Federal Reserve Board has reported that industrial production in January declined, for the fifth straight month, by three points. Barron's Financial Weekly of March 3 reported that business activity declined further in the latest week, reaching the lowest point since late 1949—and then the index was sharply reduced by effects of a prolonged industry-wide steel strike. Automobile production is down 28 per cent from a year ago. Car sales in February were down 36 per cent from a year ago. Private home construction in 1957 was down 9 per cent from 1956 and down 24 per cent from 1955. Dun and Bradstreet reports that business failures reported to date in February are the highest since April, 1940. Unemployment, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, rose from 3.4 million to 4.5 million in January—the biggest rise in unemployment in any one month since the early 1930's.

Good Advice

Dr. Burns, in his recent book on "Prosperity Without Inflation," says in part: "There are major principles suggested by experience that can usefully guide governmental efforts to check a recession. The first principle is that when the economy shows signs of faltering, prompt countermoves are required. Even mild measures on the part of Government can be effective in the early stages of an economic decline. On the other hand, if action is withheld, until a recession has gathered momentum, strong and costly measures may prove insufficient." The President should heed the advice of his former chief advisor.

What We Can Do

We need an easing of credit, and reduction in interest rates. The situation is serious enough to warrant a prompt and meaningful tax cut designed to increase purchasing power. In view of mounting unemployment, action should be taken immediately to increase unemployment benefits. We need also to increase social security benefits—at the very minimum to keep pace with rising living costs. On the agenda for urgency in any anti-recession program must be the determination by Congress to see that the decline in farm income is halted. Because of the important role which housing plays in our economy, a meaningful housing program is sorely needed. The GI loan guarantee program and direct GI home loans, which are schedules to expire this summer, should be extended. Urban renewal programs need to be expanded, rather than cut back as the Administration has proposed. To assist small businesses which have seriously felt the effects of tight money and the present recession, it is imperative that they be given both tax relief and greater access to capital. Education demands top priority in public works; we need a federally-aided school construction program. Hospital construction under the Hill-Burton Act should be expanded rather than be whittled down; We need more community clinics, nursing homes, and other health facilities. We need to speed up the highway construction program, not stretch it out. We are supporting programs and legislation aimed at accomplishing all these objectives—and are determined to get action without delay!

A NEWSPAPER WAS A RARITY IN MANY AMERICAN COMMUNITIES!

Then—a newspaper was a thing to be marveled at —for memories of the Press' fight for freedom were fresh in mind. Although newspapers are common in our country today, their existence should not be taken for granted. It is a wonderful fact that almost all of our modern communities have their own hometown newspapers, freely edited by members of their own communities—spreading the news, stimulating the business of the community, and keeping their readers informed of important events elsewhere. It is well to keep in mind that a free press and a free people are an unbeatable team.

Bemidji Wins Region Title 6th Year in Row

For the sixth year in a row, and the eighteenth time since high school basketball was organized on a regional basis, the Bemidji Lumberjacks will represent region eight in the state tournament being played in Minneapolis next week. The defending regional champion Lumberjacks, with a typical Bemidji second half, scoring strongly, pulled away from an ever-trying Fertile Falcons club in the fourth period to score a decisive 79 to 61 triumph in the finals of the regional tournament played at Grand Forks, on Wednesday night.

In a preliminary game, the Crookston Pirates won consolation honors by defeating the Stephen Tigers, 71 to 55.

In the championship tilt, Fertile, getting excellent outside shooting from Allen Erickson and Lyle Sannes, kept pace with the Lumberjacks throughout the first two periods. The teams were in a 15-all knot at the end of the first period; and the Lumberjacks, with Marc Kolden flipping a pair of jump shots into the west basket just before second period ended, gave coach Bun Fortier's club a 32 to 27 lead at the intermission.

In Bemidji's second half scoring, Kolden dropped in four field goals and a pair of free throws; while the Falcon scoring was monopolized by Sannes, who looped in four field goals.

Bemidji's double-barreled attack, Kolden and Ray Cronk, functioned well in the third and fourth periods. Kolden, scoring effectively on rebounds and one-handed tosses from in close, marked up five field goals and a charity toss. Cronk, who easily won the game's high point honors with 36 points, tallied twenty-two of his points in the second half.

With Bemidji holding a seven-point lead, 55 to 48, entering the fourth period, the game remained in doubt; but in this final quarter the rangy Lumberjacks, having a tremendous advantage in rebounding strength, piled up 24 points to Fertile's 13-point effort.

Fertile's scoring was led by Sannes, with 20 points; Erickson, who was lofting in one-handed shots from the outside with regularity, had 16 points, and Arlo Brunsberg notched eleven points.

Bemidji, Fertile Wins First Round

The Bemidji Lumberjacks of district 29 and the Fertile Falcons of district 30 won opening round games on Tuesday night in the eighth regional high school basketball tournament being played on the UND fieldhouse court at Grand Forks.

In Tuesday's opening round, the defending regional champion Bemidji Lumberjacks had a tussle with the Crookston Pirates of district 31 before pulling away in the final minutes to rack up a 72 to 59 triumph.

In the evening's night-cap game, between Fertile and the Stephen Tigers of district 32, the Falcons, racing away to a 14 to 0 lead and a 23 to 7 advantage at the end of the first period, had a comparatively easy time in winning by a 60 to 47 score.

The Bemidji vs. Crookston game was a contest until the final three minutes of play when the Lumberjacks, with Ray Cronk, Marc Kolden, and Fred Swenson rapping in field goals, "broke up" the fast and well-played game. The Pirates who had turned in a strong performance in the third period to move ahead of the Lumberjacks, at one time holding a six-point lead over Bemidji, were handicapped greatly when Ken Wold, with 2:30 to play, left the game on personal fouls.

All-state Ray Cronk proved to be the factor that gave coach Bun Fortier's club their victory over the Pirates, for the lanky and agile center notched sixteen field goals and five free throws for a 37-point performance. In addition, Cronk proved to be an able rebounder.

Coach Noel Olson's Fertile team, with guard Arlo Brunsberg playing in a spectacular manner in setting up the plays and directing the strategy, had too much all-round class for the Stephen club.

As evidence of the well-balanced scoring potential of the Fertile club, all of the players in the Falcons' starting lineup had double figures in the scoring column. Brunsberg's 20-point total, on ten field goals, was the game's high point man.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Hurry, Hurry, Hurry

For those Prowler fans, and former Prowler athletes, who intend to renew acquaintances with coach George Lee and the 1938 Prowler state champion basketball squad in Minneapolis next week, and especially at the Saturday night, March 22nd, banquet at the Leamington hotel, time's wasting.

Glenn (Tunney) Carlson, the able student manager of those 1938 Prowlers, has just about ironed out all the details with regard to the three-day reunion. He states that persons wishing to attend the banquet should be prompt in placing their reservations. Locally, Wally Tunberg or Roy Lee will accept reservations. If contact is desired with Glenn, he may be reached at the Chamber of Commerce office in St. Cloud.

We had a note from George Lee in which he said that he would be happy to see all of his friends, his former players, and the "downtown quarterbacks."

Headquarters for the reunion will be the Leamington hotel in Minneapolis on March 20th, 21st, and 22nd.

Echoes

Bitter and recriminatory letters have been received by superintendent Art O'Keefe of Oslo, the chairman of the 31st district's basketball tournament committee. The gist of these letters is that he, Mr. O'Keefe, is solely to blame for the hiring of the officials who "worked" the recent tournament. That is not true. Other members of the tournament committee are Miles Nelson of Thief River Falls and David Brown of Goodridge.

While it is true that this three-man committee was responsible for the hiring of John Sullivan and John Callahan, this hiring was not of their own volition, for this committee merely acted on the advice of the district's coaches.

During a basketball season, the coaches are requested by the state board to keep a "box score" on the performances of the officials. In this manner a fairly accurate and complete performance chart can be drawn up and a rating can be established. Sullivan and Callahan rated highly on the coaches' performance list, and it was from this list that the tournament committee made their selection. So you see that the tournament committee, and Mr. O'Keefe the chairman, in particular, do not merit all the abuse that is being heaped upon them.

Wasn't that Fine?

Referring, of course, to that 4 to 1 win by the North Dakota Sioux over the Denver U Pioneers at Denver on Friday night, and by that win coach Bob May's hockey squad won the WIHL title and a berth in this week's four-team NCAA hockey tournament in Minneapolis.

Joining the favored Sioux in the tournament that opens on Thursday night at the Williams arena will be Clarkson, Harvard, and Denver. According to the pairings, Clarkson an eastern college, will meet Denver in a first round game on Thursday night. On Friday night the Sioux will play the Harvard University Crimson. The championship finals, between the winners of the first round games, will be played on Saturday night.

And its' a signal honor for Thief River Falls and Prowler hockey to have two boys, Joey Poole of the North Dakota Sioux and Lyle Guttu of the Harvard Crimson, participating in the tournament. Both boys gained their early hockey training here, and both boys were members of the 1954 Prowler state high school hockey champions.

No Fish

Here's the saga of John (Snort) Langseth, Joe Larson, Phil Prichard, and John (Country John) Jaranson and their walleyed pike fishing expedition on Lake of the Woods Sunday.

The quartet, in Snort's Chevy, drove out on the lake ice to Buffalo point and on to the vicinity of Stony creek. They reached their destination at about the noon hour, and believing that the fishing would be slow at that time of the day, the suggestion was offered, by Phil, that the party drive on to American point. The Prichards, Phil and Jarvis, have a summer cabin at American point, and Phil was anxious to check on the condition of the cabin, etc.

The agreement was unanimous to drive to American point, and with that in mind the party headed toward Flag Island. In an effort to save some time and distance, a short-cut was taken. A large crack in the ice brought the expedition to a halt. Investigation revealed that it was impossible to cross this treacherous break, so the boys decided to turn around. And then the mishap. Instead of turning around, toward Flag Island and stronger ice, Snort turned around toward the lake-side, and they hit a channel, with its thin ice. The car broke through, and John Jaranson, acting quickly, was able to get out thru a door; but Snort and Phil and Joe were trapped inside the Chevvy. The car has a certain amount of buoyancy, and the trio were able to lower the windows and so crawl out on the ice, and without getting wet. (It must have made a newsworthy picture to see Snort and Joe crawling out of those car windows). The car settled in about six feet of water.

Several of the Flag Island residents noted their predicament and came to the assistance of the group. They were driven to Warroad, and from there they made a phone call to Thief River Falls and Mrs. John Jaranson drove up to return the quartet to town. And no fish.

These resort operators at Flag Island will attempt to raise the car out of its watery garage this week, and they do not expect to experience any great difficulty in accomplishing the task. It's not such an uncommon occurrence on the Lake of the Woods to have a car dunked in the water.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota
by JIM KIMBALL

Our annual event in Minnesota which gets no publicity until it is all over is the State Game Warden School. Well, poachers beware—the wardens are all back on the job.

Almost three years ago it was decided to hold the school in St. Paul instead of traipsing off to a place of solitude in some remote area. The wardens favor this and it has worked well.

The Old School Dad (Commissioner Selke calls himself that so I guess I can) decided we needed other changes in the school. A class of 150 is too large and he favored breaking up into panels or discussion groups. I'll confess being skeptical of this but must now admit it has worked remarkably well for the past three years. Assisting in the panels were public relations men, fishery experts, research biologists and other specialists, but each group had a warden as chairman and they drew up their own conclusions and recommendations on the final day of the week-long session.

Many of the recommendations from the two previous schools have been put into practice with good results. This year's recommendations and comments are quite interesting—let's look at a small sample.

Wardens definitely don't like the present law permitting two lines for panfish and one for other species. They prefer one line for everything but, denied this, they would rather have two lines for all species than the present arrangement.

The wardens want bears taken off the bounty list and made a game species, which they truly are. All panels went on record in opposition to the fox bounty which they agreed is not materially game and is costing the sportsmen over $100,000 a year. They also recommended that the Commissioner be empowered to regulate seasons on all protected birds and animals, including the beaver.

When it came to intra-departmental relations, the warden reported a 100% improvement in the past few years, but looked for still greater improvement.

These wardens have terrific stamina. You would think daily classes from 8 to 5, plus shop talk three meals a day would have been enough. Not so, some still insisted on going out on their usual night patrols. Of course, they had no uniforms and game poachers aren't easy to locate in big cities at night. I figure the sparrows and squirrels in the Twin Cities are pretty safe because the wardens didn't make a single arrest. All they found was a few local lads shining deer.

The University of Minnesota is offering an Institute for Conservation Leaders March 20 and 21. This is an excellent opportunity for sportsmen to learn new and basic thinking in the science of wildlife conservation. One of the finest things a sportsmen's club can do is sponsor a local biology teacher for this institute. He or she will not only bring you back a good report but can apply this knowledge in the classroom.

Topics covered at the institute will include hunting pressure, fishing pressure, dark-house spearing, habitat improvement and bounties.

It may be too late to write for detailed information but you can call Federal 2-8158, Extension 6338, Minneapolis.

A principal speaker and instructor will be Dr. Durward Allen of Purdue University. He will also give an 8 p.m. lecture, Thursday, March 20, entitled "The Sportsman—Past, Present and Future" in the Auditorium of the Natural History Museum at the University. This is Open to the Public—Free.

Dr. Allen is the author of "Our Wildlife Legacy", Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York—$5.00. This is a book that every club should have in its library and every sportsman should read. In fact, we thought it so important that each Minnesota game warden has been furnished a copy.

Safety Officials Plan for Vehicle Safety Checkups

Seek to Interest Sixty Minnesota Communities in Volunteer Program

Minnesota's top automobile and safety officials met Tuesday in St. Paul to make plans for voluntary motor vehicle safety checks to be held in Minnesota communities during the summer months.

The vehicle checks will be conducted by local civic organizations in coperation with the National Vehicle Safety Check for Communities organization and Look magazine, according to State Highway Commissioner L. P. Zimmerman.

Harold Holmes of Washington, D. C., representing the National Inter-industry committee and Look magazine, outlined the advantages of the safety check program at today's meeting.

Motorists voluntarily take their cars through safety lanes where headlamps, signal lights, brakes and tires are checked. Any defects noted in the check are brought to the attention of the car owner and he is asked to correct the defects and return to the lane for another safety check.

About 30 Minnesota communities conducted voluntary checks during 1957. Thousands of cars were checked and one in four vehicles was found to have serious defects which might lead to accidents. In most cases where defects were discovered the motorists had them corrected and returned to check lanes and the vehicle was pronounced safe.

The group will attempt to enlist more communities in the program and its goal is to have 60 Minnesota communities participating in the program this year.

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

A wild life feeding area he developed near a marshy lake is so heavily populated with fowl that it looks "like a barnyard, with all the pheasant tracks" says Art Hawkins, Hugo, Minn. Anoka County Agent Richard Swanson reports that Hawkins planted wildlife food trees, shrubs, and a half acre of sunflowers, corn and buckwheat, for pheasant food. He also developed a duck-rearing pond in this area.

Good Conservation practices can mean more profit to sugar beet growers in the Red River Valley. Norman "Buck" Krabbenhoft, cooperator in the Clay county soil conservation district, speaks highly of drainage work and a crop rotation planned on his 320 acre farm with help from Soil Conservation Service technicians. This work has brought Krabbenhoft safely through two seasons in which many beet growers have lost heavily, both in crops and soils. His rotation includes sugar beets following clover plow-down and a summer fallow.

A wet cropping season in 1957 dramatized the drainage problem in northwestern Minnesota. John McMartin, technician with the Marshall-Beltrami soil conservation district, believes crops could have been near normal, even in 1957, if farmers used a combination of adequate drainage and proper crop rotations. Good drainage and good cropping systems, he says, can eliminate much of the "weather risk."

Editorials . . .

"True love of country is not mere blind partisanship. It is regard for the people of one's country and all of them; it is a desire for the prosperity and happiness of all of them; it is kindly and considerate judgment toward all of them. The first duty of popular self-government is individual self-control. The essential condition of true progress is that it shall be based upon grounds of reason, and not of prejudice."

Amendment Not Needed

The "clear understanding" that has been reached between President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon as to administrative responsibility and authority in the event of presidential disability is interesting of course. We cannot see however, that what they may have agreed upon between themselves is going to change the situation. Nor can we see any particular reason for a change.

The Constitution outlines quite clearly what may be done if a difficult situation develops. The Constitution says:

> In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected."

This section gives to Congress a very broad authority to provide by law how any unusual situation of this kind should be dealt with.

An amendment now is being proposed that would give to the officers of the President's cabinet the responsibility of determining whether the President is disabled and unable to perform his duties. Congress clearly has the authority to provide by law how such a situation should be handled. It is a problem that should properly be submitted to the elected members of Congress for determination rather than to a group of political appointees.

No amendment is needed on this point.

Travelling Lawmakers

Minnesota's legislature is showing signs of a lack of restraint that obviously is the result of a lack of leadership. The legislature is divided and there is no responsible head to give it direction. The result is not good.

One of the symptoms of confusion is the lack of judgment of interim committees. Several of them have become touring delegations, travelling at state expense, and these junkets properly are bringing criticism.

Because the legislature is divided, the responsibility for an evil of this kind cannot be tied to any one group. Each junket is the result of combined planning by both liberals and conservatives, and to whatever extent it is wasteful, both the conservatives and the liberals share in the guilt.

Criticism might be helpful in encouraging reasonable curbs on such excursions by future interim groups.

A few days later, on March 5, Senator Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, former Secretary of Agriculture, told his colleagues:

> "We have four large farm organizations. I am sure all of them try to help the farmer. In their recommendations, they are split apart as far as they possibly can be. . . . Under those circumstances, I do not know how to expect the members of the Senate or the members of the House of Representatives to know what is best."

When we quoted both of these men, in our issue of April 10, 1956, we pointed out that they normally hold opposing points of view on the desirable approach to a farm program. They were, however, of a common opinion with reference to the performance of the leadership of the major farm organizations.

Bill Knox, through his Hoard's Dairyman, is still fighting hopefully for a self-help program that will give to the dairymen control of their own industry, and is supporting a measure now before Congress that he believes should be approved. He is discouraged by the inability of the various organizations that speak for the industry to agree on all of the details. His appeal for unity deserves the whole-hearted support of all who are sincerely concerned about the future of dairying. He says:

> In our opinion, the hour has grown late. We believe a high degree of farm organization accord has been reached. Courageous action is needed in this session of Congress on a constructive farm program.
> As metropolitan influence gains in Congress with each succeeding year, it becomes more difficult to provide a long-range, favorable economic climate for agriculture.

The hour has grown late. Some accord has been reached and a self-help dairy bill has been introduced. But the snipers are giving it a rough time. They point out that it is not perfect. The farm bloc, our representatives in Congress who speak for agriculture, may surprise us by a display of unity and courage. But it would be a surprise.

In one more week, by the calendar, winter will be officially ended and spring will be here—by the calendar. We have had a long Indian summer.

According to the Canadian Press, Montreal has had 86.1 inches of snow so far. While we are not complaining about the unequal distribution, it would be nice to get just enough of the white stuff to justify a few days of snow removal by the street crew. That would reduce the winter's accumulation of waste paper and other litter that the merchants now move back and forth as they sweep their sidewalks.

Our spending representatives in Washington received discouraging news last week when Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia announced that his wife had told him he had her permission to run again for reelection. It was encouraging news for the advocates of good government.

The Minneapolis Tribune is thrilled over the possibility that its city may set an example to the nation as it attacks its skid-row problem. We would be glad to join in the cheers if we were assured that the University of Minnesota would not be paying most of the bill.

It Would Be A Surprise

Looking back is useful mainly as means of measuring progress. The past does enrich us with experience, and experience is our best guide to future action.

Bill Knox, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, does a little looking back in the current issue of the good farm magazine that gives courageous leadership to the dairy industry. He recalls statements made two years ago by two farm-state members of the United States Senate. We quote:

> Two years ago, on Wednesday, February 22, Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, said, during debate on the farm bill:
> "The sad and sorry truth . . . is that among our major farm organizations today there is no agreement as to what should be done to restore our farmers' purchasing power. They stand divided, and seem to be vying with each other as to the best approach to meet the challenge."

Borrowed Nonsense

"I love your daughter very dearly, sir," said the young man earnestly. "I would suffer deeply if I ever caused her a moment's unhappiness."

"You certainly would," grinned her father. "That girl is her mother all over again, and I know!"

"There are more important things in life than money—but they won't go out with you if you're broke."—Arnold Glasow.

The Postmaster General has deprived dogs of their inherent right to bite mailmen. This means that if a dog owner wishes to receive mail he must switch his pet to a diet of horse meat even though the dog undoubtedly prefers tenderloin of postman.

"Philip makes me tired," said Jane.

"It's your own falut, dear," advised her best friend. "You should stop running after him."

A peddler's knowledge of vitamins

To sum it up . . . probably zero. The professional people who know about vitamins and nutritional supplements are doctors of medicine and registered pharmacists. The peddler's "knowledge" probably consists of a prepared sales talk which he memorized. Which may or may not give you all the facts. So, don't buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from door-to-door peddlers. Get them from a registered pharmacist who knows what he's selling—and gives you what you pay for.

FORD TRUCKS cost less

LESS TO OWN ... LESS TO RUN ... LAST LONGER, TOO!

They give you so much more, too. In bodyspace, for example, the Styleside pickup has 23% more capacity than any other half-ton pickup. (You pay nothing extra for this modern, extra-wide body.) In power—Ford offers the only light-duty trucks with Short Stroke power in the Six as well as the V-8! And Ford's new carburetor advances recently incorporated in the Six engine are designed to give you maximum gas mileage. In ride—Ford rides smoothest of any pickup—Impact-O-Graph tests prove it! And that's only the beginning. See for yourself.

District Tourney

High School basketball in District 32 came to an exciting end last Friday evening with the comparatively small Strandquist Warriors placing 3rd in the district.

Due to their fast passing, deceptive dribbling and scrappy team playing right up to the last second of the game, the Warriors were awarded a warm spot in the hearts of basketball fans throughout the entire district.

Francis Anderson, Richard Wikstrom and Paul Lindstrom played their last games as Strandquist Warriors at the tournaments at Greenbush. These games were real thrillers and they may, someday, be able to relate them in detail to their grandchildren. The balance of the team will be on hand for more exciting entertainment next fall.

As a fan, stating the feeling of all of the district fans the boys are heartily congratulated for their 57-58 achievement and a very special salute goes to their coach, Mr. Jim Musbruger for his excellent coaching and display of fair play.

Bar Group Explains Tax Reductions for Bad Debts and Losses

(This is the tenth in a series of articles on income tax. These articles are made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar association public relations committee.)

Individuals who are not engaged in a trade or business may deduct two types of losses: losses incurred in transactions entered into for profit, and losses arising from casualty or theft. Common examples of the first type of losses are losses realized on the sale of corporate bonds and securities, municipal bonds, and real estate held for rental or investment purposes. Since the above properties when held by investors are capital assets, the loss must be reported in Schedule D as a capital loss where it will be set off against capital gains, if any, the balance being allowable against ordinary income but not in excess of $1,000.

Casualty and theft losses are often overlooked in preparing returns because no out-of-pocket expense is incurred in connection with the loss unless the property is repaired or replaced. It is not necessarily the cost of repairing or replacing the property which is the basis for the deduction. Losses due to sudden causes such as fire, lightning, flood, storm, explosion, or freezing are deductible. On the other hand damage to your property caused by rust, erosion, or disease is not considered a casualty loss. Losses due to theft are deductible, while losses due to mislaying or losing property are not. The loss may be to your home, automobile, or other personal property. Damage to your automobile may be deducted if not due to your willful act or negligence.

The amount of your loss is measured by the difference in fair market value before and after the casualty, reduced by any amount you may have received as insurance or other compensation. However, the amount of your loss cannot exceed the cost of the property. In many cases the amount of your loss will be measured by the cost of having the property repaired. Some losses are very difficult to measure, such as the destruction of a full grown elm tree by lightning or wind. In Minneapolis, it is generally felt that $50 represents a fair estimate of the amount of such a loss.

You may also deduct which became worthless during 1957, even though the debt was not incurred in your business, if it represents a cash loss. However, to be deductible the debt must have become entirely worthless during 1957, partial worthlessness is not enough unless the debt was incurred in your business. Non-business bad debts are treated as short term capital losses and must be listed in Schedule D. On your Minnesota return you may deduct non-business bad debts which are only partially worthless, and you may list the bad debts as "Other Deductions Authorized by Law" on page 3 of your Minnesota return instead of in Schedule D.

Deductions for securities, such as corporate stocks, which became worthless during 1957 are allowable on Schedule D of your federal return and as "Other Deductions Authorized by Law" on page 3 of your Minnesota return.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times —

On Feb. 23 a seven column story appeared in the "Minneapolis Sunday Tribune," written by Jim Peterson, the outdoor sports writer, under this heading:

Mud Lake Won't Be Drained Despite Group Protest

And Mr. Peterson quotes Dr. Selke, state conservation commissioner as follows: "These are the very same people who in 1955 when I became commissioner wanted to increase the level of "Thief Lake State Refuge" just north of there. It was a very dry spring that year."

The above is just a plain lie. We are not the same group who wanted Thief Lake raised in 1955. In fact, I was with our group and met with the Warren Rod and Gun Club and protested the raising of Thief Lake in 1955.

And Dr. Selke knows that his own department had to cut down the cement dam at Thief Lake because the farmers made such a fuss after it was built. And he also knows that the farmers dynamited the Federal Dam at Mud Lake the year after it was built and they stood guard while the water was lowered. That is what the farmers think of Mud Lake, Thief Lake and all the other wetland projects in this part of the state.

I called at the State Office Building to see Dr. Selke the day after this story appeared in the Tribune, but he was gone for the week. I later called on Jim Peterson at the Tribune Bldg. and told him what the facts were about Mud Lake and Thief Lake. I told him to check with the Conservation Dept. if I was not telling him the truth. Before I left he promised me he would write a correction in his column. But so far I have not seen any correction. He must be like the rest of the Republicans, who seem to think a promise is never supposed to be kept.

While I was in the conservation offices I gathered the following information. That the state owned and controlled refuges and wetlands projects total 647,804 acres and that 496,721 acres of this is located in four northwestern counties, Marshall, Roseau, Beltrami and Lake of the Woods. And that almost all these are wetland projects made so by damming rivers and ditches, which we farmers have dug and enlarged and paid ditch taxes on for almost fifty years. In addition Marshall county has got Mud Lake, a Federal Refuge of over 60,000 acres, and there is an additional 53,000 acres in Beltrami Island State Forest, not controlled by the state. It is not in the Red Lake Indian Reservation but it is under tribal control. The net result: these four counties mostly in the Red River Valley, have got four times as many acres, state refuge and wetlands projects including Mud Lake, as the rest of the state's 83 counties put together. And still some people wonder why we are alarmed.

Our local Game Warden, Carl Sundstrom, put it bluntly last Tuesday evening at the Pennington Sportsmen's Club when he said that our state laws on beaver are obsolete. I think there are other game laws that are obsolete. For instance, we farmers have to feed the Mud Lake and Thief Lake ducks from the time they can fly until they leave in the fall and still if we want to hunt we have to buy a wetlands stamp and a duck stamp and the money is used to buy more wetlands and destroy more of our crops. Has everybody forgot about the Boston Tea Party?

Everybody who has lived here 50 years or more, knows how it used to rain before we got our drainage ditches. Then from 1900 until 1915 most of all these ditches were dug, and as the farmers got their fields ditched into the main channels, we were getting less and less rainfall. But in 1930 Thief Lake was dammed, 1933 the Red Lake Refuge, 1937 Mud Lake, and last just a few years ago the Roseau River project and Roseau farmers have not had a crop to speak of since. So now our rainfall has been steadily increasing since 1937, when Mud Lake was dammed, and we are worse off now than we were almost 50 years ago. After having paid ditch taxes almost that many years. Because now we have to wait until the ground is froze to harvest what little crop the ducks have left us.

We all know that water draws water and Dr. Selke must think so to because he said we wanted Thief Lake raised in 1955 because it was a dry spring. How else could raising a lake help a farmer in a dry year if it did not draw more rainfall.

Jim Peterson the sports writer told me he was inclined to think our abnormal rainfall these last years came from the damming of the Missouri River, because our rain come from the West. But he could not explain why this rain did not fall at Grand Forks as it passed over. These last few years when Grand Forks gets a fraction of an inch of rain, by the time these showers reach the Mud Lake neighborhood it is a cloud burst.

Mr. Peterson also told me that the country around Grygla should never have been settled. I think any farm that could support a farm family and have enough over for taxes during the Hoover Administration is good enough to farm any year.

At the last Sportsmen's meeting at Thief River Falls, Clarence Lian of Gatzke spoke of his experiences on his farm after Mud Lake was flooded. He said he had no hard feelings towards Mr. Dill, the new Mud Lake manager, because Mr. Dill was only a hired man. But last fall Mr. Lian said he swathed a nice field of oats some distance from his buildings, a few days later, he went to look at his swaths and the ducks had combined it all.

Mr. Dill spoke next and told how he had always cooperated with the farmers. But who cooperated to pay Clarence Lian for his oats crop and also all the other thousands of acres of crop that we farmers have lost since 1937.

If the state and nation wants us to raise all these ducks, then they better be prepared to compensate us for the crop these ducks eat up.

Counties Invited to Use Discarded License Plates

The Minnesota highway department still has more than 800 cartons of salvaged reflective license plates available for use as road hazard markers on sub-standard county or local roads for which reflective markers are not available. This was disclosed in a message sent today by the highway department to Minnesota's 87 county engineers inviting them to apply for supplies of the plates.

Officials of villages and townships which can make use of the plates were advised by the highway department to make their needs known to their county engineer.

Since Governor Orville L. Freeman last December first proposed using pieces of the discarded plates as night warning devices for road turns and dangerous spots, 10 counties have obtained 233 cartons of the plates from the stockpile at the state fair grounds, for use on county, township and village roads.

The highway department communication also noted that the department had road marker signs available which have become obsolete for trunk highway use but which are in satisfactory condition to be remarked for use on county or local roads.

THE SEARCH CONTINUES

Throughout the history of mankind runs the account of a double quest:

Man searching for God . . . our restless eagerness to understand and please our Creator has paralleled the centuries of progress.

God seeking Man . . . ceaselessly, patiently, His Love has lighted the ages, ever reaching toward our hearts, encompassing our souls.

Yet no powerful lens ever devised will aid in this search. Our quest finds its consummation not beneath the lens of a microscope—but beneath the spire of a Church!

What man does not recognize his own inability to cope with the complexities of life?

There awaits you next Sunday in the Church of your choice the peace and assurance that generations have sought . . . the FAITH which unites Man and God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
